Report from the

GENERAL PRESIDENT

AS YOUR newly elected General President, may I take this opportunity to greet you and assure you that I will extend all of my efforts and energies on behalf of the LIU, our Councils and Local Unions and Members. I trust and assume that all of our Councils, Local Unions and Members will work with me in order to continue to advance the best interests of the LIU, whom we all regard with such great respect and affection.

As we move forward, I would like to constructively bring to your attention a number of matters which I firmly believe will strengthen us.

(1) It is very important that those Councils and Local Unions which have not, as yet, forwarded copies of their Working Agreements and Local Constitutions and By-laws, do so promptly. As you realize it is necessary to refer to the Working Agreements and the Constitutions and By-laws, in acting on appeals, approval of fines, etc.

Further, the Working Agreements are needed in order to help the General Office as it strives and deals with Governmental Agencies which establish prevailing wage rates in your areas, under existing laws.

As you can see this is for your own good, as well as for the good of the entire LIU, that we have on file, copies of your Working Agreements and Constitutions and By-laws. We will be glad to promptly forward to you forms which we have developed for Working Agreements and for Local Union Constitutions and By-laws, so that you may use them in preparing your Working Agreements and Constitutions and By-laws, if you have not already done so.

(2) Our International Representatives are instructed to advise and assist you in promptly working out ways and means to establish Business Agents to service our Local Unions. Such Business Agents would work for the Local Union or for a group of neighboring Local Unions or through the Council with which the local unions are affiliated.

As you realize such Business Agents, who would be spending full time in this position, would be a great help in making sure that we secure all of our work within the jurisdiction and would help to cover the jobs in order to protect our wage rates, working conditions and trade jurisdiction. Usually the method of financing the Business Agents is through Working Dues. This investment in full time Business Agents, would result in great returns for all of our members since it would mean more work and greater protection for our trade jurisdiction.

Of course, the International Representatives would work with the Business Agents in coordinating all of the activities within their territories and in reporting their progress to the General President. Thereby, all of us would have a united front in achieving our main desire which is to protect our work jurisdiction.

(3) The National Lathing Industry's Joint Apprenticeship Committee is moving ahead with its main aims and objectives. We all know that it is very important to develop more Lathers in order to fill the jobs and to protect our work. A lack of Lathers could only result in the loss of jobs and this in the weakening of the LIU, our Councils and Local Unions.

We must be ready and able to man the jobs with skilled, qualified and competent Lathers, so that we can get, and do, the work with the quality that we are proud of. Therefore, I urge that you support the Apprenticeship Program to the fullest extent by including apprenticeship provisions in your Working Agreements.

As you can appreciate, I have just become the General President and the urgent matters which I have set forth above are those which have immediately come to my mind. As time goes on, I will report to you on other matters of great importance.

My entire working life has been, is, and will be dedicated to the entire LIU and to its best welfare.

Let us all join together in a spirit of cooperation to work side-by-side for the best interests of the LIU, its Councils and Local Unions and Members.

Again, Greetings, and with complete assurance that I am at your service, I am

Fraternally yours,

THE Armstrong Rubber Company's Hanford, California plant, designed by Architect David A. Horn, has been recognized by Factory Magazine as one of the Top Ten Plants of 1963.

In response to a question, Mr. Horn advised that metal lath and plaster were specified in various parts of the million square foot plan. Metal lath and cold rolled channels were used to create durable partitions, ceilings and wall finishes. Ceilings were suspended from the steel roof structure. Galvanized metal lath was used for exterior soffits.

To be eligible for the Factory Magazine Top Ten Awards, plants are required to be outstanding throughout a broad list of over 150 categories; emphasis is given to comprehensive efficiency in the utilization of the latest techniques and materials in a manner of creating the most efficient and desirable factory environment. Among the areas emphasized are provision for maintenance and the appearance of buildings and grounds, efficiency of operations and personnel accommodations.

Among the features which weighed heavily in the selection of the Armstrong plant were lighting levels higher than found in most homes; easily cleaned, metal lath and plaster partitions and ceilings distributed the high level of illumination with top effectiveness. Another outstanding feature of the Armstrong plant are industrial cleaners that provide dust-free air; the same partitions and ceilings, dust-tight and dust-free, lessen the load on the cleaners.

Also weighing heavily in the selection were washrooms that would be the envy of many housewives; their walls are of ceramic tile set on metal lath and plaster. Among other determining features of the award were safe working places and noise suppression, both of them purposes for which metal lath and plaster have been used to advantage.

The plant is divided into raw materials and finished-goods warehouses, tire producing factory, administration building, and guard house. The two warehouses are of reinforced concrete, while the factory is of structural steel, 300 ft. x 800 ft., with a 150 ft. x 300 ft. wing containing maintenance facilities. A 50 ft. x 150 ft. mezzanine in the shop wing contains lockers, dressing rooms, showers and rest rooms for factory personnel. A modern canteen area accommodates their luncheon needs, and first aid facilities include rooms for doctors and nurses. The one-story structural steel administration building is modern in design and decor.

Architect Horn describes the design of the Armstrong plant as one based on the requirements of materials handling, manufacturing, safety and fire protection, personnel, and the budget, all of which were fully satisfied. The result has been the creation of an ideal environment for manufacturing processes and personnel.

Said James A. Walsh, Jr., vice president representing Armstrong during the design and construction, "I think it would be impossible to build a better plant."

The superior properties of metal lath and plaster construction are integral parts of the over-all perfection of this Top Ten Plant.

Lathing and plastering were done by Pierce Lathing Company, and Pacific Plastering Company, respectively, both of Fresno, California.

The seven buildings and 1200 seat auditorium which are the plant of the College of Mount St. Joseph, occupy a rolling 53 acre site along the Ohio River, 7 miles from Cincinnati. The College is designed to accommodate 1200 students.

Mt. St. Joseph College

A SUCCINCT answer sufficed when William Craig, A.I.A., was asked where was metal lath used in the construction of the College of Mount St. Joseph, near Cincinnati. "Throughout," he responded; "for almost all interior partitions, furring and suspended plaster ceilings."

And that was covering a lot of ground in a few words, for the College consists of seven buildings, varying in height up to seven stories, and a large auditorium. The six buildings have a total of 602,400 sq. ft., of floor space; the auditorium seats 1200.

Throughout this complex of classrooms, laboratories, dormitories and offices, durable partitions of metal lath and steel studs were installed to provide for easy running of service lines; studless two-inch solid metal lath and plaster partitions were used in certain areas for their durability and for their space-saving quality. Exterior masonry walls were finished with furring, metal lath and gypsum-sand plaster.

Metal lath and plaster assemblies were used to create sound insulating partitions and ceilings. In instances of excessive sound transmission problems, double partitions of metal lath and studs were installed.

Structural steel of the buildings was membrane fireproofed with metal lath and lightweight aggregate plaster. Where columns stood separate from walls and partitions, they were finished with encasements of metal lath and plaster and topped off with snap-in flexible vinyl molding. Some ceilings were constructed of metal lath tied to furring attached directly to the underside of floor slabs. Where it was necessary to install ductwork and service lines, they were concealed with suspended metal lath and plaster ceilings.

Each partition and wall-finish assembly terminated at a casing bead set $\frac{3}{8}$ in. below the ceiling. After the plastering was completed, the separation between wall and ceiling was neatly filled with a snap-in type plastic molding.

The same procedure was followed by plastering contractor Floyd Hartshorn, El Paso, Texas, where glazed tile was mounted over metal lath and plaster partitions.

General contractor Robert McKee, Santa Fe, New Mexico, completed the college buildings on February 1, 1963, though some initial class use of them commenced on September 1, 1962. Today, surrounded almost entirely by the security, durability and beauty of metal lath and plaster construction, 1200 students pursue studies leading to degrees in arts, science, music, nursing and elementary education.

Ebbets Field Apartments

MORE things than little happened when "Dem Bums" shook the dust of Brooklyn from their spikes and made for the Chavez Ravine. First, there was a howl of indignation from Dodger fans that "we wuz robbed;" and for a while, "bum" was no longer a term of endearment.

And another thing happened: Ebbets Field, long time home of the now departed Brooklyn Dodgers, was sold. And the stands were torn down, and the well manicured infield grass and the carefully tended base paths were bulldozed into a heap.

And today, where played such all-time baseball greats as Roy Campanella, Pee Wee Reese, Pete Reiser, Duke Snider and Dazzy Vance, there stands an apartment house. It stands on the site, beloved to enthusiastic Brooklyn rooters, such as those who in 1924, unable to gain admission, used a dismantled utility pole to batter in a gate leading into center field, and overflowed onto the playing surface; there, when Hack Wilson of the Giants went back to catch a fly, the crowd parted and allowed him to get in, but not out. Wilson's glove and glasses were tossed out, and finally Hack, but not the ball. From the location of the main gate to that of the bleachers, from the home plate to the center field fence, the apartment house stands; shaped rather like a letter "H" it stands.

Records were made on Ebbets

Field, such as the day in 1938 when Johnny Vander Meer made baseball history by pitching his second successive no-hit game. And the day in 1950, when Gil Hodges hit four home runs in one game. Continuing the pattern, the Ebbets Field Apartment building sets another record, for the structure is one of the world's largest apartment houses under a single roof. On its 25 floors there are 1317 apartments, divided into eight units per floor and served by as many elevator lobbies. Within each apartment, are two-inch solid metal lath and plaster partitions. Vertical furring, metal lath and plaster cover the inner sides of the exterior walls and the partitions between apartments and corridors, and add to their sound insulating qualities. Suspended metal lath and plaster ceilings in all bathrooms improve the decor and provide space for ducts and pipes. Casing bead and base screed, installed by the lathers, assure true plain wall surfaces.

Ebbets Field Apartments occupy a 5½ acre site, from Bedford Avenue and Montgomery Street, to McKeever Place and Sullivan Street in Brooklyn. Its seven connecting wings cover only twenty-five percent of the site, providing each apartment with maximum light and air. An underground garage has space for 250 cars, while surface parking is available for 285 more autos.

Designed by Architects Brown and Guenther of New York, Ebbets Field Apartments were developed by Field Housing Company, a wholly owned subsidiary of the Kratter Corporation, a publicly owned real estate investment corporation. General contractor was HRH Construction Corporation, while the lathing contract was executed by Jeremiah Burns, Inc., both headquartered in New York City. Plastering was done by Giamboni Brothers of Brooklyn, New York.

Monthly rentals, based on low cost financing arranged with the New York State Housing Finance Agency, and tax abatement granted by the City of New York, average $29.70 per room. The structure was built under New York State's Middle Income Housing Program.

One of the world's largest apartment houses, even though it is constructed with metal lath and plaster throughout, may not evoke the excited interest of baseball fans. But it will provide one of the largest of object lessons in the long lasting value of constructing well—of constructing with metal lath and plaster.

Churchman Cites Economy of Metal Lath Construction

THE present building of the Casa View Church of Christ, Mesquite, Texas, which Harry C. Hoover, Jr., architect, designed for us, has now been in use for something more than a year; therefore, we feel that we are in a position to offer some intelligent observations." says Jesse J. Millican, Casa View Church of Christ, Mesquite, Texas.

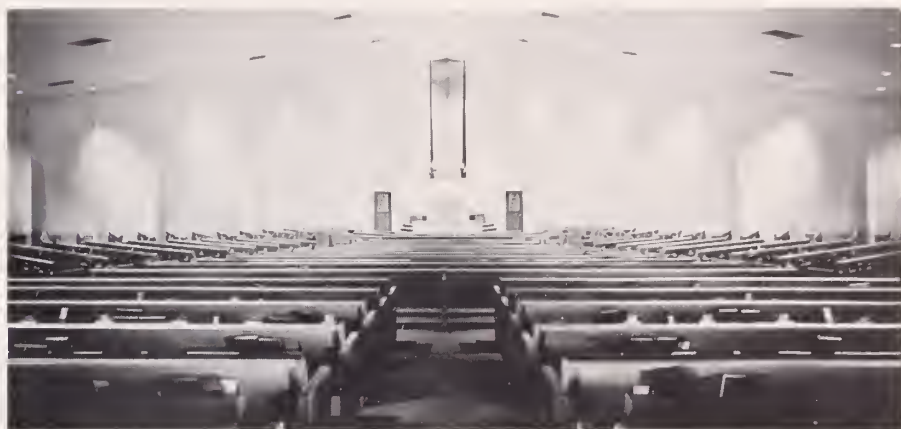

"When we first called upon Mr. Hoover to assist us with our building problems, we told him that first of all we wanted a building that would harmonize with existing structures on the site. We further specified that we needed a building which would seat approximately 1,000 persons and that we had a very limited budget. We also wanted a building of simple design to fit with the simple form of worship which we follow. Although simple, we felt that a house of worship should achieve an atmosphere of dignity in keeping with the purpose for which it was created. Mr. Hoover suggested that a basic steel structure with metal lath and plaster might best achieve all or at least the greater part of our requirements.

"Not being versed in architecture, we do not fully understand the techniques by which Mr. Hoover achieved his results; however, we are able to state that an atmosphere of dignity and reverence has been created.

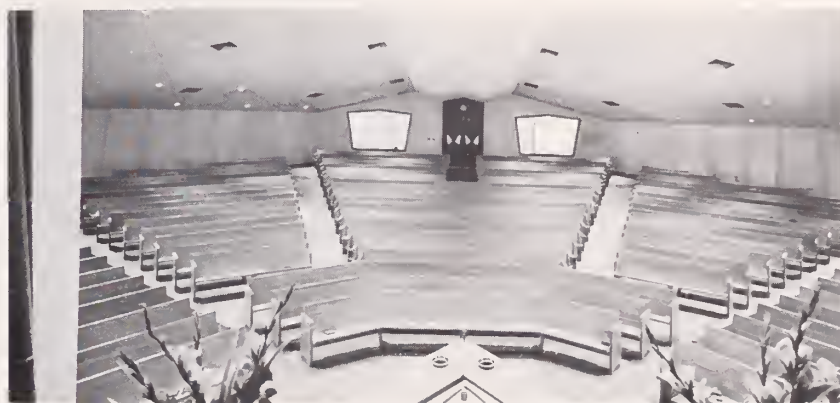

"Other features of the auditorium building would also appeal to the practical minded businessman concerned with church construction. We were able to build the building at a cost of approximately one-hundred dollars per seat, and we know of no other building of comparable size, in this area, which has been built for as little as even twice that amount. It also has excellent acoustics, a feature which is lacking in many large buildings. With the insulating material which was put in the walls, we find the heating and air conditioning functioning as well and perhaps better than it does in the ordinary masonry building."

The ceiling, the trough and the walls were created of metal lath and plaster. The triangular pilasters, seen tapering from ceiling to floor, were wrapped in furring and metal lath, and plastered.

Seen from the pulpit, the metal lath and plaster ceiling assembly slopes away to the rear of the sanctuary. High hat down lights, loud speakers and air conditioning ducts are built into the ceiling.

The Casa View Church was constructed of steel framing in a complete skin of 4 in. steel studs, metal lath and stucco. To the inside of the studs was wire-tied diamond mesh metal lath as a base for sanded gypsum plaster.

Local 30 Member Serving Corps In Gabon, Africa

Clarence L. Kline, #45357, a member of Local 30, Dayton, Ohio, joined the Peace Corps September 8, 1963. On September 10, 1963, he went to St. Croix, Virgin Islands, to work on the erection of a school. Returned to Washington, D. C., October 27, 1963, and attended Howard University to study the French language, and related items to qualify for his next trip. December 31, 1963, he left for Gabon, Africa, which is in French Equatorial Africa where he expects to be for 21 months.

Gabon, Africa gained its independence from France in 1961, and is now attempting to build school buildings in the bush country in order to provide education for their children. Clarence Kline will be working on these school building projects.

The goal of the Peace Corps is to teach the natives how to do construction work, so that later they will be able to do it without the help of the Peace Corps members.

Only 80 per cent of the eligible school pupils in this section of Africa are in school, and it is the objective of the President of Gabon to have 100 per cent of these children in schools.

Clarence Kline says there is a lot of satisfaction in being able to contribute to the advancement of these people in education, and in building. He also states that construction is much different in these remote areas because of the difficulty of obtaining material.

He expects to return from Africa September 8, 1965. This will complete his two-year service with the Peace Corps, which is the length of time that anyone is allowed to serve at this time.

F. A. Kline, Jr., the father of Clarence Kline, is a 25-year member of our organization. F. A. Kline, Sr., his grandfather, was also a member of our organization.

We are proud of the fact that Clarence Kline has volunteered for Peace Corps service, and hope that his stay in Africa is a very pleasant, and interesting one.

Clarence L. Kline, Peace Corps member, who visited with our late General President, Lloyd A. Mashburn, and our General Secretary-Treasurer, Harold Mills, prior to leaving for his service with the Peace Corps in Gabon, Africa.

Is this the shape of things to come?

It can be—with modern conveniences and push buttons. Easy living is sapping the strength and vitality of our children. One-third of them of school age can't pass minimum physical achievement tests.

Urge your school to offer at least 15 minutes of daily, vigorous activity. This can bring our nation's youth up to sound physical standards.

AFL-CIO Convention Stresses Political Education

Labor in politics got a full share of attention at the recent AFL-CIO convention in New York, spotlighting the importance to the trade union movement of the 1964 elections.

The 167-member AFL-CIO General Board, reviewing labor's register-and-vote campaigns of 1960 and 1962, determined an even greater effort is demanded if success in 1964 is to be assured. It placed special emphasis on the need for a full-time officer to be assigned to political activity in every union and a person in every local to implement the program.

The General Board discussed the political challenge of extreme right wing elements to labor and to liberal government and asserted the trade union movement must fight back by insuring the greatest possible participation in political decision-making.

The best single weapon labor has in this struggle, the Board indicated, is manpower enlisted on the side of good citizenship.

Earlier, the AFL-CIO convention had approved a resolution calling on every local union to appoint a person responsible for registering unregistered unionists and members of their families and for getting out the vote on election day.

The 1964 AFL-CIO register-and-vote campaign will be financed by a voluntary five-cent per member assessment voted by the Executive Council in October.

In other convention action on the political front, the AFL-CIO called for equality of citizenship at the polls by redistricting "malapportioned state legislatures and congressional districts" which deny fair representation to urban voters.

The resolution embodying the AFL-CIO stand on reapportionment pointed out the rural minority—some 30 percent of total population—still controls most state legislatures and has disproportionate influence in the U.S. House of Representatives.

The resolution said "... one form of malapportionment feeds another. It is the rurally-dominated state legislatures which have control over the apportionment of congressional districts."

The resolution called for support of a bill by Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.) which would require congressional districts to be of "reasonably equal population and of compact boundaries." It concluded: "Only through congressional action, presidential leadership, enlightened court decisions and public demand can truly representative apportionment become a reality, with every citizen possessing equal strength at the ballot box and in the voting booth. Only when the concept of one man, one vote is fully observed will democracy be fully achieved."

TIPPING THE BALANCE

There was no standardization, even in weights and measures, in 18th-century Europe. Therefore, at that time, one's own scales and standards were an absolute necessity. The old balance-maker's shop was a lively place. The customer with her scales to be repaired has at best but half the attention of the craftsman who is filing a beam. Beside him another artisan is testing the final balance of a pair of scales. At the right a third man is melting on a brazier a spoonful of lead, with which he will cast a weight.

In contrast to this way of working, today's complex automated microscopic and electronic controls — coupled with the highest work standards and closest tolerances anywhere in the world — make the products of American and Canadian craftsmen the envy of many another land. These are the intangible benefits that have resulted from our "free-choice" way of life which tip the balance in our favor whenever it comes to any competitive showdown in which we are truly interested.

SKID STUFF

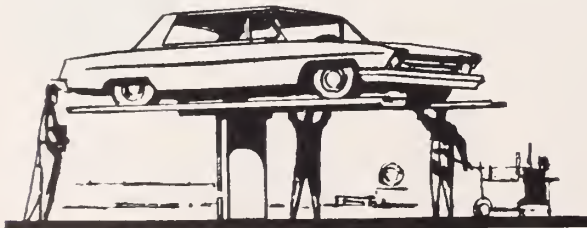

How to drive safer and easier on ice and snow

Winter, with its heightened danger of auto-damage and to life and limb from auto accidents, is fast bearing down on us. The Committee on Winter Driving Hazards of the National Safety Council, in an effort to make winter driving more secure, has posted the following rules and suggestions.

Not all sections of the country suffer the worst of winter's woes such as heavy snowstorms. But even southern areas may, from time to time, suffer from freezing rain and sleet on roads which make driving extremely dangerous.

The first step toward coping adequately with winter is to prepare your car for it, says the Safety Council.

Not only will it bring added safety but it will result in greater convenience and over-all savings. Don't wait until winter has you in its solid grip to have your anti-freeze put in or tested. Check the cooling system for leaks beforehand lest your expensive antifreeze leak out. Temperature and humidity changes can alter a car's performance. A winter tune-up will help starts on cold mornings and prevent stalls.

Cold weather greatly lowers battery power so have it tested. If it tests weak, replace it before it goes dead, especially if it is still within the warranty period. One service call can cost as much as a battery! If your battery won't quite turn over one morning, try heating it. Wrap an electric heating pad in protective plastic or other disposable material and hook it up. Lay it on the battery to warm it. Check the water too, and bring that up to the proper level. As soon as possible replace such a battery and have your charging rate regulator checked.

Brakes should be adjusted before the first snow flurry. Have them relined if necessary because brakes should work perfectly in winter.

Your muffler or exhaust pipe, if faulty, can kill you or a member of your family without warning. Have it checked. With windows up against winter's blasts, only a very small amount of carbon monoxide can kill without warning!

Make certain your defroster is working properly and can clear away ice and fog. Wipers should work without streaking; otherwise replace them. Washers should have the proper anti-freeze in them or you may blind yourself with a sudden sheet of ice on your windshield. To keep your windshield from fogging up on the inside, wipe it with a cake of soap, then polish clear with cloth or paper.

Check all lights, including directional signals and stop lights, for proper operation. Clean their lenses frequently for maximum visibility.

You should use seat belts all the time but, with the ever-present skidding hazard of winter, there is even more use for them.

You will need a good tread on your tires to get a bite on snow and ice or to hold on winter-wet pavements. Snow tires are much better than conventional treads and they cost nothing extra to use since, while you are using them, your regular tires are not being worn. Many people buy two snow treads and use a regular tread as a spare. Then, in summer, they use a snow tread as a spare. To make switch-over easier, some drivers buy one extra wheel, keep their snow treads permanently mounted. Used wheels can be picked up cheaply at auto junk yards.

For severe weather conditions such as deep snow and steep grades there is no substitute for tire chains. They give better control for starting, turning and stopping. Your complete winter accessories should include a clean rag, windshield scraper, a bag of salt, a tow line and a shovel.

Surprisingly, many people do not know how to get a car started on slippery surfaces. With a stick shift, start off in second or even in high gear and e-a-s-e down on the accelerator. Once a drive wheel starts spinning it has lost its traction. The trick is to keep it from starting to spin.

In deep snow, go straight ahead, then back, gradually "snowplowing" a set of ruts. These will allow you to gain momentum. Go steadily but don't overspeed. Hit drifts (within reasonable size limits!) firmly; timidity will only get you firmly stuck in the middle!

Experts advise against letting air out of modern low-pressure tires. They say it does not help. Snow tires will give you half again as much starting traction and tire chains up to four times as much. Snow tires help somewhat on ice but reinforced chains give up to five times as much traction.

On wintery roads, steer with small and slow adjustments; no sudden changes of direction. Anticipate and make every movement smoothly and gradually. Start gradually, stop gradually, turn gradually. If you skid, turn in the direction of the skid enough to regain control. This means that, to avoid disaster, you must allow yourself skid-overtake room on both sides! After thus halting the skid and regaining control, you can gradually turn in the opposite direction.

Watch out for "temperature traps". These are the patches of ice that linger on bridges, overpasses and shady areas when other pavement around is clear and dry. Sunny areas are more dangerous when most of the road is covered by snow and ice because melting "wet" ice at 30 degrees is twice as slippery as ice at zero degrees.

Hills pose a special problem. Get good momentum before you start up. If you stall, back down and give it another try; don't just spin your wheels and hope. If you need a lower gear, shift at the bottom of the slope. Slow down just before you reach the crest because over the brow there may be stalled cars or some other reason to stop and if you are going downhill fast on slick pavement . . . look out!

Forget about posted speed limits! They are intended for clear and dry conditions. If the limit is 35 mph, you might be endangering yourself and others, under certain conditions, if you are making more than 10 miles an hour! Many winter factors should impel you to slow down, such as early winter dusk (don't forget to turn your lights on low beam early!), blinding snow and slush spatter. Incidentally, a paper towel moistened with "Coke" or other cola drink will remove splashed oil film from your windshield in a hurry.

If drivers could stop quickly in winter, many driving sins could be forgiven them. But they cannot, and this is the last cause for alarm before many a wintery crash.

Start putting your brakes on sooner on ice or snow.

Pump the brake on and off rapidly; this allows the front wheels to roll between applications and helps you keep steering control. Each "pump" applies a new portion of your rear tire treads to the road surface. Generally speaking, don't use your parking brake in winter. It is no good for stopping and, once applied to a stationary car, may freeze in the applied position. Watch out for wet ice and the "polished" ice caused by heavy traffic.

If you do have a collision, even a minor one, be ready for it. You should exchange your name and address with the other party but do not admit to any liability for the accident. Without adequate witnesses it is a good idea to call the police, otherwise the other party's version of the accident may prove to be considerably different from yours!

A good car, maintained in good condition, properly equipped and skillfully driven in the slower speed ranges demanded by winter's increased hazards, will bring you through the season unscathed and without paying for auto body repairs.

Gentlemen:

A determination is desired as to whether the trust established under an indenture executed March 9, 1963 and which forms a part of the pension plan for employees of employers who make payments into the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union General Pension Fund, for and on behalf of employees represented by the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union is a qualified trust under section 401(a) and exempt from income tax under the provisions of section 501(a) of the Internal Revenue Code.

The plan and related data have been considered and this office is of the opinion that:

1. The plan meets the requirements of section 401(a) of the Internal Revenue Code;
2. The trust, forming a part thereof, is entitled to exemption under the provisions of section 501(a);
3. Contributions made by employer-contributors under the plan will be deductible from gross income within the limitations and subject to the conditions of section 404 of the Internal Revenue Code and subject further to verification upon examination of the tax returns in which such deductions are claimed; and
4. Benefits paid will be taxed to distributees in accordance with the provisions of section 402(a), of the Internal Revenue Code.

This opinion, however, is not to be taken as an indication that the Internal Revenue Service is in any way passing upon the actuarial soundness of the plan or on the reasonableness of the actuarial computations.

This office is to be notified in the event of suspension of employer contributions, discontinuance of employer contributions or termination of the plan or trust.

PRELUDE TO THE CLOSED SHOP DOCTRINE Commonwealth v. Hunt — 1842

Chief Justice Shaw of the Massachusetts Supreme Court in 1842 handed down a decision which appeared radical at the time — a decision which marked a prelude to the later developing doctrine of the closed shop and union security practices.

The case involved the members of the Journeymen Bootmakers Society of Boston who had agreed to refrain from working for any person who employed a non-member journeyman. The bootmakers were charged as criminals, but Justice Shaw could see no criminal action. He said, "The legality of such association will . . . depend upon the means to be used for its accomplishment." While the decision was by no means a complete victory for labor, it represented a change in climate with respect to the oppressive conspiracy laws of pre-Civil War days.

The case, while lost in the files of labor antiquarianism, may be said to be an early landmark of labor.

Investment Opportunity

You are looking at a part of your employee benefit program. It's part of your neighbors', too. And your suppliers' and your customers' and your competitors'. It is there for all Americans to enjoy.

A healthy economy is a bulwark of the freedom it symbolizes—and of our freedom to enjoy it.

American businessmen like you can protect the investment you have in this benefit program by promoting the Treasury's Payroll Savings Plan for U.S. Savings Bonds. It makes for a strong America and a sound America. And it engenders a sense of thrift and independence and conservation that helps us all to fathom the real significance of monuments like that set in the beautiful Black Hills.

When you bring the Payroll Savings Plan into your plant—when you encourage your employees to enroll—you are investing in the most precious of America's natural resources. In the vastnesses of its mountains and plains and coasts that offer physical and spiritual recreation to us and our children. You are investing in the heritage and the future of America. In freedom itself.

Don't pass this investment opportunity by. Call your State Savings Bonds Director. Or write today to the Treasury Department, U.S. Savings Bonds Division, Washington 25, D.C.

in your plant...promote the PAYROLL SAVINGS PLAN for U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

No. 2

Report from the GENERAL PRESIDENT

In my report to you in the January issue of "The Lather", I advised you of several matters which I felt would further the best interests of the LIU.

I would like to again emphasize the importance of the current Working Agreements and Constitutions and By-laws for all Local Unions and Councils being on file at Headquarters. Therefore, if copies of your current Working Agreement and Constitution and By-laws have not been submitted to this office I urge that you do so immediately.

The response to my request for full time Business Agents being established to service all of our Local Unions has been very encouraging. In many areas, where heretofore there has been no full time Business Agent, our Locals are attempting to establish Working Dues for this purpose. Again, I say that I am pleased with this prompt action and I am sure these Local Unions will soon realize the benefits this small investment, from each of our members, will produce. Keep up the good work and I assure this Office will extend any assistance possible to help you reach this goal.

The National Lathing Industry's Joint Apprenticeship Committee under the direction of Mr. Leo Schultz is progressing daily. We are presently in the process of setting up forms for submitting Apprenticeship Fund payments to the LIU, which we feel will expedite the procedure for both the Local Unions and for the Secretary of the Apprenticeship Fund. Again, I urge you to make every effort to have this Apprenticeship Clause contained in your Working Agreement.

During the first two weeks of February I will be away from the office, attending the Building Trades Department Meetings, General Presidents Meetings, etc. In accordance with the International Constitution, I have called a meeting of our Executive Council in conjunction with the Building Trades Department Meetings, to convene February 3, 1964. There are a number of important matters to be presented to the Executive Council, and I shall report to you the highlights of these meetings in my next report. Also, at this time, I should like to ask your patience on any delay in replies to your correspondence with this Office, although I assure you every effort will be made to avoid any delay.

The International Representative for your Region will probably be in contact with the officers of your local union in the very near future to obtain certain statistics and information pertaining to the operation of the Local Union, since I have requested certain information be furnished this office, in an effort to perpetuate a closer relationship between our Local Unions, our International Representatives and our International Union. With a closer relationship I feel we will achieve the goals necessary to increase our membership and further our industry. May I also, at this time, solicit any suggestions or comments, which you feel might help to make our Organization, "The Best", . . . not just "One Of the Best". I believe this can be done . . . but only through the cooperation of each and every member.

You were recently advised through the Journal (The Lather), (October, 1963), of the Bill H.R. 6041, to be presented to amend the Davis-Bacon Act to include Fringe Benefits in wage predeterminations. There was also a request made at that time through a letter, received from C. J. Haggerty, President, Building and Construction Trades Department (also our own First Vice-President), printed in the Journal, that letters be sent to the Congressmen urging their support of H.R. 6041.

I am pleased to advise you at this time that H.R. 6041, was considered by the House on Tuesday, January 28, 1964, where it was approved without amendments. H.R. 6041, amending the Davis-Bacon Act to include fringe benefits in prevailing wages, was passed by the House of Representatives without amendment by a roll call vote of 357 to 50. Of course, the measure must still be passed by the Senate before it can be signed into law. However, prospects for favorable Senate action would appear to be excellent due to the margin of victory in the House. Fringe Benefits specifically listed in the Bill as a factor in the calculation of prevailing wages include medical care, pensions, insurance, disability and sickness benefits, vacation and holiday pay and apprenticeship programs. Much of the credit for this victory must go to Local Building Trades Unions and Councils throughout the country who bombarded congressmen with letters, phone calls, wires and personal visits to win support for H.R. 6041.

President "Neil" Haggerty and Legislative Director Walter Mason, of the Building and Construction Trades Department who have led the fight for this legislation continued their efforts up to the last moment, and they were in the House gallery when the final victory came.

I feel this is a prime example of the strength of unity and certainly proves that no obstacle is insurmountable if the proper effort is put forth.

I extend my sincere thanks for your cooperation and my best wishes to each and every member of our International Union.

Fraternally yours,

GENERAL SECRETARY-TREASURER

DURING January the International received a subpoena for the person in charge of the records for the International to appear in Federal Court with records of payments made by a Local Union to the International.

When I appeared in court they were trying a Local Secretary for embezzlement on a charge that developed from an unfair labor practice charge filed by the Contractors' in reference to the failure of this Local Union to bargain with the General Contractors' Association. They had bargained with the Local Lathing and Plastering Contractors' instead.

While the NLRB unfair labor practice charge investigation was going on and while the NLRB was searching for anything they could find they brought in the Labor Management Division of the Labor Department to check the reporting procedures of the Local Union.

The books of the Local Union had been so poorly kept that an audit of them was almost impossible, and as a result they assumed that there was an approximate $1,300 shortage. By this time they had the FBI and the Internal Revenue involved.

The court hearings was in session about 2½ days, and the judge dismissed the case acquitting the defendant, dismissed the jury, and adjourned the court. Very fortunate for us.

The most important conclusion of this case is that it makes it very obvious that an officer of a Local Union must fulfill his duties completely, and must be qualified to handle these duties.

Under the Constitution of the L.I.U. it requires that the President of a Local Union must cause the Trustees of the Local Union to audit the books of the Financial Secretary-Treasurer semiannually, and report the results of their audit to the Local Union. In the event of a shortage it must be reported to the General Secretary-Treasurer immediately along with an itemized report of the audit.

It is not necessary for the Financial Secretary-Treasurer of a local to keep a complicated set of records, but it is necessary for him to keep an exact record of all money received, and an exact record of all money spent. All money received should be deposited in the bank, and all money paid should be paid by check.

The Recording Secretary should also keep an accurate account of the meeting showing all motions as being regularly moved, seconded, and passed or carried. If a motion was not carried, this should also be shown in the minutes. The receipts, and expenses of the local should also be recorded in the minutes along with the action that was taken by the body. Some of you may think that an article like this is unnecessary but we still have Local Unions that do not keep an accurate or complete record of the local meetings or transactions. If you, as an officer of a Local Union fail to see that these basic things are done as they should be, and are kept accurately then you are subject to fine or imprisonment and a great deal of embarrassment. Please realize your own local situation as a member or officer of the local, and make sure that you will not be subject to any action by the Federal Government or its agencies.

None of us want to see any of our Local Unions or officers in difficulty because of negligence in keeping complete, and accurate records, so let's all see that we comply with the requirements of the law, and avoid any unnecessary embarrassment or difficulties.

In the past the International office has taken the position that our Councils were central bodies as described in the Labor Management Act but have recently been advised by the Labor Department that central bodies excluded from filling out LM forms are only Local Central AFL-CIO Bodies chartered directly by the AFL-CIO, and not Councils such as those of our organization. Therefore, all of the Councils of our organization are required to file LM forms as required by the law.

We are still having a great deal of difficulty with transfers, and are requesting that all Local Unions send the transfers of members in as soon as they are accepted so that the record of the transferring member can be kept as it should be without the possibility of his being automatically suspended by Headquarters. I am sure if the transfers are handled promptly by the Local Secretary it will simplify the record keeping for all of us.

There are a certain number of Local Unions who are delinquent in their per capita tax payments to Headquarters, and I would like to draw to the attention of these Locals, and their officers that before a delegate is eligible to be seated at the Convention, and receive his expenses for attending the Convention, the Local must have the per capita tax for the local paid through August of 1964. Please see that your local is current in its per capita tax payments so you may have a delegate represent you at the 1964 Convention of the L.I.U.

AUDIT REPORT

Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union

January 1, 1963 to December 31, 1963

Mr. Sal Maso, General President
6530 New Hampshire Avenue
Takoma Park, Maryland

Dear Sir:

In accordance with your request we have examined the books and records of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union for the year ended December 31, 1963 and give you herewith a report of our examination including the following exhibits and schedules:

Exhibits:

A—Statement of Condition December 31, 1963

Schedules:

- 1—Summary Cash Statement
- 2—Statement of Cash Receipts
- 3—Statement of Cash Disbursements
- 3A—Officers and Representatives Salaries and Expenses
- 4—Bonds Owned

Cash in bank was reconciled with statements received from the Suburban Trust Company, Hyattsville, Maryland and various other depositories where the organization has deposits in savings accounts.

Bonds owned as described in Schedule 4 and Stock Certificate Number 62-245 for 560 shares of Union Labor Life Insurance Company Stock are held for safekeeping in a safe deposit box in the Suburban Trust Company. These securities were verified in the presence of General Secretary-Treasurer Harold Mills on February 6, 1963. We have been advised by the bank that the box has not been entered since that date.

The net assets of your organization have increased from $1,062,612.16 on December 31, 1962 to $1,231,261.99 on December 31, 1963, an increase of $168,649.83 occurring in the various funds as follows:

	NET WORTH DECEMBER 31,		INCREASE OR (DECREASE)
	1963	1962
General Fund	$ 194,661.17	$ 174,387.04	$ 20,274.13
Organizing Fund	81,896.79	60,047.46	21,849.33
Funeral Benefit Fund	219,948.05	152,997.16	66,950.89
Convention Fund	171,667.16	108,352.04	63,315.12
Building Fund	500,397.13	511,566.96	(11,169.83)
Legal Defense Fund	40,489.22	44,234.94	(3,745.72)
Pension Fund	22,202.47	11,026.56	11,175.91
Total	$1,231,261.99	$1,062,612.16	$168,649.83

Inventory values were based on estimated figures determined from your records.

Since the examination was confined to receipts and disbursements, amounts due from local unions or other sources, and any unpaid bills, for services and supplies, were not considered in the compilation of this report.

In our opinion, subject to the above comments the accompanying balance sheet and operating statement present fairly the financial position of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union at December 31, 1963 and the results of its operations for the year then ended on a cash basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Yours very truly,

This is one alternative to the United Nations

The U.N. is not perfect but it is our one best hope. Below are facts about its work that you should know. Read what the U.N. does to help prevent global war.

MANKIND must put an end to war, or war will put an end to mankind," said President Kennedy. "Never have the nations of the world had so much to lose or so much to gain."

Dwight Eisenhower said that the U.N. "has accomplished what no nation—or any limited group of nations—could have accomplished alone."

The U.N. helps put out brush fire wars before they can flare up and consume the world. In the Congo, for example, the U.N. helped restore order, to prevent Russia and other powers from taking over.

The U.N. helps heal colonial conflicts—breeding grounds for war. In Indonesia, Libya, Somalia, Togo and Tanganyika new nations were born and became U.N. members.

The U.N. offers a meeting place for nations. World leaders are "onstage" before the conscience of world opinion.

Behind the scenes, U.N. programs like UNICEF and UNESCO feed, shelter, protect, cure, teach, and inform millions of the world's underprivileged people. The United Nations gets at the roots of war.

The U.N. needs the moral support of every American, not out of fear alone but out of understanding. Express your views about the U.N. to your neighbors, friends, and government representatives. Get the facts. Write to the U.S. Committee for the United Nations, New York 11, for a free copy of "The U.N. in Action."

Time to Square Conduct With Morality and Justice

Following are excerpts from an article by historian Henry Steele Commager, written shortly after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy:

The assassination of President Kennedy, and the killing of the chief suspect, have dramatized for us the lawlessness and violence, the fear and suspicion and hatred which lie so close to the surface of American life.

We had prided ourselves on our unity. We had prided ourselves on having a society that was all but classless, where neither race nor religion nor class nor politics created those deep divisions that afflicted so many countries of the Old World. We awoke to discover that we were in fact filled with racial hatreds, resentments and fears.

We awoke to discover that though we settle our political issues amicably enough, there were large elements of our society which rejected peaceful settlements but chose violence. . . .

We had been proud of our tradition of due process of law, and we discovered, in the last decade or so, that under pressure we too were ready to flout and even to abandon due process; that when those we hated or feared were sufficiently wicked or sufficiently dangerous—we let our traditions go by the board.

It is a shocking and sobering revelation of men's minds unhinged, of men's passions unleashed. How explain our current illness? How explain violence in American life? How explain those deep divisions, those hatreds, those fears and suspicions? How explain the extremist groups, the hate groups and the violence they so readily embrace?

An easy explanation is that we are still so near the frontier, with its tradition of violence; that we are not yet housebroken, as it were. But other peoples, too, are close to the frontier: Canadians and Australians have frontier traditions, but their society is not racked by violence.

Furthermore, the violence of our day differs from that which we associate with the frontier and is not to be explained away by appeal to that tradition. Dallas and Birmingham are scarcely frontier cities; they pride themselves on their sophistication.

The members of the White Citizens Councils, the Birch Society and the Minute Women are for the most part of the middle, even upper-middle, class; they are reasonably well educated and socially respectable. The Universities of Mississippi and Alabama are well removed from the frontier, yet both university communities have provided us with shameful exhibitions of violence against a weaker race.

Race provides the second fairly easy explanation of violence. Slavery, said Jefferson, is a continuous invitation to the most boisterous passions. We have assumed that what was true for slavery remained true for race relations after slavery was a thing of the past; that what was a spurious excuse then becomes an acceptable excuse now.

But other societies have managed to maintain peaceful and harmonious relations among different races: our own society in Hawaii, for example, or the societies of the Latin American countries, or—to take a more recent and more relevant example—Israel.

No, the causes of our sickness are not to be found in the history of the frontier, or even of slavery. They must be sought rather in our society as a whole, not in a particular section or group. All these share in the malaise; all are, in varying degrees, responsible. The explanation is to be found most clearly in the impact of recent history on passions and attitudes deeply ingrained in the American character.

World War II bred violence and lawlessness. It was the first war in which it was taken for granted that civilians were proper targets, just as were the military.

Even after the worst of wars . . . every augury promised the restoration of peace and harmony. Instead, the cold war thrust itself fiercely and implacably across the international horizon. One world became two, and then fragmented into many.

The fury of the cold war, if not more terrible than that of the hot, proved more lasting and more subtly poisonous. There is no purpose now in portioning out the blame for the cold war; there is enough to go around. What is sobering is that hatred of communism and Russia bred suspicion and fear and hatred at home as well.

What is sobering is that the frustrations of international relations were permitted to erupt on the domestic scene. What is sobering is that those whose hatred could not reach the Russians vented that hatred on those they could reach—on fellow Americans who were not sufficiently ostentatious in their own animosities against communism, those who incurred the suspicion of the extreme haters.

As those who would enslave others must first enslave themselves, so those who would hate outsiders find that hatred turns inward and consumes their own society.

The enemies of communism in America felt themselves frustrated and thought it proper to go to any lengths to escape from their frustrations, to ignore due process and violate the rules of fair play and degency in their war on subversion. The antics of a McCarthy, of a Jenner, a Velde, of a hundred state and local anti-American un-American activities committees, all testify to the lengths to which these would go.

But other peoples and nations have been similarly frustrated; how explain the special character of the American frustration and the readiness of so many Americans—even otherwise decent Americans like Sen. Taft—to take advantage of McCarthyism for political purposes? Why is it that we assume that we should be exempt from frustration?

Here we come to something of crucial importance in the American character. In 1821, Chancellor Kent asked, rhetorically, "Are we a peculiar people?" The answer has almost always been yes. We assume that we are in fact a peculiar people, that the rules and principles that apply to other peoples do not apply to us . . . We think that we can bestride the stream of history, that we can indeed command that stream, even when it is swift and turbulent. We think that there is a special destiny for us, special rules, special laws—and special privileges and exemptions as well. We are not subject to the limitations and the frustrations reserved for less fortunate peoples; we are a people apart and a special Providence watches over our destinies. . . .

Of course, in some ways we have been a peculiar people—more successful than others, more fortunate than others. But has this not been in large part a function of the wonderful bounteousness of nature, of isolation, of an empty continent, and should not all this induce humility rather than arrogance and pride?

Thus, out of all this—out of our great good fortune, out of our assumption of a special destiny reserved to us by history and Providence, out of the frustrations of the cold war—came the notion that we had a right to have our way of history and that any failure was to be explained by incompetence or by treason. What other explanation, after all, was possible? And out of this came the habit of violence, the habit of suspicion, the habit of hatred.

If only incompetence or treason could explain failure to have our way of history, then it was right and proper to visit upon incompetence and treason the most extreme fury. Out of this came hatred and violence—hatred of the nonconformist, hatred of the dissenter. Out of this came justification of violence against the "disloyal," the "Subversive." Out of this came the habit of vanity, or arrogance, that thought itself justified in ignoring the ordinary rules of fair play, the rules of law.

Out of all this—the tradition of frontier violence, the special saturation of race relations in the South, the double standard of morality, the assumption that the ordinary rules did not apply to us, that we were exempt from the laws and the processes of history—out of all this has come that bigotry and arrogance and vanity and violence which so deeply shocks us today.

In a simpler day, we could take all this in our stride. We can no longer do so. Now we are a world power; we can no longer indulge ourselves in childish displays of jealousy and violence. Now we act out our destiny on the great stage of history; now history itself glares upon us.

Metal Lath Provides Home Fire Protection

A connecting garage is a great convenience for homeowners; but it can also be a real fire danger. Many fires start in parked cars, usually from a short circuit or from a burning cigarette. If the garage is not fire-insulated from the rest of the house, such a fire can easily destroy the entire home. Many such sad events are recorded each year.

A properly insulated wall, which need be only two-inches thick, can be easily built of metal lath and plaster. Such a wall will give optimum fire protection between garage and house at a minimum of cost and space. An existing wall which is not fire retardant need not be torn down. Instead, it's an easy matter to nail metal lath to each side and plaster over the lath. The result can delay the spread of the fire for hours, making it possible to bring it under control before it spreads into the house.

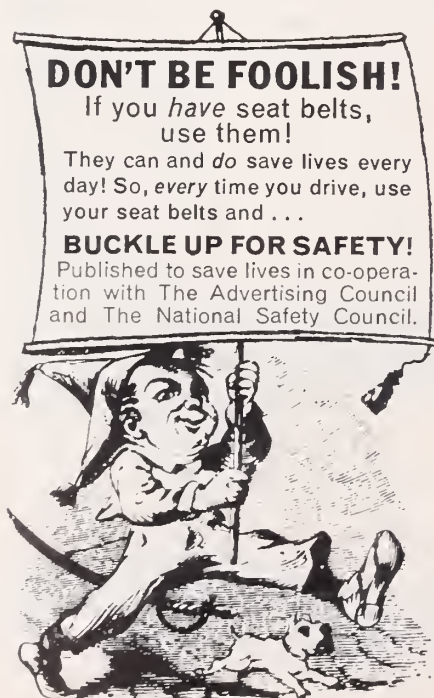

Doors in such a wall should be either all-metal or completely sheathed in metal.

Fire Protection Best With Metal Lath Base

Pound for pound and dollar for dollar, plaster is one of the finest fire resistive materials available. But it will do its job only so long as it stays in place.

The materials which make up plaster expand when heated. Sudden application of heat, as in a fire, will cause plaster to bulge away from the wall or ceiling on which it is used. If the plaster has been applied to a smooth surface, it will be pulled off the back-up material. If non-metallic lath has been used underneath the plaster, the expansion can tear the lath loose. In either case, the plaster falls and its fire protection is lost.

In other words, to receive maximum fire safety from plaster, the proper lath must be used. Metal lath, providing 1000 plaster "keys" in each square foot or area, resists dislodgement of the plaster by expansion from fire. Tests by Underwriters Laboratories and others show that Portland cement and gypsum plaster on metal lath will afford more than one hour of fire protection for structural wood members.

Principal Is Sought by Labour College—Ottawa—The infant Labour College at Montreal—first of its kind in North America—is growing up quickly.

After just one term, the college is seeking a full-time principal—someone familiar with the labour movement, bilingual and with some academic qualifications.

College Registrar Max Swerdlow, education director of the Canadian Labour Congress, says the move to hire a permanent principal is a major step toward the day when the Labour College is established in its own quarters, with a full-time staff and regular facilities.

Mr. Swerdlow said all signs point to another successful year for the new college, which opened for the first time in 1963 with 87 students enrolled for a single seven-week term.

The 1964 classes start May 11 and will run in two eight-week terms. More than 125 students are expected to attend the classes in economics, political science, history, sociology and trade unionism.

About a fifth of the enrollment is expected to come from Commonwealth and Colombo Plan countries, under a new scholarship program launched by the Canadian government as part of Canada's overseas aid schemes.

The government plans to pay the cost of getting the students to Canada, their tuition fees at the Labour College and their expenses in this country.

The Labour College, long a dream of Canadian trade unionists, was launched as a bilingual institution under the joint sponsorship of the CLC, the Confederation of National Trade Unions, McGill University and the University of Montreal.

CLC Plans Campaign for National Pension Plan—OTTAWA (CPA)—The Canadian Labour Congress is planning a month-long campaign during February to foster support for a national pension plan.

The drive—main theme of Citizenship Month among organized labour—will see trade unionists across the country promote the need for a portable, contributory pension plan to augment the $75-a-month old-age pension.

The plan calls for speeches, discussion groups, radio and TV programs, newspaper advertisements, leaflets and posters, a nation-wide pension petition and a deluge of mail for MPs and provincial legislature members—all backing better pensions for Canadians.

"Pensions now represent one of the weakest areas in our social legislation," said CLC President Claude Jodoin.

"There is need for improvement in the basic old-age pensions. At the same time there is need for a broader contributory and portable plan enabling workers to carry benefits from job to job and providing new opportunities for other groups, particularly farmers."

He said the need for portability in pensions is becoming increasingly evident for industrial workers in the face of the sweeping change taking place in industry.

"Job changes inevitably result and in too many cases the equity a worker has in the pension plan of one company is lost when he moves to another company," Mr. Jodoin added.

He said the nation can pay its debt to the past by providing senior citizens with the essentials of a decent standard of living as well as by ensuring future security for all citizens.

"This is not only correct from a moral point of view but it is also a sound economic policy providing for a continuing improvement in the standard of living for all and filling a social security gap."

Mr. Jodoin said the CLC is asking all its affiliated organizations to contribute to the objective of better pensions by supporting the Citizenship Month campaign.

"A detailed program is being mapped out to enlist the co-operation of all sections of our movement. This will include activities by the provincial federations of labor, the local labor councils and individual unions and their locals."

Economic Council To Publish Forecast for Economy—OTTAWA—The Economic Council of Canada has held its first meeting and will give the most attention in 1964 to preparing and publishing an annual review that will forecast so-called medium and long-term prospects and problems for the Canadian economy.

It will meet again in February.

Meanwhile, an executive committee has been formed with council chairman John Deutsch, J. L. E. Couillard, the council vice-Chairman, director Arthur J. R. Smith, President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labour Congress, Roger Charbonneau, Montreal, R. M. Fowler, Montreal, and Secretary-Treasurer David Kirk of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

Twenty-five of the members are part-time and Dr. Deutsch, Mr. Smith and Mr. Couillard are permanent.

It's hoped to get out its first basic report before the end of 1964 and it will borrow trained staff from the federal government to supplement its own small but select staff.

Another development in its first meeting—really a session to get acquainted—was formation of Labor-Management relations committee headed by Mr. Fowler, the Montreal businessman who has been an active royal commission member for years, and Mr. Jodoin.

Others cover productivity, industrial research and technology in both primary and secondary industry and economic growth and problems of adjustment.

Economy plus Quality

Steel stud and metal lath have been used successfully for exterior walls in a precedent-setting building in Minneapolis.

The Provident Mutual Life Insurance building has caught more than passing attention. A Minneapolis newspaper columnist, for instance, noted that it rose on stilts, skipping a floor, wondered if that was to be filled in later, decided it probably wasn't since outside stairs were already being set in place.

All columns were fireproofed as an extra boost to safety of this building.

He was right. This two floors and penthouse office building at 14th & Chicago was designed to rest on stilts to provide for parking underneath the structure.

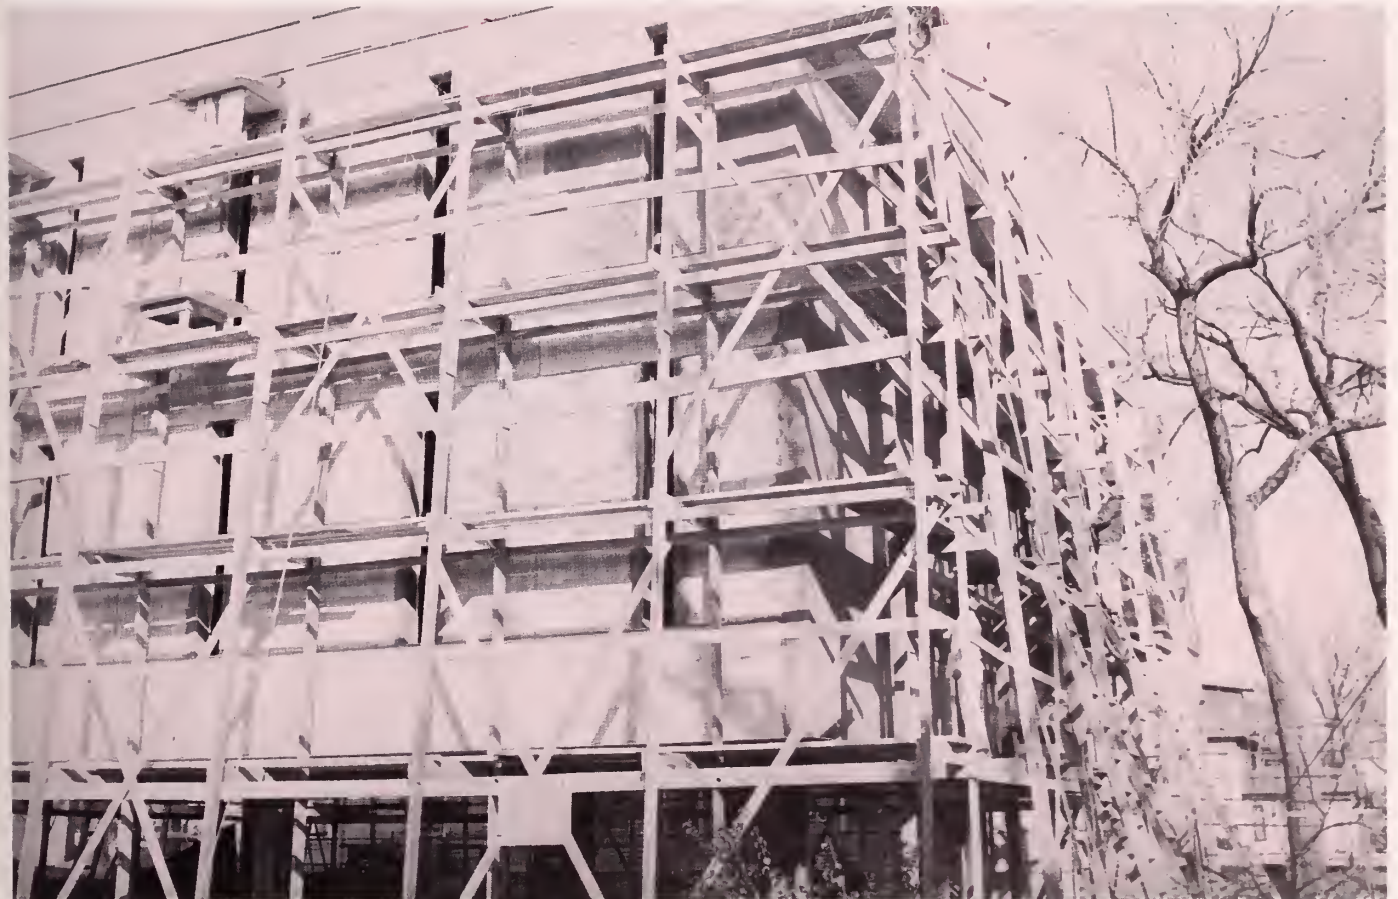

What failed to evoke commentary was the unusual—for this part of the country—procedure for erecting the building. Wheeling steel stud (3¼ inch) was used and a total of 5800 square feet of stucco went over the steel stud and metal lath exterior.

Conroy Brothers, 3306 W. 44th street, Minneapolis, was the lathing and plastering contractor on this job, a job obtained, Joseph Conroy states, due to the economy-plus-quality advantage of steel stud and metal lath.

Lowell Hill was lathing foreman and Dave Goldsmith, plastering foreman.

Outlines are filled in as metal lath is applied over steel studs.

About ready for the wraps to be taken off, new Provident Insurance building looms sturdy and gleaming, attracts more than passing interest with its up-on-stilts feature which provides underneath parking.

SETH LUTHER — "TRAVELING AGENT"

Among the unsung heroes of American labor are the early "traveling agents" who went about the countryside speaking and bringing the word about organization benefits to the working people. One such agent was Seth Luther, a lanky Yankee of the pre-Civil War days, forerunner of the agitators of a later day. This tobacco-chewing, green-coated itinerant called upon labor to defend its rights, saying, "You cannot raise one part of the community above another unless you stand on the bodies of the poor." He spoke constantly and issued a stream of pamphlets designed to propagandize for the cause of unionization. The names of this legion of "educators" are lost in history but the contributions they made should not be forgotten as a great and continuing landmark of labor.

COLLEGE IS AMERICA'S BEST FRIEND

Every American should give special thought to the college problem. Not because alumni of higher institutions can solve all of our country's difficulties but because they, by and large, produce most of America's leaders.

We need this well-trained leadership for ideas, for imagination, for clear vision, for creative solutions. This is what it will take to hold our place in science and development, business, jobs and living standards, in human progress and the paths of peace.

But higher education is facing a crisis—colleges are in a squeeze. Some face shortages. The growing number of applicants is staggering. If we are serious about remaining ahead, we must be equally serious about seeing that our colleges have enough classrooms, lab facilities and competent teachers.

College is America's best friend—give to the college of your choice.

If you want to know what the college dilemma means to you, write for a free booklet to: HIGHER EDUCATION, Box 36, Times Square Station, New York 36, N.Y.

How you and Uncle Sam can help guarantee their future

The bigger your family, the more important it is that you establish a regular savings plan for education costs, weddings, clothing, camp, and the host of other things it takes to give kids a comfortable start.

But with the way things are today, is money all they need for a secure future?

The answer to that question is why millions of American families own Savings Bonds today. Their Bond dollars help keep our economy sound, and help Uncle Sam keep the future free so that your youngsters will have the same opportunities you had.

Add your strength to America today. Ask your banker about a regular Savings Bond purchase plan. Or buy them on the Payroll Savings Plan where you work — the easiest way in the world to make your future more secure.

Can money assure their freedom? You can't buy freedom at any price, but you can help preserve it by buying and holding U.S. Savings Bonds.

Nice to hold. Because Savings Bonds grow $33\frac{1}{3}\%$ bigger at maturity, most Americans hold them for long-range goals. But you can cash in your Bonds anytime you need the money.

This man has no regard for individual freedom. Part of our answer to him lies in keeping financially strong as individuals — and as a nation.

Five personal benefits you get from U.S. Savings Bonds:

1. Your investment is guaranteed safe by the U.S. Government •
2. Your Bonds are replaced free if anything happens to them •
3. You can get your money whenever you need it •
4. You can save automatically where you work •
5. You get $4 back for every $3 when your Bonds mature.

Keep' freedom in your future with
U. S. SAVINGS BONDS

Report from the

GENERAL PRESIDENT

BY this time you have no doubt read the Minutes of the Executive Council Meeting, held February 3-7, 1964, Bal Harbour, Florida, which were published in the February issue of "The Lather". I believe they are, for the most part, self-explanatory; however, there are a few points the I would like to elaborate on at this time.

In reference to Case No. 2 "Suggested Changes requested by CPLIA Employer Committee".—We are in the process of re-writing the "Sample Agreement" to conform with the approved changes, and as soon as possible a copy will be sent to all Local Unions for their guidance in negotiations.

In reference to Case No. 23. "Ceiling System, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and the L.I.U."—A Meeting of the Committees from the Lathers and the Carpenters was held at the Hamilton Hotel, 14th and K Streets, N.W., Washington, D. C. on Tuesday, March 10, 1964.

In regard to this meeting the following telegram was received from Stan Arnold, Vice-President, Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union, and Chairman of the Lathers Committee: "Due to the rescheduling of the Hearings requiring my testimony before the Michigan Legislature on unemployment compensation that will have the vital effect on Building Tradesmen of this State I will not be able to attend the meetings of the Lathers and Carpenters Committees as originally planned. Meeting should continue as scheduled and future meeting dates set if necessary. /s/Stan Arnold Vice-President."

The following is an exact typewritten copy of the Report of the Committee of the Lathers: submitted to me Wednesday, AM, by Brother Harold Mills, Committee Member and Brother Clarence Gariss, Committee Member.

REPORT OF LATHERS' COMMITTEE IN REFERENCE TO MEETING WITH CARPENTERS MARCH 10, 1964

The telegram from Stan Arnold in reference to his being unable to attend because of unemployment compensation hearings being rescheduled was read to the committee members present.

The first question asked by the Carpenters' Committee was who was going to administer the June 10th Ceiling Agreement for the Lathers', and they were advised that the administration of this agreement would be handled by General President Maso. We were asked what the position of the General President was going to be in reference to administering the June 10th Agreement, and we advised the Carpenters' Committee that he had not taken any official action as yet, and we did not know what his position would be in reference to the administration of this agreement.

The Carpenters' Committee were reluctant to discuss anything further until they found out what was going to be done with the enforcement of the Ceiling Agreement.

The Carpenters' Committee does not accept the 1903 Agreement as including the present day stud systems. The position of our Committee was that the 1903 Agreement gave all steel studs to the Lathers'.

After an all day discussion in reference to these matters, it was agreed that a meeting should be arranged by the Chairman of the two Committees at a later date when both Committees could have a full attendance.

/s/ Harold Mills

/s/ Clarence B. Gariss

Following our Executive Council Meeting, there was a meeting of the General Presidents of the National and International Unions affiliated with the Building and Construction Trades Department held February 11, 1964, which I attended.

Of course, a number of subjects were discussed, but one which I feel is of special interest is in respect to the Procedural Rules, or any other document pertaining to the National Joint Board. A motion was duly adopted to delete the words "Area Practice" wherever they appear in the abovementioned documents.

The action is in accord with the language and intention of the Agreement between the Building and Construction Trades Department, the Participating Specialty Contractors Employers' Association and the Associated General Contractors of America, Inc., which is known as the "Plan for Settling Jurisdictional Disputes Nationally and Locally".

Under date of February 19, 1964, C. J. Haggerty, President of the Building and Construction Trades Department directed a letter to Mr. William J. Cour, Chairman, National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes, requesting that "full force and effect be given to this motion of the General Presidents of February 11, 1964, upon receipt of notice of such motion which is afforded by this letter."

While on the subject of the National Joint Board and Jurisdictional Disputes, I would like to inform you further and also ask your attention and cooperation when submitting existing jurisdictional disputes, on which you wish the assistance from your International Representative or on which you wish a request for a decision submitted to the National Joint Board.

Before I may ask a President from another International Union to assign an International Representative to meet with our International Representative to investigate and attempt to adjust a dispute, I must have certain information, such as (1) Complete name and address of the project or job, (2) Full names and addresses of Contractor and/or Subcontractor, (3) Other trade, or trades, involved in dispute, and most important, (4) Complete description of the work involved in the dispute.

We have forms for your use in submitting jurisdictional disputes to Headquarters when you wish to request a decision from the National Joint Board. In several instances we have filed for a decision and found out later that our local unions had not applied the proper procedures, such as (1) Contractor or Subcontractor not properly notified of existing dispute, (2) No attempt made to settle the dispute on the local level, (3) Incorrect description of work involved in dispute, (4) Insufficient names and addresses of either the project or the Contractor or Subcontractor. Any of these points tend to delay a decision being rendered.

Another very important point is, at any time there is a dispute, regardless of which trade is assigned the particular work in dispute, whether it is our members or the other trade or trades, I should be kept fully informed of the progress of the job. If the job is completed prior to the case being presented to the National Joint Board or if it is within a few days of being completed, there is no need for such case to be presented to, or acted upon by the National Joint Board.

All of these points are extremely important in processing cases, therefore, I urge you to keep me fully informed regarding the status of any job where a dispute exists, and I reiterate, whether our members are performing the work or it is being performed by another trade.

While I was in Miami attending the various meetings, I met with Representatives of the Florida State Council of Lathers regarding our industry and work being performed in the Bahamas. I immediately followed this up by having Louis Wilderman, our General Counsel, investigate this matter and report to me thereon. I have submitted his full report to all local unions in the State of Florida and to the State and District Councils in Florida for their study and comments. I suggested to them that a special meeting be called to present all the facts contained in this report for discussion after which they should forward to me a full report in order that I may make a final determination. I believe this is the only way a proper determination can be concluded since wage rates, dues, working dues and fringe benefits will all be affected should we extend jurisdiction into the Bahamas. From the report it appears the potential for members in that area is tremendous. I am quite interested and excited with this enterprise and I shall keep you informed of the progress made and of my final determination. Although this actually affects only the State of Florida, I feel it is the concern of all of our members.

It is most important that you pay special attention to page 1 of this month's Journal. Listed on page 1 are the International Representatives, their addresses and telephone numbers. There are several changes in the Representatives and the Regions have been renumbered. I have made certain changes in the regions. Also you should check very carefully to determine which region your local union is in and the International Representative who is servicing your local union. It is necessary for you to be fully aware of this, since I am changing the procedure for requesting the services of an International Representative. I had previously asked that you make all requests for the services of an International Representative direct to me. However, in the future you should contact direct the International Representative servicing your region, who, in turn, will render the service desired and make a report to me. I am sure this will expedite resolving certain matters, since in many instances time is of the essence. However, I would like to remind you when contacting your International Representative, you should have available for him all information possible pertaining to the matter on which you are seeking assistance. In this way you help him to reach a determination much quicker, or when necessary for him to consult with me, he will have all pertinent information which tends to hasten the conclusion of your problems.

You will also note that three Deputy International Representatives have been appointed; Larry Nakayama to service the State of Hawaii, W. J. Turner to service the State of Alaska, and Clarence B. Gariss, for special assignments in Region No. 2. Under the new regional set-up and with the addition of the Deputy International Representatives for Alaska and Hawaii (which heretofore were not assigned an International Representative), every State, thus every local union, has at their service an International Representative. As of this writing, Brothers Turner and Gariss have acknowledged receipt of and accepted in writing their appointments. . . . I have not received any communication from Brother Nakayama, but sincerely hope to hear from him soon and I also hope he will accept the appointment.

As Deputy International Representatives, these Brothers will be available for special assignments authorized by myself. When serving in this capacity on special assignments, they will be paid by the International Union for the actual time involved, based on the salary and expenses for International Representatives set forth in the LIU Constitution, Section 81, page 30.

I would also like to remind each and every local union when negotiating your Agreements to make every effort to have the Pension Plan contained therein. I shall not elaborate on the benefits of the Plan since I am sure you are all familiar with them, but I do urge you to do everything possible to see that the members of your Local Union can look forward to financial security in their retiring years. I might also add that benefits of this type are extremely conducive in attracting new members and apprentices, and in retaining present members, which is just as important. Should you desire any information on the Pension Plan, do not hesitate to request it. If it is not available at Headquarters, you may be assured that I will see that it is made available through the proper source.

I again urge you to be sure to have the Apprenticeship Plan included in your agreements.

Both the Pension Plan and the Apprenticeship Plan are, you might say, in their infancy, but they are both so vitally important to our members and industry, they cannot be stressed too much. Again I will say, if I can be of assistance to you in this or any other matter, please let me know. . . . the growth and future success of our members and the International Union and our Industry is my primary concern and I will assert myself in every way possible to further it.

In closing I want to thank each and every one of you for the cooperation you have given me in every respect, and say to you . . . keep up the good work . . . because in so doing, success will be our reward.

Fraternally yours,

Sal Maso

Versatility and Economy Keynote Design

A gallery or porch is shaded by the overhanging of dome.

The suburban split level may soon be replaced by a structure of paraboloid design that will give the home buyer of the future a great many more square feet of living space at a lower cost. At the same time, the structure will have outstanding rigidity, durability, low cost maintenance and high fire resistance that is possible economically with portland cement plaster and metal lath serving as a form and reinforcement.

An architect and an engineer set out to design a low cost house for underdeveloped areas abroad, and for low cost housing in this country. They took as their goal the perfection of a construction technique which would bring thin shell construction down to the economic level of conventionally designed residential structures, while creating an edifice that would be both practical and attractive.

During the final design phases, they began to suspect that this goal had been reached and passed. Construction of a prototype proved that they had developed a structural design and construction technique that was economical, quick to erect and so versatile and attractive that people of means were drawn to it.

Responsible for this development are Richard A. Rose, a Miami Fla., architect and Bertram S. Warshaw, a consulting engineer of Coral Gables. Their approach was predicted, for the most part, on Mr. Rose's previous experiences on similar projects in South America.

The erection of thin-shell concrete structures has generally called for the creation of often-expensive falsework. But by the technique developed by Messrs. Rose and Warshaw—and for which they have applied for a patent—the shell was erected without the use of forms, shoring or other external means of support. Two men built the foundation in one day, two men erected the steel in one day and three men applied the portland cement plaster to the dome and placed the concrete for the floor slab in two days. The dome was water cured for 72 hours.

The framework and portland cement plaster backing was constructed of arched prefabricated, steel-bar trusses, 1 in. sq. steel tube arches, reinforcing bars and $\frac{3}{8}$ in. rib metal lath. To this portland cement plaster was machine applied, both from above and below, for a total thickness of $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches. A waterproofing compound was added to the plaster mix. However, the designers consider that it may be advisable to consider the use of plastic membrane to insure against possible leakage.

The dome stands on pyramidal piers located 12 in. to 15 in. below ground level in a rock stratum to form a 34 ft. square. The concrete piers are tied to the concrete floor slab to resist thrust. The floor slab of the prototype structure is 27 ft. square, providing a 5 ft. 6 in. ceiling height at each corner. On the basis of this 729 sq. ft. of usable floor area, the erection cost of dome and slab was $2.32 per sq. ft., a figure which would be reduced to $1.50 per sq. ft. if the total 34 ft. sq. area under the dome were considered.

Construction is based on metal lath, steel framing and portland cement.

In fact, says Mr. Warshaw, "the shell could be placed on taller pyramids or columns. This could increase the usable floor area and thus cause the $2.32 figure to approach the $1.50 figure." It has also been pointed out that extension of the slab to the full rectangular dimensions of the foundation columns could provide usable floor space beneath the arches and storage space at the corners beneath the legs of the dome; this, too, would reduce the per square foot cost of usable floor space. Any of these extensions could provide a usable protected gallery 3 ft. 7" wide beneath each arch.

These cost figures do not include exterior walls, finished floor, electrical and plumbing installation.

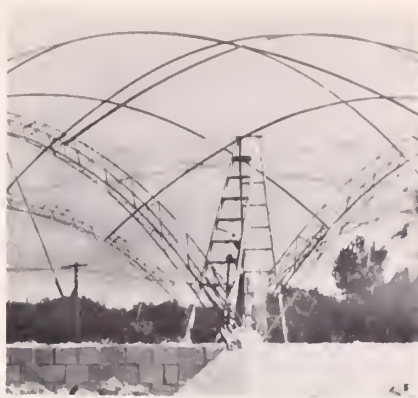

Calculable usable floor space could be increased, within the present dimensions of slab and dome, through the creation of a mezzanine over the central bath and kitchen core. Here, in an area 9 ft. sq., the ceiling height, from slab to dome, varies from 13 ft. 4 in. at center to 13 ft. 0 in. at its perimeter. The insertion of clerestory windows in the structural design, and the placement of beds along the walls could add a sleeping room.

The rigidity of the reinforcing bars, rib metal lath and portland cement plaster is such that, after a 28-day curing period, a sturdy dome had been completed and the plaster had attained a strength of 4,000 psi. It was designed for a 50-psf vertical live load and a 50-psf horizontal wind load.

Based on a 1 in. portland cement plaster coverage over the reinforcing steel in roof construction, the designers estimate that the structure has a high resistance fire rating. Thermal insulating values, they say, will change according to the type of aggregate used. The shell which has been constructed has a "k" factor of 9.0. Using lightweight aggregates, a "k" factor as low as 5.0 may be obtained.

Portland cement plaster was sprayed to the underside of the metal lath. There were no noticeable sound reverberations within the finished dome, say the designers; however, they believe that acoustical and insulating plaster, sprayed to the underside of the dome will reduce reverberations within a room and at the same time serve as thermal insulation.

Asked about the possibility of expanding the dimensions of a structure of this design, Mr. Warshaw pointed out that limiting spans would be the same as for any type of shell construction. In this connection, he alluded to a triangular hyperbolic paraboloid

Pyramidal piers, designed to suit local conditions, support steel-bar space trusses, to which have been affixed 1 in. square steel tube arches. The pyramidal piers are anchored to the concrete floor slab in order to resist thrust of the dome.

Lathers wire-tied $\frac{3}{8}$ in. rib metal lath to the trusses and the square steel tube arches to provide form and reinforcement for the portland cement plaster, eliminating the need for often-expensive falsework.

in France which is 720 ft. on a side.

Asked, on the basis of his experience to evaluate the newly developed metal truss, reinforcing rod, metal lath and portland cement plaster thin shell structure, Mr. Warshaw replied that he considers that "this type of construction is superior to the traditional forms of residential construction. It offers all the advantages which reinforced concrete possesses as to strength and durability. By this method, a dome shape could be placed on three pendentives. This would minimize the possibility of structural distress in cases of differential settlement.

"With the exception of minor flexural stresses at the heavily reinforced boundaries, the entire shell is in membrane compression induced by the predominating gravity loads. While changes in temperature will alter the intensity of these compressive stresses there is little likelihood of a stress reversal, therefore the shell is practically unaffected.

"Almost any shape shell has a greater capacity to resist lateral forces than the more conventional 'cracker-box' type of structure. The major problem is in the uplift forces. This can be solved in one of two ways: The mullions of the exterior walls can serve as tie downs, as was done in the existing house, or the foundation can contain enough mass concrete to provide a 'dead load' safety factor against uplift."

Though designed originally with low-cost housing in mind, the public response to the reinforcing rod, metal lath and portland cement plaster thin shell house on Tavernier Key, one of the keys off the southern tip of Florida, has been overwhelming, report the designers. "People are interested in it as a week-end cottage; young couples have been fascinated by the idea of starting out with one shell and adding other shells as the family grows; visitors from all over the country have inquired as to whether these could be built in their locale—and we feel that it is suited to the frigid as well as to the warm climates; a missionary from Africa wants to know if it can be built there; a developer in Jamaica is in contact with us.

"The method of design and of construction economically with reinforcing rods, metal lath and portland cement plaster may be adapted to shells of virtually any shape or size; to motels; restaurants, shopping centers, industrial buildings, banks, or suburban buildings, to name a few."

Report from the

GENERAL SECRETARY-TREASURER

I HAVE received notice from the Bureau of Labor Management Reports Division of the U. S. Department of Labor to the effect that some of our Local Unions, and Councils have either failed to file the necessary LM forms or they have filed these forms, and the information in reference to the filing has been mislaid.

We have written each of these organizations, and will do whatever we can to help them file the proper forms.

From the communications that I have received from some of our organizations that I have notified of this, I find that they for some reason or other have not received the necessary forms. I have been given a supply of these forms by the Department of Labor, and if any of our organizations do not receive the necessary forms, I will be pleased to forward the necessary forms to them.

Any information I receive from our Local Unions in reference to their filing of these forms, I will forward to the Labor Department.

The Bureau of Labor Management Reports has been lenient with us as long as we have attempted to correct any irregularities that have been drawn to our attention, and with your cooperation we can maintain this relationship with the Labor Department.

In last month's Lather I advised Council Secretaries or other officers that we had in the past advised our Councils that they did not have to file LM forms, but are now advised by the Labor Department that this is not true, and that the Councils must file the forms the same as the Local Unions, as the Labor Department does not consider our Councils central bodies within the meaning of the law.

We have received the voluntary contribution booklets for the 1964 contributions to the Committee on Political Education for the AFL-CIO.

In the very near future we will be forwarding these booklets to each local, and council, and it is our hope that the membership will get behind this voluntary $1 contribution for COPE in order that there may be the necessary money available to help elect the people who are going to represent the labor movement, and the general public best. This job cannot be done without the money, and this $1 voluntary contribution will undoubtedly be the best investment that you will ever make in your future.

Please make the COPE contributions from the membership of the L.I.U. more than reach the quota set for the L.I.U. by the AFL-CIO.

The Union Label and Service Trades' Department is making a special appeal to all union members to make every effort to have all of their purchases be purchases of union made products. By buying union made products you are helping to maintain a standard of living that has taken the union movement many years to attain. Please protect yourselves, and others by buying union, and being union.

Ronald "Curly" Benner

Welfare of Labor Is His Life

The number of construction workers in Ventura County has doubled in the past five years. And someone has to look out for their welfare.

The future of some 12 to 15 thousand workers—the number keeps growing—is guided by Ronald "Curly" Benner, a big man in organized labor.

He stands six foot three and weighs 250 pounds.

He "coordinates" the activities of the AFL-CIO unions involved in construction work as executive secretary and business manager of the Ventura County Building and Construction Trades Council. He's had the job since 1952.

Ventura is "a good organized county as far as labor is concerned" according to Benner. The county's rapid growth means a steady increase in building—highways, factories, offices, homes. He said the figures at the end of August showed $108 million worth of building permits were issued.

Benner is immersed in labor activities, and has no time for social activities. He holds an executive position with many building trades labor organizations in California.

He was president of the Ventura Central Labor Council (AFL-CIO) from 1956-59, being re-elected to three one-year terms. He is an executive board member of the State Building and Construction Trades Council, representing the district comprising Ventura, Santa Barbara, and San Luis Obispo Counties.

He is vice president of the California State Council of Lathers and secretary of the Southern California District Council of Lathers.

Part of Benner's job is to "educate" the political thinking of union members. As secretary of labor's Council On Political Education (COPE) in Ventura County, Benner's aim is to "attempt to educate our members in political matters and on candidates and issues. We discuss a candidate's voting record, his attitudes toward workers' problems."

"Legislation doesn't benefit only organized labor," Benner believes, "it benefits all working people."

A member of a Democratic Club, Benner believes the voting in the county will change as soon as voters stop "voting for a candidate because he was a schoolmate."

He's strongly against the controversial bracero bill now under scrutiny in Congress and believes "there's enough unemployment in Ventura to handle it (farm labor) if a living wage was paid."

(At the same time, he says there's a bigger problem finding people for existing jobs in Ventura.)

"We hope to be a part of unionizing farm labor," the labor leader continues. "The people who need help in the country are the farmers, so we'll all be there when it starts." A farm labor union would become part of the Central Labor Council.

Curly Benner came up through the ranks. Following in his father's footsteps, he started as a lather in 1923 and has been involved in some phase of construction work ever since.

He was born 55 years ago in Baltimore, grew up and went through high school in Philadelphia. He enlisted in the Seabees in 1942, served in the Aleutian Islands, and was discharged, in 1945, at Port Hueneme. He met his wife, Mary, an Ojai girl, married in 1945 and settled in Ventura. They have lived for the past eight years in a modest home at 2463 Pierpont Blvd.

The family includes Mary's daughter, Barbara Verstrate, 20, their son, Ronald Jr., 17, a senior at Ventura High School, and a friendly miniature dachshund whose pedigree reads Tinkleheimer Tosci and who answers to "Tinkle."

A soft-spoken man when at ease, Benner spends his few leisure hours watching sports events on television, assembling a stereo set, and listening to music on his tape recorder. "Curly" Benner admits he's "not a long hair" and relaxes listening to Gershwin.

Benner is currently a member of the fact-finding committee appointed by the County Board of Supervisors to study the problem of discrimination in employment and housing. He also served as vice foreman on the Ventura County Grand Jury in 1959 and in 1961.

Benner foresees continued growth in construction in the county. In Ventura, he predicts the business center will shortly be centered in the east end and Main Street will decline. He pictures more and more apartment buildings going up all over the county.

Continued growth means more building, which of course means more construction workers.

And labor leader "Curly" Benner, whose "status symbol" is an ulcer, will be busier than ever.

of steel ribs, diamond mesh metal lath and plaster.

In order to emphasize the display of the Xerox products and services, Eliot Noyes & Associates, New Canaan, Connecticut, architects, decided upon a series of island display areas in which products can be featured. Three island displays were created, utilizing dropped ceilings and raised floors, and set at right angles to the length of the showroom. Each island, 1 ft. 5 in. above floor, is 18 ft. wide and 36 ft. long, and has 13 ft. 0 in. of ceiling height. Down lights, to accent displays, are mounted in the soffit of each cloud, which is an inverted repetition of the island form.

Passageways between islands are 4 ft. wide. While dramatic high intensity illumination is concentrated on the display models, down lights set into the suspended metal lath ceilings provide lighting or supplementary displays and furniture appointments remote from the display islands.

MLA Names Officers for 1964

San Diego, January 16—Gordon W. Matthews, general manager of sales, Commodity Division, Inland Steel Products Company, Milwaukee, was re-elected president of the Metal Lath Association, which represents all thirteen domestic producers of metal lath and metal plastering accessories, at the Association's annual meeting, here, today.

Re-elected vice president was Julian D. Waxman, president, the Goldsmith Metal Lath Company, Cincinnati.

Re-named to the executive committee of the Association were F. M. Bell, merchandising manager, Mason Supply Department, U. S. Gypsum Company, Chicago; H. B. Brown, vice president-sales, Alabama Metal Industries Corporation, Birmingham; and G. J. Casey, sales manager of Metal Lath Merchant Builder Department, Manufacturing Division, Republic Steel Corporation, Youngstown, Ohio.

Mr. Bell was re-named chairman of the Promotional Committee. John R. Dewey, product manager of Metal

Lath Products, Inland Steel Products Company, was re-named chairman of the Technical Committee.

The Association's programs of product testing and development were broadened; the programs of supplying technical information to architects and builders and the reporting of outstanding uses of metal lath were reported upon and plans for the coming year were firmed up.

The Metal Lath Association has as its members all of the domestic manufacturers of the various types of metal lath; included in the production of many of these companies are prefabricated metal studs and channel upon which metal lath is mounted, prior to application of gypsum or portland cement plaster, as well as the various metal accessories for providing a finished wall. Richard N. Parker is managing director of the Association, which has its headquarters in Cleveland.

contractor Jeremiah Burns wire-tied channels in preparation for the installation of 3.4 lb. diamond mesh metal lath, to provide a rigid base of the desired shape for plaster. Vertical corners were finished with corner bead for durability, and to aid in the creation of true planes of plaster.

To complete the desired shapes and enclosures, three coats of plaster were applied to vertical and horizontal surfaces by plastering contractor Morell-Brown, Inc. Of these, the final coat for the islands was a white, hard coat; while the final coat of the clouds was sprayed and troweled acoustic plaster. The metal lath which covered the inside faces of the display islands and the radius between these faces and the floor received the same poured in place terrazzo as did the adjacent floor.

In order to provide air supply and return plenums, concealed faces of curved and vertical sections of furring between display areas and ceiling and floor were also covered with metal lath and plaster.

Suspended ceilings of metal lath and plaster were installed over the main body of the showroom. Using the same materials, circular enclosures were formed for structural columns.

The new showroom is situated in the Sperry Rand Building which is owned by Uris Buildings Corporation and Rockefeller Center, Inc. Uris was the builder and performed as contractor for Eliot Noyes & Associates in constructing the Xerox showroom.

A Series of three island display areas, utilizing dropped ceilings and raised floors form dramatic settings for products and services.

Gold Trowel Award Given by Indianapolis Bureau

The Lathing and Plastering Bureau of Indianapolis, Inc., established in 1955 as a non-profit organization solely for the promotion of the use of Lath and Plaster, presented to Richard K. Lennox, an Indianapolis Architect, its Gold Trowel Award for the best use of Lath and Plaster in design. Accompanying the Trophy is also a $300.00 cash award.

The firm of Lennox, Matthews, Simmons and Ford, Inc., Architects and Engineers, entered a well designed structure of Stucco Exterior and Gypsum Plaster interior on metal lath and steel studs throughout. The design was the work of the son of the firm member Richard C. Lennox. The entry, Cadle Chapel, caught the eye of the Board of Judges and was awarded 1st Prize. The judges were appointed by the Indiana Society and the 3rd judge was Chicago Lathing Foundation's Robert Georgine. Judging was done physically at the building sites by the three judges.

The Gold Trowel Award Competition was held for the Fifth year and drew a fine entry list and was again enthusiastically received by the Architects, Engineers and Draftsmen competing for the awards.

The Awards were presented at the Ninth Annual Dinner and Award Meeting, given for the Architects and Engineers of Indianapolis and Vicinity, 169 people were in attendance. Two Merit Awards were also awarded by the Board of Judges: One Merit Award to Evans Woollen III for his entry of Clowes Memorial Hall and one Merit Award to the firm of Mc-Guire, Shook, Compton and Richey, Inc., for the entry of Indiana Teachers Retirement Residence.

Serving as President of the Local Bureau is Robert F. Bowman, a plasterer; as its Vice-President, Stanley L. Smith a Lathing and Plastering Contractor; as its Secretary-Treasurer, George L. Rickey also a Lathing and Plastering Contractor and as its Business representative, Walter J. Strough, a lather, making a well rounded organization, even among its officers.

Mr. Arthur McCann represented the lathers International. Also sending representatives were the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association; the Plasterers International Union and the Lathing Foundation of Chicago. Guest speaker was Richard N. Parker of the MLA.

Seminar Center Design Created With Metal Lath

The beautiful AT&T Seminar Center, on the 39th floor of the United of America Building, Chicago, was designed and built within five months. It is an excellent example of how metal lath and plaster can create flowing curves and interesting designs as well as being economical, fire resistant, and practical.

Becker and Becker Associates, designers for this center, stated that metal lath and plaster were chosen in order to properly form the required smooth, monolithic, rigid, curved surfaces. This was highly important in regard to the 36-foot sweep of curved metal lath and plaster partition which was designed to serve as a wide-angle projection screen. Any deviation from the true-plane in perfect radius would have impaired the projected image. Consultants advised that for this "critical viewing situation"—with viewing distances ranging from only 14 to 28 feet—a sharp screen image would have to be created. This could best be attained, they recommended, through projection at high levels of brilliance onto a perfect surface. Regarding the success of the execution of this design, it is sufficient to say that both Becker and Becker and AT&T are extremely pleased with the lathing and plastering work, and consider it a fine piece of craftsmanship.

The lathing contractor commented that the compound curve relationship between the wide-angle screen and the ceiling made this job a great challenge. On the basis of comments from the designers, the finished job must also be a great satisfaction.

The most spectacular part of this Seminar Center is the auditorium which is created of numerous curved surfaces. It is designed for meetings of select management groups and has a seating capacity of 25.

The lounge areas, library, and director's office of the AT&T Seminar Center were designed with an unusual ceiling treatment having a sloped edge which accommodates space for air-conditioning duct work. A continuous linear diffuser is incorporated at the bottom edge around the entire perimeter of the ceiling.

These pictures have been sent to us by Raymond Wetzel, Detroit, Michigan, and the following are his comments in reference to them: "In the days when these pictures were taken there weren't very many people who had cameras, still there were quite a number of pictures taken, as those with cameras made trips to the houses and flats under construction, and for 50 cents or $1 a person could get a few photos. It is possible that most of the boys mislaid the photos taken in those days, but at the same time, we kept ours were the fundamentals of our organization, although wood lath is nonexistent today, the light iron furring is a leading material.

1964 World's Fair

Participation in a world's fair is perhaps one of the greatest promotional opportunities an exhibitor may ever have. Accordingly, each exhibitor seeks a structural design that is eye-catching, and yet is universal in concept, that appeals to all nationalities and that is of interest to visitors of all ages. The results are often attention-arresting structures that exert a great influence on the future designing of residential and commercial buildings.

Notably, the execution of much of the advance designing of outstanding buildings at the New York World's Fair depends upon metal lath, a time-tested building material that was invented 125 years ago. The Coca-Cola Company's "World of Refreshment" and the General Motors' "Futurama" are significant examples of such designing. Judging from the influence these and other structures of advanced design at the Fair will have, metal lath will be one of the important building materials of tomorrow.

"Futurama"

Designed to depict "what man may accomplish if his will be equal to his needs," the General Motors' "Futurama" at the New York World's Fair of 1964-65, is a nearly three-acre building that appears to float above its 8½ acre site. Designed by the GM Styling Staff, the building expresses the forward-thinking spirit and will house exhibits that are both entertaining and informative. Metal lath and plaster were specified for membrane fireproofing of certain structural elements, for the creation of architectural and exhibition designs and for various ceilings throughout the Futurama.

The Futurama is composed of three principal parts which are an entrance screen, a rectangular Exhibit Building and a circular Products Plaza.

The entrance screen is a cantilevered canopy with spars which rises ten stories above the entrance. At its base metal lath was used to form the curved shape of the entrance soffit. Set in an arc of 236 feet, the canopy extends 85 feet out over the main entrance mall and adjacent reflecting pools.

The rectangular Exhibit Building section is 360 by 180 feet. The 15-minute Futurama Ride through what may be the world of tomorrow, and a depiction of pure and applied research, will be located in this area.

The circular Products Plaza stands some 70 feet high and is topped by a rotating time-and-temperature indicator. GM cars and other products will be displayed there.

Sol King is the architect and Albert Kahn Associated Architects and Engineers, Inc., are the consultants. Both are from Detroit. The Lathing contractor is William J. Scully, Inc., and the plastering contractor is E. B. Carley Company, Inc., both of New York City.

"World of Refreshment"

Surrounded by a reflecting pool,

the ellipse-shaped Coea-Cola Company exhibit faces inwardly to a courtyard, in the center of which stands a carillon tower known as The Coea-Cola Tower. Its beautiful exterior walls are of 3.4 lb. diamond mesh metal lath and World's Fair white stucco, overlaid with gold-colored screens and highlighted by soaring slender white arches.

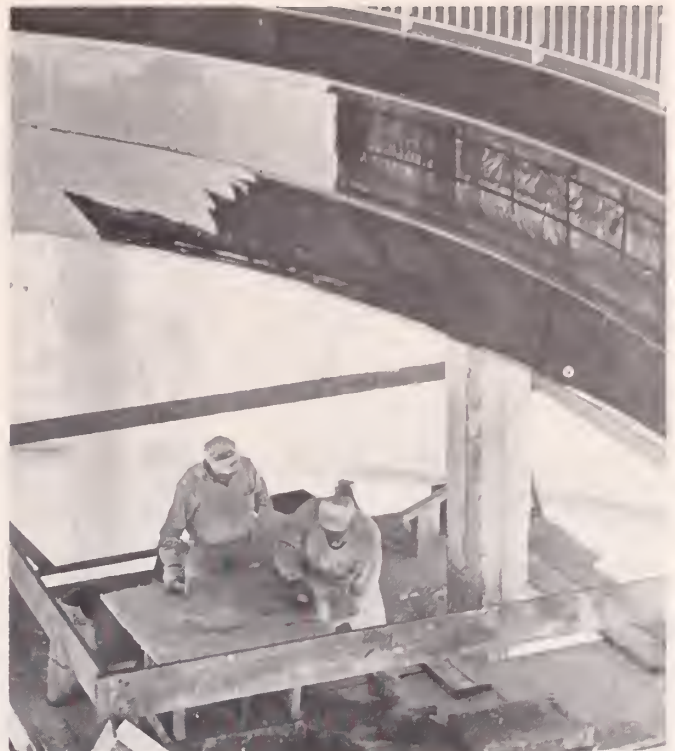

The exhibit will feature a communications center for use by the American Radio Relay League, and a 17-minute visual "trip" around the world. Many of the exhibit's interior walls and ceilings are formed with metal lath and plaster as are the six domes that will display three dimensional scenes from countries in which Coea-Cola is consumed. The Coea-Cola Company people will recreate a busy Hong Kong street, a Bavarian ski lodge and New Orleans at Mardi Gras time by invoking the senses of sight, smell, touch, taste and hearing.

The Coea-Cola Tower is located in the inner court, and rises 120 feet. At its base is a console room which has a circular canopy roof ceiling. This ceiling is of 3.4 metal lath and plaster and is partly interior and exterior. This tower will be the musical voice at the Fair, and will present a wide variety of programs that will range from a full symphony to rock and roll music for the enjoyment of all ages.

A center column extends from the first floor to the roof of the Products Plaza. This column closure, which fans out to form a lighting troffer, is created of 3.4 lb. diamond mesh metal lath.

The between-floors fascia of the open center portion of the Products Plaza section is created of furring, metal lath and plaster. Structural steel columns of the building are membrane fireproofed and finished with furring, rib metal lath and plaster, creating symmetrical shapes.

Tomorrow

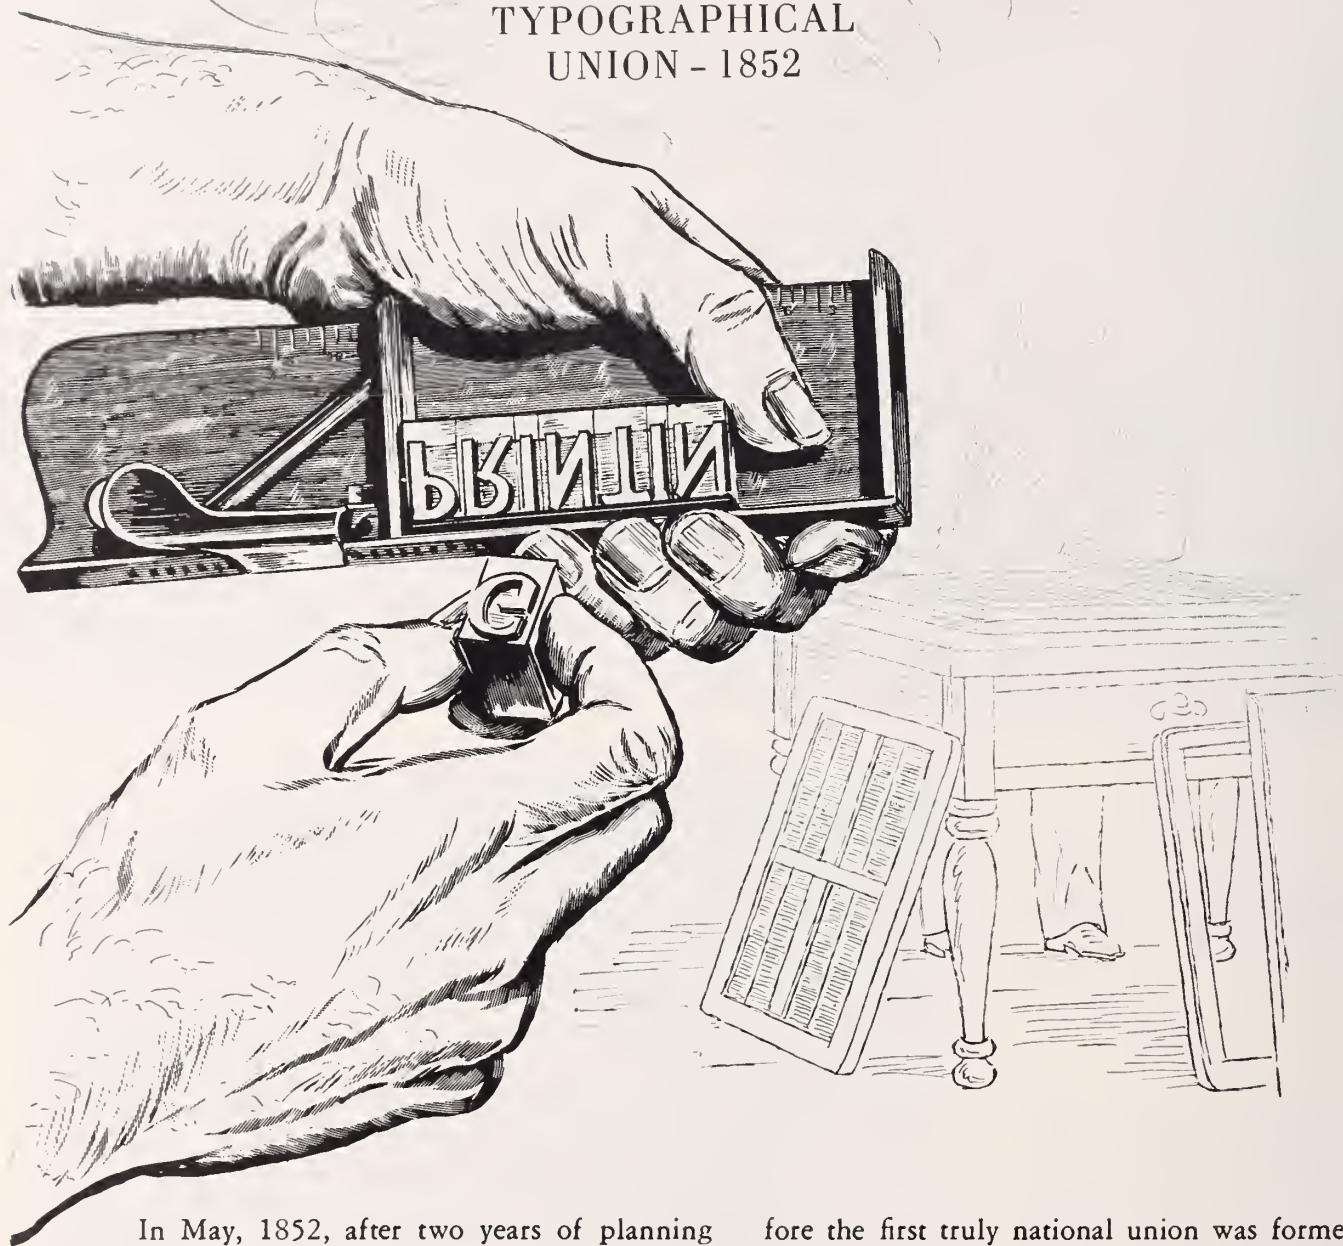

The Coca-Cola Company exhibit has an extensive amount of curved surfaces, and, as one lathing official put it: "Metal lath was the obvious choice to form these curves, because it is so flexible and creative." Metal lath was used in an exhibit that, as The Coca-Cola Company President, J. Paul Austin put it in so many words, "is intended to give our visitors a free trip around the world."

Welton Becket, F.A.I.A., is architect of the building, the general contractor is George A. Fuller Company, and lathing contractor is Jeremiah Burns, Inc. All are from New York City. The plastering contractor is Bisceglia Plastering Corporation, of Harrison, New York.

Metal lath was used extensively in the construction of the General Motors' Products Plaza. Its first-floor suspended ceiling consists of furring and 3.4 lb. diamond mesh metal lath, covered with a sprayed-on asbestos fiber. Down lights and air-conditioning ducts can be seen installed in the ceiling assembly.

LANDMARKS OF LABOR
No. 7
Founding of the
INTERNATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL
UNION - 1852

In May, 1852, after two years of planning and preliminary efforts, the National Typographical Union was founded in Cincinnati, Ohio. Seventeen years later "International" was substituted for "National" in the name. Printers are the great pioneers in trade unionism in America. During the Revolution in 1778 New York printers banded together and struck against low wages and won. The "Typographical Society" was founded in New York in 1794 and from then until 1852 some 40 local Unions in 30 cities were established before the first truly national union was formed. The ITU as a pioneer in national action, its consistent leadership for more than a century in seeking higher wages, lower hours and better conditions and its important role in helping to establish the American Federation of Labor make the founding of the ITU a great landmark of labor. The union's label or "bug" has symbolized trade unionism for more than a century. Today the Typographical Union stands for the basic principles deeply rooted in one of America's longest heritages of trade unionism.

How you and Uncle Sam can help guarantee their future

The bigger your family, the more important it is that you establish a regular savings plan for education costs, weddings, clothing, camp, and the host of other things it takes to give kids a comfortable start.

But with the way things are today, is money all they need for a secure future?

The answer to that question is why millions of American families own Savings Bonds today. Their Bond dollars help keep our economy sound, and help Uncle Sam keep the future free so that your youngsters will have the same opportunities you had.

Add your strength to America today. Ask your banker about a regular Savings Bond purchase plan. Or buy them on the Payroll Savings Plan where you work—the easiest way in the world to make your future more secure.

Five personal benefits you get from U.S. Savings Bonds:

1. Your investment is guaranteed safe by the U.S. Government •
2. Your Bonds are replaced free if anything happens to them •
3. You can get your money whenever you need it •
4. You can save automatically where you work •
5. You get $4 back for every $3 when your Bonds mature.

Can money assure their freedom? You can't buy freedom at any price, but you can help preserve it by buying and holding U.S. Savings Bonds.

Nice to hold. Because Savings Bonds grow 33 $\frac{1}{3}$ % bigger at maturity, most Americans hold them for long-range goals. But you can cash in your Bonds anytime you need the money.

This man has no regard for individual freedom. Part of our answer to him lies in keeping financially strong as individuals—and as a nation.

Keep freedom in your future with
U. S. SAVINGS BONDS

A follow up letter dated March 31, 1964, setting forth all the details and giving a complete explanation of the March 26, 1964 letter was also sent to the Secretaries and Business Agents of all

At this time, for the information of our membership, I am reproducing these letters, which are self-explanatory, in our Journal.

I ask that you read very thoroughly these communications and be guided accordingly.

Dear Sir and Brother:

I have carefully reviewed the correspondence between you and the late General President Lloyd A. Mashburn of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union in reference to the proposed agreement of June 10, 1963, relating to ceiling systems.

Our files make it clear that President Mashburn referred this proposal to the General Executive Board of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union and that our General Executive Board voted against approval of the proposed agreement.

Accordingly the proposed agreement has never been approved by our organization and has never been in force and effect.

I trust that the record is now clear; that there is no agreement in effect between our organizations in regard to ceiling systems and that the proposed agreement of June 10, 1963 was never approved by the General Executive Board of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union, and therefore never became effective.

With kind personal regards, I am

TO: ALL LOCAL UNIONS, STATE, DISTRICT AND PROVINCIAL COUNCILS OF THE

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

Under date of March 26, 1964, I sent to you a copy of a letter directed to Mr. M.A. Hutcheson, President of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, in reference to the proposed Agreement, on ceiling systems, between our respective organizations, dated June 10, 1963. At this time I want to give you all the information which brought about my sending this letter to Brother Hutcheson.

Immediately upon taking office as General President of our International Union, I was requested to do something about this proposed Agreement, dated June 10, 1963, on ceiling systems. I was asked to do something immediately. This I would not do and could not do, because I had to go through the records and files available here at Headquarters to satisfy my own mind and thereby be able to convey the true facts to you, which you, as members of the International Union, are entitled to have.

My policy has been, and will always be to uphold the trade jurisdiction of our International Union, therefore, I do not intend, under any circumstances, to surrender any part of the work coming under our trade jurisdiction...nor do I intend to surrender, or concede, any materials or application of materials which substitute the materials or application of materials coming under our trade jurisdiction.

As your General President, I shall not permit our International Union to be dissolved by any Agreement or by any Understanding whatsoever. I have spent many hours since becoming General President reading and studying the records and files available. You can readily see that I did not take this action in haste, since it has been nearly three months since I took Office. I investigated the matter thoroughly before taking any action.

So that you may have a better understanding of this situation I am enclosing copies of two letters which are on file written by our late General President, Lloyd A. Mashburn, and President M.A. Hutcheson of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

The first letter dated June 11, 1963, is directed to President Mashburn by President Hutcheson.

The second letter dated June 28, 1963, is directed to President Hutcheson by President Mashburn in reply to his letter of June 11, 1963.

Under date of June 25, 1963 our late General President Lloyd A. Mashburn polled the Executive Council of our International Union, which consisted of nine (9) members at that time.

THE RESULTS OF THIS POLL ARE AS FOLLOWS:

FIVE MEMBERS VOTED AGAINST THE PROPOSED AGREEMENT ON CEILING SYSTEMS

FOUR MEMBERS VOTED IN FAVOR OF THE PROPOSED AGREEMENT ON CEILING SYSTEMS

My Brothers, the record is now clear that there is no proposed Agreement in effect between the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union in regards to Ceiling Systems. Please be guided accordingly.

With kind personal regards, I am

Sincerely and Fraternally

The Ninth Legislative Conference of the Building and Construction Trades Department was held March 23-26, 1964, at the Sheraton Park Hotel, in Washington, D. C. The Conference was very constructive, I believe, for everyone in attendance.

President Lyndon B. Johnson, addressed the more than 4,000 delegates attending the Ninth Legislative Conference on Tuesday, March 24, 1964.

The President cited the economic gain of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations and he forecast further gains including a record $65 billion volume of new construction for the current year.

Other measures cited by the President, were the Anti-Poverty Bill; the Pending Housing Bill; National Food Stamp Plan; extension and expansion of the Minimum Wage Law; strengthened unemployment insurance; Manpower Development and Training Act; Economic Opportunity Act (which he recently proposed), and Hospital Care for the Elderly through Social Security..

He paid tribute to both Labor and Management for their voluntary cooperation in minimizing work stoppages at Missile Bases.

In discussing Foreign Affairs he told delegates that the "world as it was and the world as it is are not the same any more."

"My most fervent prayer is to be a President who can make it possible for every boy in this land to grow to manhood by loving his country—loving his country—instead of dying for it."

I know that you all join me in extending sympathy to the people in Alaska because of the recent disastrous earthquake. I was very glad to receive the following letter from Brother W. J. Turner, Deputy International Representative for the State of Alaska, and Secretary of Local 529, Anchorage, Alaska:

"The lathers of Local 529, Anchorage are all right. We all survived the earthquake with no bodily harm and very little property damage. The wife of Brother Owen Clark, #29023, was injured in a car parked in front of J. C. Penneys and hospitalized in the Providence Hospital.

"The damage to property in general was tremendous. There is no danger of food shortage, rations may be short in some cases, but we have enough. As we drive down the streets and survey the damage, we are proud to belong to the Lathing and Plastering trades. The superiority of Lath and Plaster shows in every instance.

"Please inform all Locals as soon as possible to stay away. We can take care of ourselves but no one else. As soon as we start to rebuild I will let you know."

In closing, I wish to express my sincere thanks and appreciation for the cooperation I have been receiving from you.

Sincerely and Fraternaly

Sal Maso

A Dorm Without the 'Dormitory Look'

Bathrooms projecting from the front of the four-story building create shadow boxes that shade living quarters from sun.

University of Southern California's School of Medicine is setting out to prove that a residence for students needn't have the "dormitory look."

This is evident in the design of USC's new Frank R. and Blanche Seaver Residence, a $1.1 million structure erected on Zonal Street opposite Los Angeles County Hospital. It was dedicated in November.

Metal lath and plaster partitions were installed throughout the building by contractor Ross Lee & Son, Inc. Ceilings in stairways, toilets, kitchens and service areas also are metal lath and plaster. The use of metal lath assemblies provides reinforcement not obtainable with other types of construction. The installation additionally provides soundproofing essential to dormitory construction, is a definite deterrent to cracks, and affords two-hour fire protection.

Incorporated into the structural plan by Flewelling and Moody, Los Angeles architects and engineers, is a functional innovation that affords visual relief from the student-dorm stereotype. Bathrooms, serving residence units adjoining either side, project from the front of the four-story building to create vertical shadow boxes. These offsets serve to shade student living quarters from the sun, according to Ralph C. Flewelling, F.A.I.A., and make possible cost savings in the air-conditioning installation. It was not necessary to install a separate power ventilating system in bathrooms, it was pointed out, because they are equipped with jalousie windows on two sides to provide cross-ventilation. The offset floor plan also maintains privacy for users.

Centrally located on the Medical School's 10-acre site in near-downtown Los Angeles, the commons-residence is literally the young doctors' campus meeting ground. Its first floor contains a cafeteria with spacious dining room accommodating 225 persons, plus three private dining rooms that also serve as conference and meeting rooms. Also on the ground floor are a student lounge adjoining the lobby, and a medical bookstore.

Three upper floors accommodate 102 students in private and semi-private bedrooms with a bath serving each pair of rooms. There are 24 single, 30 double, and 6 triple bedrooms.

The structure is reinforced concrete, its exterior first floor walls of exposed aggregate, upper floor exterior walls of colored concrete. Neutral gray 15 per cent light transmission glass throughout helps to minimize glare and thermal extremes. Total area of the building, including cafeteria, is 41,673 square feet. Construction was by Collins and McPherson, Pasadena contractors.

The commons-residence is a phase of the Medical Center Master Plan which was prepared by Flewelling and Moody. This firm also designed the $3 million Seeley Wintersmith Mudd Memorial Laboratory of the Medical Sciences and Paul McKibben Hall at U.S.C.

Report from the

GENERAL SECRETARY-TREASURER

WE FIND that we have several locals that do not understand Section 126 of the L.I.U. Constitution, and think that an apprentice is supposed to pay an initiation fee upon becoming an apprentice. This is not true. An apprentice is supposed to pay a $100 initiation fee in order to become a journeyman. The reason for a $200 initiation fee for journeymen is for those members who are taken into our organization in organizing drives, who do not serve an apprentice, but come directly into the organization as a journeyman. Therefore, they would pay a $200 initiation fee to become a journeyman.

An apprentice does not necessarily have to wait until his application for journeyman to pay the $100 initiation fee, but many of the locals use a system of the apprentice paying monthly toward the $100 initiation fee until the total amount has been paid in.

In the second paragraph of Section 88, page 33, you will find a provision that each Local Union shall retain the amount of initiation fee collected for both journeymen, and apprentices providing that 10% of the amount collected is forwarded to the L.I.U. The purpose of this section is that if a local collects part of an apprentice initiation fee on a monthly basis, and the apprentice later is released to a second local, the money collected by the first local is credited toward the total initiation fee of the apprentice.

In summing this up, an apprentice does not pay an initiation fee to become an apprentice, but pays an apprentice initiation fee to become a journeyman, and this initiation fee is not due until an apprentice has completed his apprenticeship, and is applying for membership in the L.I.U.

At the present time we have very few locals that are delinquent, and hope that we can maintain this record. Again, I want to draw to your attention that you have to have your per capita tax payments paid through the month prior to the Convention, which is the month of August 1964 in order to have your delegate seated at the Convention. In view of the above information, let's get all of our per capita tax reports in currently, and continue to keep them that way. Not only are the current per capita tax reports required for the Convention, they also make the bookkeeping easier for both the Local Unions, and ourselves, if they are kept current.

March 25-28, 1964, the Building Trade's Department held its 9th National Legislative Conference in Washington, D. C. at the Sheraton Park Hotel. There were more than 3,000 Representatives, representing every state, and quite a few of the delegates were members of the L.I.U. A highlight of the Legislative Conference was an address by President Johnson, who spoke to an overflow crowd who were able to hear it, and see it on closed TV, even though they could not be seated in the Ballroom of the hotel.

From all reports the Legislative Conference was considered to be the most successful yet held with some of the legislative goals for 1964 being to legalize on-site picketing, and joint industry promotional funds; to include fringe benefits in Davis-Bacon prevailing wage determinations; exempt construction from the small business act; make a 35-hour work week mandatory for all; specify that the civil rights bill does not call for racial balance or quotas; set federal standards (higher benefits, longer duration) for unemployment insurance benefits; provide hospitalization for the aged through Social Security; pass several construction job-creating bills, and make them subject to Davis-Bacon; and kill all anti-labor bills.

By the time you receive this issue of "The Lather" you should also have received your COPE Voluntary Contribution Booklets for 1964. Again, I am requesting that each member contribute his $1 voluntary contribution to COPE, as I believe it will be the best dollar value that can be obtained from any dollar that he will ever spend. AFL-CIO President Meany in speaking at the Legislative Conference made the following analysis: "Labor already has 175 or 180 House members at this count, and needs only the election of 20 to 25 more liberals. This job must be done at the polls next November." Please make your contribution to COPE, so that this will be possible.

The Investment Department of the AFL-CIO is in the process of setting up a Mortgage Investment Trust, and an Auxiliary Housing Corporation to be used as a source of investing funds from any qualified labor management welfare, pension or retirement plan desiring to participate. This money being used to develop lower income housing with the assurance that all construction would be done by union members. Anyone desiring further information in reference to this should contact the Investment Department of the AFL-CIO, 815 Sixteenth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., for further information.

The Convention Facility of the San Diego Community Concourse will include a Convention Hall whose main assembly room will seat 5,000 persons, while 22 other meeting rooms will have capacities ranging from 25 to 600 persons.

San Diego Convention Facility

When San Diego's new Convention Facility, in the Community Concourse, opens, during the summer of 1964, it will have seating for 5,000 people on its main floor area and terrace level balcony. The 160 ft. \times 160 ft. flat-floor area, air-conditioned auditorium will have complete facilities for conventions, sales meetings, trade shows, banquets, entertainments and sport events.

The Convention Facility is so designed that a number of different events may take place in the building without conflicts in ticketing, circulation or service. Separate meeting rooms throughout the Convention Facility seat from 25 to 5000 persons. Provisions for catering service are housed in the basement, with service elevators assuring rapid access to any part of the building. From the service dock, exhibit materials, special equipment or scenery may be moved directly onto the floor of the main arena of the auditorium, or carried by freight elevator to the terrace or the basement levels. Special features have been designed throughout public areas to assure excellent hearing, speaking and performing conditions—both through the installation of versatile electronic sound systems, and through precise installation of a metal lath and plaster sound distributing ceiling in the auditorium.

Across the main lobby, a 37,000 sq. ft. exhibition hall can be used separately or as a valuable extension of the Convention Facility. Connecting with both will be a 12-floor administration building and a 12-floor parking garage.

The Convention Facility is the first phase in the establishment of the San Diego Center City Community Concourse—a complex of buildings scheduled for completion early in 1965. The finished concourse will occupy three city blocks and cost approximately $15 million. Of this, the Convention Facility will occupy 360 ft. \times 200 ft. and cost $3.9 million.

The designing and the projected equipping of the Convention Facility is thorough; every possible need of patrons has been foreseen and provided for. Structural fire protection has been created with metal lath and plaster membrane fireproofing. A spokesman for Frank L. Hope & Associates, the architects and engineers of the Facility, cites the ease of fireproofing by this technique as one of the special gains that were realized through their having specified metal lath for this structure.

The same opinion was expressed by an official of Jack Lopshire Plastering Contractor, the Lemon Grove, California, firm which executed the lathing and the plastering contract. In addition, he pointed out, the use of metal lath made it possible to create precise shapes for the application of plaster in the sound distributing ceiling of the auditorium of the Convention Facility.

Externally, the Convention Facility is to be of contemporary design, poured-in-place reinforced concrete columns and arches with special white aggregate exposed by bush-hammering. It will have pre-cast colored concrete spandrels with reliefs and colored lightweight concrete block walls behind galleries. In various areas, for decorative purposes, external soffits have been finished with furring, metal lath and portland cement stucco.

Throughout the Community Concourse, metal lath and plaster have been used to create partitions and ceilings with fire resistance ratings of up to four hours. Metal lath has provided the form and the shape for special designs of ceilings and of walls. Furring and 3.4 lb. metal lath are the framework and the base for the vermiculite acoustical plaster of the ceiling of the Convention Facility. In addition to providing proper acoustical control, the ceiling conceals ducts and supports air-conditioning vents, speakers and recessed lighting.

Durable, low maintenance partitions were variously created of 2-in. solid metal lath and plaster, with consequent savings of space, or of prefabricated steel studs, metal lath and plaster, where service lines and ducts were concealed. In all assemblies, 3.4 lb. diamond mesh metal lath was used. In some instances, construction needs were best served by using 4-in. structural studs to create load bearing partitions; in others, non-load bearing partitions were called for and they were erected of 18 gage studs, metal lath and plaster.

Sound insulating partitions were created of steel studs, metal lath and plaster. In areas of severe sound insulating problems, double partitions of like construction were erected. Sound insulation of floors was attained with the placement beneath them of suspended ceilings of channel, metal lath and vermiculite plaster.

Structurally, metal lath used as a centering material served as form and reinforcement for the subsequently poured floor slabs and roof decks. For this purpose, metal lath was attached atop the joists; as the concrete was poured onto it, a slight penetration through the metal lath took place, with resultant addition of reinforcement and an added resistance to tensile stresses. To provide a finish, ceilings of furring, metal lath and plaster were either attached directly to the bottoms of the joists or suspended below them.

The interior surfaces of the exterior walls are finished with vertical furring and diamond mesh metal lath, to which has been applied Keene's cement finish plaster.

plaster and portland cement stucco has made possible the creation of an outstanding structure at a saving, as compared to substitute materials. These savings are evident in the construction cost and it is anticipated that further economics will be realized in the long-range savings on maintenance.

General contractor of the San Diego Community Concourse Convention Facility and Exhibition Hall and Parking Facility is F. E. Young Construction Company, of that city. Construction of the Concourse is a project of the City of San Diego, under the supervision of the office of the City Engineer.

Lath Association Consultant Retires

Donald R. Wadle, well-known lathing and plastering industry figure, has announced his complete retirement from duties with the Metal Lath Association, effective January 1, 1964. Since November, 1959, Mr. Wadle has resided in Ventura, California, devoting a portion of his time to metal lath industry technical matters.

Associated with lathing and plastering for over 36 years, Mr. Wadle served successively as secretary of the Contracting Plasterers Association of Southern California, and as west coast technical representative, managing director and consultant for the Metal Lath Association. Mr. Wadle served as secretary of the Lathing and Plastering Industry Committee, sponsors of the Manual of Lathing and Plastering which was written by architect John R. Diehl. He also served as a member of Committee E-5 on Fire Tests for Materials and Construction of the American Society for Testing and Materials. Another committee post was on the Sectional Committee A42 on Specifications for Plastering of the American Standards Association.

DONALD R. WADLE

His longest day

It's his first day on guard duty, and he's just a kid. While he's out there, walking post, maybe thousands of miles from home, he realizes suddenly he has a man's job to do.

The tough job of patrolling an uneasy peace. Maybe it isn't a shooting war. But it might be—any time. He's on the alert all the time. Tension and tedium are his bitterest foes.

That's why today's serviceman, in his off-duty hours, needs more than ever before the relaxation the USO can give him. And does give—in military installations scattered all over the globe. But, far too often, lack of funds prevents the USO from extending its vital warmth to every single place it's needed . . . from keeping its door open to every American kid in uniform.

To do this, the USO needs your help. It's up to you to see that there's enough money in the Community Chest and the United Fund to help the USO keep its doors open everywhere . . . from the frozen fringe of the Arctic to Vietnam's mountain jungles. Help the USO help every kid in uniform through all the long days he'll spend serving our America. Remember—

He's your investment in freedom. Don't shortchange him.

Support the USO at home and abroad through your local United Fund or Community Chest.

LOSE WEIGHT THE HEALTHY WAY

If you need to lose weight, you are not alone—not by a long way. In fact, according to the Council on Foods and Nutrition of the American Medical Association, one out of every five Americans is carrying excessive weight that he should cast aside. In case you have any doubt about your weight, there are at least three things you can do. First, look at your scale. Second, look in your mirror, and third, look at your toes (unobstructed view?) In case you are not too pleased with what you see, or can't see, look out. When you widen your girth you may shorten your life.

Most authorities agree that one of the trouble spots in an area very familiar to most adults is weight control. We Americans are eating more and better than ever before but exercising less. As a result, actuarial statistics show that an alarmingly large number of persons are seriously overweight, and obesity and long life do not usually go together. Extra pounds put an extra and often damaging strain on the heart.

Do you want to lose weight? Well, the only way to take in your belt is to eat less and exercise more. An inescapable exercise is turning your back on food and repeating many times a day, the word, "No!"

When And Where To Start: If you mean business in reaching an effective weight-reduction program, you start Now. If you put your good intentions into practice and spell now backwards, you have Won.

Find Out What You Should Weigh: There is no ideal scale of weights, for no two persons are exactly alike; but you can find your

"approximate self"—give or take 5 to 10 pounds. You can get this information from your family doctor or from the table shown on the next page, and once this is established, you have a goal for closing the gap between your "ideal" and your "real" weight.

Start Counting Calories. Calories are merely units of energy found in all food. If you eat more calories than your body can use in its normal daily activity, the excess is stored as fat—and it is this storehouse that you are after.

Most people leading moderately active lives need 15 calories per pound to maintain their desired weight. So if your "ideal" weight is 150 pounds, you can consume foods containing no more than 2,250 calories each day. It is simple arithmetic, $150 \times 15 = 2,500$. Naturally if you are now well above your desired weight, you'll have to cut down on your calorie intake, but not necessarily on the amount of food. Just eat more low calorie foods and shun the gravies, creamed dishes, rich desserts, fried entrees and liquor. Eat slowly and load up on fillers—carrot sticks, leafy vegetables, radishes, consommés and most fresh fruits. Get yourself a calorie counter booklet and study it. Then plan your menus around it.

Losing Pounds: There are approximately 3,500 calories in each stored pound of fat. So to lose one pound a week, consume 500 fewer calories each day than you have been consuming. If you previously required 2,250 calories daily, and you want to lose one pound per week, consume only 1,750 calories daily. And to lose two pounds per week you would reduce your daily calorie intake by 1,000 and consume 1,250 calories daily.

It is usually unwise to try to lose more than two pounds per week because a rapid weight loss may leave you tired, grumpy and vulnerable to illness. If you are more than 10 pounds overweight, you should see your family doctor before launching any do-it-yourself dieting program.

The Secret To A Successful Diet is not a dramatic shake-up in your eating habits. Instead it is eating just a little bit less of everything. Discretion is the better part of dieting, so leave out the whipped cream-topped chocolate double-scoop sundaes. And don't endanger your health by omitting proteins, carbohydrates, fats, vitamins and minerals in your daily diet.

There are four necessary food groups in a proper diet. You are more apt to stay with your diet if you balance and vary your menus and select foods from the four broad categories of:

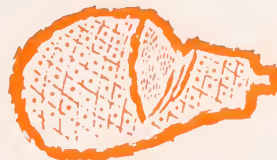

The Milk Group—milk, cheese and ice cream.

The Meat Group—beef, veal, lamb, pork, poultry, eggs and fish.

The Vegetable-Fruit Group—fruits and vegetables rich in Vitamins A and C.

The Bread-Cereal Group—whole grain, enriched or restored. You also need butter, margarine, fats, or oils, but in all of these foods, the watchword is Moderation. Don't exceed your calorie quota!

Don't Take Any Drugs without the advice of your physician. They can be extremely dangerous as well as expensive. Federal investigators report that overweight Americans waste $100 million annually on phony reducing products.

Dedication and determination are the mainstays of your dieting program. The only "secret" to weight reduction and control is in adhering to sound nutrition and intelligent dietary habits. Once you have achieved the "new you," eat and drink what you like, but do it with moderation.

Metal Lath Creates Ballroom Ceiling

The Sheraton Park Hotel has been doing a large amount of addition and alteration work part of which is the addition of a new ballroom. There is approximately 1300 yards in the ballroom ceiling, which is suspended with metal lath, and will receive acoustical plaster, "sound shield 85", a new acoustical plaster produced by Columbia Acoustics and Fireproofing Company, Stanhope, New Jersey.

The architects on this job were Class and Riggs of Washington, D. C. The lathing and plastering Contractor was Rubino & Farris of Washington.

Mr. Farris said that the Lathers' of Local 9 had done an excellent job of lathing, and that the job was quite complicated due to the necessity of making the ceiling fit the job conditions. This is the hotel where the Lathers' International Union Convention was held in September, 1961.

The studs sticking through the ceiling will receive some kind of a screen or mesh to be used as decoration after the acoustical plaster has been applied.

1964 Marks 125th Anniversary of Diamond Mesh

125 years ago, a patent was granted for a design of diamond mesh metal lath. Metal lath is the material used by builders today to provide a rugged, reliable base for plaster walls and to increase fire resistance and sound isolation.

On February 22, 1839, the U. S. patent office recognized Peter Naylor's claim to an inventor's rights to an "improvement in the mode of providing plastered walls and ceilings to resist fire." This, however, proved to be a great understatement, in view of the performance of the product under severe conditions of fire and earthquake, in the intervening years.

The quality of durability, even under extreme conditions, was explained by Naylor as resulting from the numerous perforations of the metal lath, through which plaster would pass "to be securely keyed and retained in place." There are approximately a thousand diamond-shaped perforations in each square foot of modern metal lath.

Quietly, unobtrusively, hidden by the plaster which it holds securely, metal lath provides the base and shape for rugged, low maintenance partitions and ceilings, many of which have been in place for impressively long periods of time. In Washington, a city established under the guidance of George Washington, and named in his honor, the Library of Congress is an outstanding example of the lasting combination of diamond mesh metal lath and plaster. Today, three-quarters of a century after its construction was started in 1888, the conditions of its murals, ornamental sculptured plaster and plain walls testify to such durability.

Building and Construction Trades Department

LEGISLATIVE CONFERENCE

PRESIDENT Lyndon B. Johnson, addressing more than 4,000 delegates attending the Ninth Legislative Conference of the Building and Construction Trades Department in Washington, sounded the keynote of his administration by calling for a "better deal" for the nation's needy including the unemployed, the impoverished, and the aged.

The President's hard-hitting vigorous platform style surprised many delegates who had grown accustomed to his "soft sell" approach on radio and television press conferences. He began by citing the economic gains of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, and he forecast further gains, including a record $65 billion volume of new construction for the current year.

The President then pointed out that despite the economic gains, little had been accomplished in the fight against unemployment and poverty. He pledged his administration to unrelenting war against these evils and he asked building tradesmen to join with him in the fight.

Linking the elimination of unemployment and poverty, the President said, "We will achieve these twin goals not through any one measure, but through many." One of these measures is the recently passed tax reduction bill which, he said, "restored to the pockets of the people of America $25 million per day that they could use for purchasing power; almost $900 million per month. This bill should create directly and indirectly between two and three million jobs."

Other measures cited by the President, in addition to the anti-poverty bill itself, were: the pending housing bill (which, he said, would raise the rate of new con-

Praises Missile Site Record

Asking again for labor's help on these programs, the President cited the success of the Missile Sites Labor Commission as an example "of what can be done when we all pull together in the national interest." He added:

"The problem of work stoppage at missile bases has been minimized. It has been done by the voluntary cooperation of management and labor. You recognized that the national interest was greater than any individual interest. And by serving the nation you added to the security of every citizen of this nation.

"In no other industry of this scale and complexity do labor and management work harder or more earnestly or more successfully for understanding, and I am proud to pay tribute to you for that."

Toward the end of his talk, the President took up the subject of foreign affairs and he told delegates that the "world as it was and the world as it is are not the same any more."

He called general war "impossible," and he said that the alternative to ready attack is "reasoned agreement."

"In this nuclear world," he added, "in this world of a hundred new nations, we must offer the outstretched arm that tries to help instead of an arm-length sword that helps to kill. . . .

"Let's be reminded that power brings obligation. The people in this country and the world expect more from their leaders than just the show of brute force. . . .

country—loving his country—instead of dying for it."

12-Point Legislative Program

President Johnson addressed the delegates on Tuesday morning, March 24, the second day of the conference.

Immediately after the President made his departure from the Sheraton-Park Hotel, delegates also left to begin a day-and-a-half on Capitol Hill visiting their representatives and senators to promote the 12-point legislative program which is outlined briefly below:

1. Taft-Hartley Amendments (14(b), On-Site Picketing)
2. Davis-Bacon Act Modernization (Fringe Benefits)
3. Public Works Acceleration Act

4. Small Business Act (Set-Aside Amendments)

5. Fair Labor Standards Act (Shorter Workweek)

6. Mass Transit ($500 million construction program)

7. Area Redevelopment Act Amendments

8. Hospital Insurance for the Aged

9. Civil Rights Amendments

10. Federal Aid to Education

11. Federal Standards for Unemployment Compensation

12. Housing and Community Development Act of 1964

Haggerty Optimistic

In his welcoming address to the delegates at the opening session on Monday, President Neil Haggerty of the Building and Construction

Trades Department called the conference "one of the largest and most significant labor gatherings of all time." While cautioning delegates that "legislation necessarily is a slow, painstaking process," he nevertheless predicted that "we are going to write an encouraging number of achievements into law before this Congress adjourns." He said that he was "more optimistic about the future success of our legislative program than I have been for a long time."

Mr. Haggerty told the delegates that the 12-point program "is designed to benefit all the workers of our country, not only the 3,500,000 building tradesmen we directly represent. We confidently believe our program is calculated to strengthen our entire country and all its people, rather than to serve any narrow special interest."

Setting forth the legislative achievements of the past two years, Mr. Haggerty gave much of the credit to direct appeals on particular issues from local building tradesmen to their own congressmen, and he asked the delegates to continue their "unfailing" cooperation. He flatly predicted that H.R. 6041, the fringe benefit amendment to the Davis-Bacon Act, "will be adopted with strong bipartisan support" when it comes up for a vote in the Senate.

On the subject of anti-poverty legislation, Mr. Haggerty said that the trade union movement applauds the objectives of the Administration's program. However, he went on to say, "To this very day we believe we have the most effective formula for dealing with poverty—and that is the payment of union wages. Whenever all American products carry the union label, poverty will be banished from our country forever."

"As construction goes," said Mr. Haggerty, "so goes the nation. Every dollar spent in building new factories and homes is multiplied into many other dollars for materials, transportation, equipment, furnishings and all the products of farms and industry. If enough work can be provided to keep our building trades busy, the whole nation will prosper."

Leaders Address Conference

Throughout the first day of the conference, delegates, in addition to laying plans for attacking Capitol Hill, heard speeches from distinguished trade union leaders and government officials. The following are excerpts from those speeches:

George Meany, President, AFL-CIO: "When I look at this gathering here this morning I realize that you come from every community in the nation, that you are active and important people in the community, and it would seem to me that this is possibly the most politically powerful group that has ever gathered here in the nation's Capital, because when I talk of political power I talk in terms of votes, I talk in terms of people who reach people at the community level, and while it is important that you carry your message to the representatives over here on Capitol Hill during your stay here this week, it is also important to remember that political action begins at home. None of these people get elected in Washington. They get elected in the community in which they live, which is the community in which you live. And there is where you can make your most important contribution. . . .

"We have a hard core of friends in the House of Representatives. But we need approximately 20 to 25 more votes, 20 to 25 more votes of liberals, progressives, who see eye to eye with us on the problems that we face. We do not have enough votes in the House of Representatives to amend 14(b) [Right-to-Work section of Taft-Hartley]. We could have that number of votes next January, if we were able to elect an additional 20 to 25 liberals in the House of Representatives."

Senator Winston L. Prouty (R-Vermont): "These are at once the best of times and the worst of times. For some, profits and wages were never better, but for many of our four million unemployed workers, times were never worse."

"It has become the fashion these days to toss around unemployment statistics as if we were engaging in a mathematical exercise. We seem to lose sight of the fact that what we should be talking about is people and what unemployment means in human terms.

"For the family that is without a breadwinner, unemployment means poverty, disease and neglect. It means children who go without proper clothing in cold weather. It means sickness that could have been prevented or retarded but for the fact that the dollar was lacking."

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz: "The President has before the Congress at this point the McCarthy-King Bill, which would accomplish a considerable amount of the change which is required in the Unemployment Compensation System. It would provide for raising of benefits to a level established by federal standards. It would provide, too, for the extension of the period, the duration of the Unemployment Compensation System, on a new basis.

"I urge strongly your support of this bill. I think, although there may be some question as to how far we go with it at this particular legislative session, that we have got to move unemployment compensation up to a higher point in the priorities of our legislative concerns."

Representative James Roosevelt (D-Calif.), Chairman, House Subcommittee on Labor: "In order that you won't think that I just came here to give nothing but good news, I notice in your legislative program [one issue] which perhaps some of your officers are a little unhappy with me about, and that refers of course to the revision of the administration of the Davis-Bacon Act. I want to say this in all honesty, and I am sure that all of you would agree: If there are areas in the administration of any act where there is real inequity or injustice being performed, you will want it corrected as quickly as anybody else.

"But I can make you this pledge: There will be no anti-labor revisions of the administration of the Davis-Bacon Act as long as I am standing on that subcommittee."

Speaker of the House, John W. McCormack: "Organized labor is concerned, properly so, at many of the problems that exist today, and as it was even two years ago. Practically everything happening in the Congress today has some relationship to labor, and at the same time never before in the history of the trade union movement have the working men and women of America been confronted with such an effort on the part of reactionary forces to stem the tide of progress.

"I can assure you that that is a correct statement. Next fall the forces of progressive government have got to work harder than they have ever worked before for many decades. You see the image, you see the pattern, you see what is developing. The forces of reaction trying to dominate the American scene. The answer to that is the forces of progress, proceeding next fall in united form, determined to elect progressive members of the Congress and to elect a progressive President in the White House."

Senator Pat McNamara (D-Mich.), Chairman, Senate Public Works Committee: "Another piece of legislation in which I know you are interested is the continuation of the Accelerated Public Works Act. While this has sometimes been called the Building Trades Full Employment Act, this program has had a tremendous impact all over the country and on over-all employment.

"For every tradesman on the site, there have been a couple of jobs off the site, and communities have the water plants, sewers, firehouses and other municipal improvements it would have taken many years to achieve.

"The more than $800 million spent thus far has been an excellent example of putting federal tax dollars to work where they are needed. And the demand has hardly been met, even now.

"As a consequence, bills to extend the program have been under consideration in both the Senate and the House, and we earnestly hope we can win adoption in this Congress."

Andrew Biemiller, Director,

AFL-CIO Department of Legislation: "I don't think there is any issue on which the enemies of labor bring more pressure than they do on the question of the repeal of 14(b). And I hope that between now and November of this year that all of you, and all of your friends you can get to move in a similar direction back in your home areas, will be questioning candidates as to where they stand on the subject of 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley, whether they are going to be prepared to get into a fight for the repeal of this obnoxious section of Taft-Hartley, not that there aren't a lot of other obnoxious sections in Taft-Hartley also, but this is the one that has been causing us trouble, as you all know all over the country.

"We are having to spend thousands and thousands of dollars in one state after another trying to protect ourselves on a right that is given us under federal labor legislation, the right of the union shop, but which under this crazy, illogical quirk of Taft-Hartley, 14(b) lets states overrule federal labor policy."

Representative B. F. Sisk (D-Calif.): "As a member of the Committee on Rules, I well realize some of the problems that confront us, problems that you happen to be specifically interested in. I just had delivered to my office this morning your legislative program for 1964, and as I glanced over it, I was somewhat overwhelmed by the number of bills or specific parts of your program that are now pending before the House Committee on Rules.

"Just to comment on a few of these, I notice your No. 3 on the program is the Public Works Acceleration Bill, now pending before our Committee on Rules. No. 6 is the Mass Transit. No. 7 is Area Redevelopment. And then your Adult Education is No. 10 on your list.

"I can say without reservation that insofar as I am concerned as one member of the Committee on Rules, you do have my unqualified support for these pieces of legislation."

LIU First Vice President C. J. Neil Haggerty opens the conference.

Senator Wayne Morse (D-Oregon): "I would have you take a look at this whole matter of leaving a heritage of freedom to our grandchildren by looking at what I consider to be the greatest need of American foreign policy. It has been the greatest need for half a century. We have a responsibility of exporting economic freedom, the techniques, and the institutions of economic freedom into the dark continents and areas of the world. If you are going to do that, you are going to have to change American foreign policy. You have to start, to use a figure of speech, exporting bread, not bullets.

"So much of our foreign policy, when all is said and done, is based upon the exportation of bullets; it is based more upon the exercise of American might and force, than it is upon the exportation of the institutions of economic freedom."

Walter Mason, Legislative Director, Building and Construction Trades Department: "I am confident and feel satisfied that without your cooperation and assistance we would not have passed the Work Hours Act and we would not have advanced the Davis-Bacon Fringe Benefit Bill as far as it has gone.

"I feel satisfied that if that cooperation is continued we will pass a substantial part of our legislative program this session. I do earnestly hope that in your contacts with members of Congress that you will put more emphasis on the Senate this time, because we do expect some vicious amendments which, if enacted, would practically destroy the Davis-Bacon Act.

"... And even if they just put a new comma in the fringe benefit bill in the Senate, we will have to go back to the House Rules Committee and get a rule. And I certainly don't want to go through that again."

Representative Frank Thompson (D-N.J.): "The thing that I like so much about this legislative program isn't that you are just for the on-site picketing bill or the fringe benefits of Davis-Bacon, which I am for and worked for and voted for, and the things which relate only to yourselves. But you and your unions are now and have always been for the great broad programs that will benefit not only yourselves and your wives and your children, but everybody and their wives and their children. This is a great tribute to you. . . .

"You have down here in Neil Haggerty, your president, in Walter Mason, your legislative representative, in Lou Sherman, and in the rest of your associates, the very best, the most honest, the most enlightened, the most efficient service representing you 365 days a year that your union dollar can buy. You are getting about $1.85 worth of value for every dollar you spend. because they work at it, and you ought to be as proud of them as I am to know them."

Construction Trades Leader Cited by President Johnson

PRESIDENT Lyndon B. Johnson presented a Distinguished Service Award to Walter J. Mason, legislative director, Building and Construction Trades Department of the AFL-CIO. The presentation was made at a meeting of the Building Trades Conference of the AFL-CIO at the Sheraton Park Hotel in Washington, D.C., in recognition of Mr. Mason's services to the handicapped.

Mr. Mason has represented the labor movement on the Executive Committee of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped since its inception in 1947. President Johnson pointed out that Mr. Mason had a major role in much of the AFL-CIO promotional work for many years in behalf of handicapped workers, including a recently released AFL-CIO film, "They Have What It Takes."

The Distinguished Service Award is presented to an individual, organization or firm that has contributed continuous outstanding service, national in scope, to the hire-the-handicapped program. It is a plaque consisting of a mahogany shield on which is mounted the President's Committee seal and a plate bearing the recipient's name and the facsimile signature of the President of the United States.

In commenting on the award, President Johnson said: "Recognition for such valuable service of our citizens is indeed a most worthwhile undertaking and is an effort which should be continued."

In addition to his part in the production of the AFL-CIO film for the President's Committee, Mr. Mason was cited for articles written in national labor publications, for exhibits promoting employment of the handicapped, for his support of the "Ability Counts" high school contest now in its 16th year, and for his part in preparing a handbook on employment of the handicapped used throughout organized labor to explain the program to union members.

Walter Mason (Left), National Legislative Director for the Building and Construction Trades Department, with Father Donahue and Earl McMann of Chicago, was the recipient of the Distinguished Service Award presented by President Lyndon B. Johnson prior to his address to the Conference.

Dear Sir and Brother:

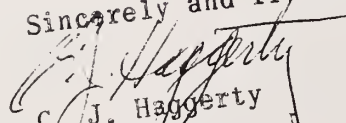

Since the Davis-Bacon Fringe Benefits Bill, H.R. 6041, passed the House, the Senate is being flooded with mail from the State and local chapters of the Chamber of Commerce, A.G.C. local chapters, unfriendly contractors and other groups opposing this measure. In order to offset this adverse propaganda, it would be extremely helpful if all of our General Presidents would write each member of the Senate urging their support for H.R. 6041, without amendments. Also, please communicate with your local unions requesting them to write to their Senators in support of this measure.

Further, we will appreciate your contacting contractors associations in your segment of the industry, as well as individual friendly contractors, requesting them to write to members of the Senate at the earliest possible date.

Please forward to the Department, copies of replies received from the Senators which you are able to secure. This is very important. Securing these letters would be most helpful.

With kindest personal regards,

Sincerely and fraternally,

C. J. Haggerty

"Sides" of "Sky" on Metal Lath
and Plaster Dome

A moving panorama of the wonders of any selected type of weather, as well as the movements of the stars at any time of civilization, are being projected in dramatic detail on the inside of a dome that is the ceiling of the theatre of the new Charles and Henriette Fleischmann Atmospherium-Planetarium. The world's first "Atmospherium" is a part of the Desert Research Institute, on the Reno campus of the University of Nevada.

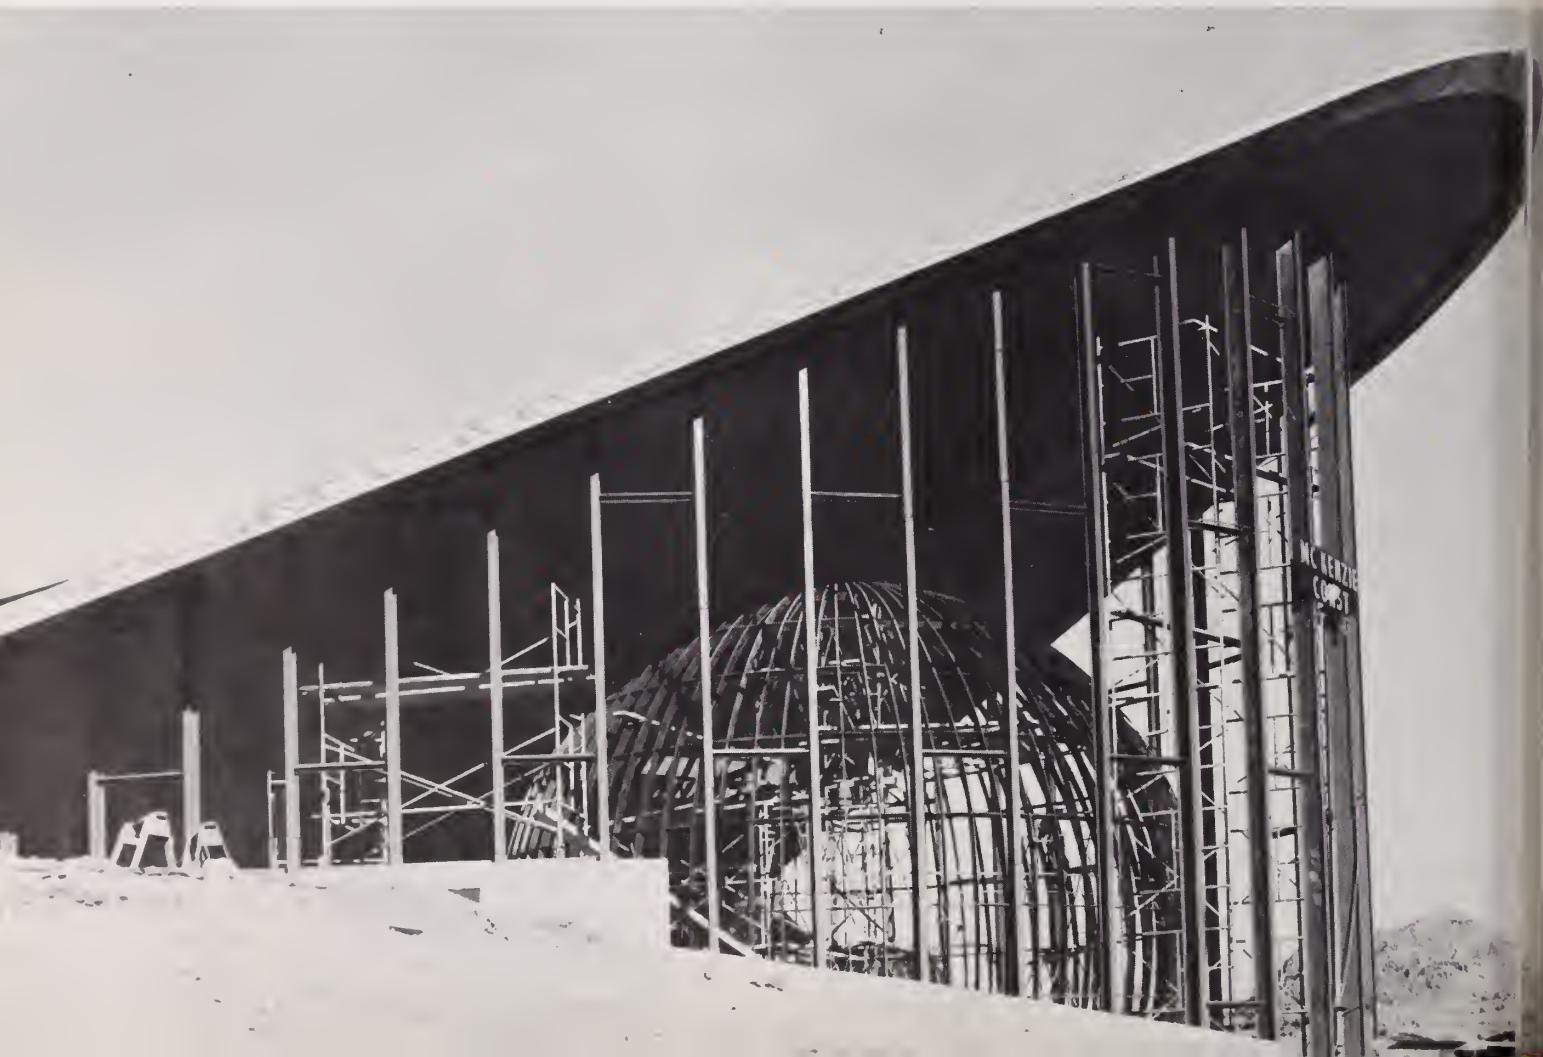

By combining recent developments in wide-angle lenses, time-lapse motion picture photography and the science of meteorology, the Atmospherium projector reproduces horizon-to-horizon pictures of atmospheric events, with surprising realism. Phenomena which require hours or days to happen are concentrated into one hour, even as time-lapse photography can make flowers appear to grow and bloom before an audience's eyes.

The heart of the Atmospherium is a 30-foot diameter dome-theatre, housed in a sphere that is complete except that it has been flattened at bottom to provide a level floor. This truncated sphere was formed of structural studs, bent to a radius on the job, to which was wire-tied 3.4 diamond mesh metal lath, both inside and out, as the base for gypsum plaster. The finish coat, precisely applied to exact radius and perfect smoothness, forms the screen for protection of programs inside the dome theatre.

World's First Atmospherium

The complete sphere that houses and provides projection surface for the dome theatre was made from 4 inch, 16-gage, unpunched structural studs, bent to a radius on the job. Used for bridging were 3½ inch and 6 inch studs, both unpainted, while ¼ in. × 4 in. flat strap iron was used for track to form radius. A ¾ in. × 3 in. flat strap iron, welded to studs at mid-height, formed a belly band, while 2½ in. metal base was clipped to structural studs at base of the dome. Flat strap iron, ½ in. × 5 in. was formed into an 8 ft. circle compression ring at the top of the dome. Diamond mesh, 3.4 lb. metal lath was wire-tied to this framework as the base of gypsum plaster.

Designed by Raymond Hellmann, A.I.A., a Reno architect, in conjunction with Professor Wendell A. Mordy, director of the Desert Research Institute, the Atmospherium is the first facility designed to illustrate the wonders of the weather in educational, entertaining programs for university students, school children and the public. The facility will also provide instruction in the science of weather for the training of meteorologists, and will be used by atmospheric physicists to provide visual instruction on the development of clouds and other weather phenomena. The Atmospherium is designed to accommodate programs about atmospheric physics, as well as astronomy, and thus present a complete picture of the events in both the daytime and the nighttime sky.

Included among the atmospheric and astronomical displays will be a scale-model of the Tyros Weather Satellite. Photographs of the earth's cloud-cover, taken from outer space by Tyros, will be projected on the outside surface of the metal lath and plaster sphere that houses the dome theatre. Similarly, moonscapes or later close-ups of the planets can be projected on the outside of this sphere. The 30-foot sphere is set at a lower level than the entrance lobby.

Steel work and lathing of the sphere were done by Robert A. Pierce Company, while the plastering contract was executed by George Buchanan Company, both of Reno. General contractor was McKenzie Construction, Inc., of Sparks, Nevada.

Architect Raymond Hellmann commented that metal lath and plaster were chosen for this construction because this assembly was practical for the creation of the necessary precise contour. Mr. Jesse High, manager, Robert A. Pierce Company, added that the decision to create this dome with metal lath and plaster saved time, as compared to what would have been needed for other construction techniques. In an operation that can seemingly condense days of time into an hour, and that can reach back and re-create the star-studded skies of any night of ages gone, time becomes a very, very valuable commodity.

The 30-foot sphere enclosing the dome theatre is set at a lower level than the entrance lobby, thus allowing visitors to walk around and look down upon this unique structure of metal lath and plaster. Photographs taken from the weather satellites, moonscapes, or later close-ups of the planets, can be projected on the plaster that is the outside of this sphere. Free of architectural ornament and elaborate interior finishes, the building's design concept is one of utmost simplicity to provide a suitable backdrop for the numerous displays of scientific interest.

The high glass of the Atmospherium faces south and the sun, so that its solar heat collection louvers can operate efficiently, while the north end of the building is low in order to present as little exposure as possible.

Big Business Steps-up Political Activity

A recent news story reveals big business has the accelerator down to the floor, speeding up its political activity. Its purpose: to elect conservatives and ultra-conservatives to Congress and to defeat liberals.

Here are some details on the stepped-up pace of business and industry in politics:

- ★ More than 500,000 persons have completed business political education courses.

- ★ Chief beneficiary is the Republican Party, for the biggest number of those taking the courses comes from management ranks, traditionally weighted to the GOP.

- ★ BIPAC, the Business-Industry Political Action Committee, fathered last summer by the National Association of Manufacturers, already is affiliated with nearly 300 business trade associations. It has asked these associations and company executives to help recruit members. (There are various types of membership. The ante runs from $10 to $5,000.)

- ★ BIPAC has set its sights on a $1 million kitty in its first campaign year. Its money will be earmarked for conservative and reactionary candidates in marginal and swing districts. BIPAC's yardstick for a candidate worthy of its support apparently will be the voting records compiled by the right wing Americans for Constitutional Action.

- ★ More than 350 major firms now have public affairs directors charged with training employees in political skills. Six-hundred newly-trained enthusiasts have thrown their energies into party work after taking courses that one company offers.

- ★ Many companies canvass their employees for political contributions. One firm with a voluntary payroll deduction plan has collected $190,000 for party treasuries. Last year, a political off-year, Ford Motor Company solicited employees, and 87 percent of management personnel responded with a political donation. Though companies solicit contributions on a non-partisan basis, the likelihood is GOP snares the lion's share of such funds.

Added to the increased tempo of business activity in politics is the continuing development of the American Medical Association's political arm, the American Medical Political Action Committee. It, too, concentrates its efforts on electing conservative candidates.

And on top of this is the new political strength of the American right wing, flexing its muscles in behalf of reactionaries.

The message to working people comes through loud and clear: Business, AMPAC and the right wing are pouring more money into politics. They are training more manpower.

This can only add up to more help for conservative candidates, more headaches for liberals.

And it can be offset only if working people respond by registering and voting in record numbers in this critical election year, and by giving their voluntary dollars to COPE.

These are the three key steps for union members in any election year—to register, to vote, to give a buck to COPE—but never have they been more important.

There is a presidential race, and the liberal programs put forth first by the Kennedy administration and now by the Johnson administration will be challenged by the reactionaries. There are 35 Senate elections, many of them involving liberals who will need all the support working people can give them. All 435 seats in the House of representatives are up, and again scores of liberals will need the help of working people if they are to retain, or gain, office. Finally, more than half the states—26 of them—will hold gubernatorial elections.

Seven Key Words

"Register, Vote, Give a Buck to COPE."

These seven words are of key importance in this crucial election year.

If union members register, if union members vote, if union members give a buck to COPE—the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education—then the chances are enough liberals will be elected to the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives to assure progressive government and new laws that will benefit working people and their families.

Union members will have a strong voice in deciding which way the elections will go—that is, they'll have a strong voice if they use it. And the way to use it is to register, to vote and to give a buck to COPE.

In politics, you're mute if you fail to register and vote. You can conduct endless living-room and neighborhood arguments in behalf of your favorite candidate. They're of use to him only if you can back up your arguments with your ballot.

So your vote is your voice, and to make your voice heard you've got to show up at the polling place on election day.

That voice—your vote—draws strength from, and is amplified by, the dollars you and other union members give to COPE.

COPE dollars have only one real purpose: to help you and your families and other working people by helping to elect liberal, pro-labor candidates.

The candidates who receive COPE dollars believe in an America of full employment and job security, where a continually improving standard of living benefits all of us.

It is this kind of candidate who earns the support of your COPE voluntary dollar. And if your dollar helps him get elected, you'll agree it's the best investment you could make.

So, remember those seven key words for this election year:

..... CANADIAN NEWSLETTER

First Labour Conference—Ottawa—The first conference of the federal and provincial ministers of labour in 18 years has paved the way for a new team approach to the problems of technological change. It was held March 9-10 in Ottawa.

Federal labour Minister Allan MacEachen said the conference worked out "lines of action" that included:

—Provincial backing for the new federal Manpower Consultative Service in its pioneering program of encouraging unions and companies to work out joint solutions, through research, to manpower problems of technological changes.

—Support from the provinces for closer federal-provincial efforts to encourage plant-level labor-management co-operation committees to resolve mutual problems outside the normal ambit of collective bargaining.

—Agreement in principle that Canada should seek to ratify some of the present conventions of the International Labor Organization, a step that will likely lead to machinery for dealing with ILO conventions that apply to both the federal and provincial labour jurisdiction.

—General agreement on the need for progressive labour standards in Canada as a whole and recognition that there is a "gap" between existing federal and provincial standards.

Federal plans for a national labour code appeared to be the hottest issue before the conference, with many of the provincial ministers expressing misgivings about the impact of a national minimum hourly wage of $1.25 on their wage and cost structures.

Only Saskatchewan's veteran labour minister, C. C. Williams, came out in wholehearted support for Mr. MacEachen's plan to set a $1.25 minimum wage, a 40-hour normal work week, two weeks paid vacation after one year on the job, and eight statutory holidays.

Better Deal for Senior Citizens of Canada—Ottawa (CPA)—The Canadian Labour Congress has called for a better deal for the country's older people.

It told a senate committee on aging that old people should be able to look forward to retirement with a standard of living that includes "more than mere necessities."

"A bare subsistence standard for the aged should not be Canada's goal," said a brief signed by CLC President Claude Jodoin.

"A very considerable number of elderly Canadians live at or close to the bare subsistence level.

"A very considerable number of the aged live in inadequate housing, are ill-fed, insufficiently cared for medically and deprived of opportunities for normal social intercourse and recreation."

The Congress said the solution to the problems facing old people calls for a dynamic economy, adequate living standards and a humane approach.

A proper understanding is needed above all that aging is part of the life process and that "for the aged life should be as secure and meaningful as our human and physical resources can provide."

The CLC said that more older people could be put out of work in periods of job scarcity because of the Canada Pension Plan and expansion of private pension plans.

Age alone should not be the determining factor on whether a person should be allowed to continue to work.

"We are convinced that only when there are enough jobs to go around will there be expanded employment opportunities for the older worker and for the worker who wishes to continue working even though he has become entitled to retirement on pension."

The CLC said it opposed compulsory superannuation of employees whether or not they retired on pension.

Canada to Ratify ILO Discrimination Statement—Ottawa—The federal government plans to ratify an International Labor Organization convention dealing with discrimination in employment and occupation.

Labour Minister Allan J. MacEachen announced this in the commons during the debate on the speech from the throne.

The ILO convention seeks to promote efforts throughout the world to remove discrimination in employment and occupation based on grounds of race, color, sex, religion, political opinion, national extraction or social origin, and to promote equality of opportunity.

It will be the 21st ILO convention to be ratified by Canada. There are 99 other ILO conventions that have not been ratified by Canada.

Mr. MacEachen said the federal government asked each of the provinces about the ILO Convention on discrimination in employment and occupation.

Early Legislation

During the mid-century period beginning in 1847 labor won advances through enactment of protective measures by state legislatures and the United States Congress.

In 1847 New Hampshire passed the first state law limiting the work day to ten hours.

In 1848 Pennsylvania set a minimum child labor limit at 12 years in commercial occupations and a year later raised the minimum to 13 years.

In 1852 Ohio passed a ten-hour day law for working women.

In 1868 Congress passed an eight-hour law limiting a day's work to eight hours. This applied only to laborers, workmen and mechanics employed by or on behalf of the Federal Government.

This early legislation may not appear advanced by today's standards, but the fact that any protections could be written into law constituted real landmarks of labor in the last century. Those laws laid the foundations for later statutes advocated by organized labor and eventually written into the law of the land.

A friendly American tells how you can win America friends

“I’ve done lots of traveling in my time: on the Road to Practically Everywhere—entertaining our troops around the world, putting on shows and just on my own, for fun. And I guess the biggest kick of traveling is meeting new people, making new friends.

Well, that’s what we Americans have a big chance to do now, right in our own home towns. We can make new friends—for America. You see, more and more people are coming here from abroad. They’ll be a long way from home. So they’ll appreciate—and remember—every bit of friendliness we show them.

I don’t mean going to a lot of trouble. It’s just a question of doing some little kindness whenever we meet them. It might be a simple thing like taking time to give directions or showing them our historical sites—anything to make our guests feel welcome. So whenever and wherever you happen to meet people from overseas who are here on vacation, remember that friendly Americans win America friends.”

Don't ever go away again, daddy!

Her Dad is one of the sensible ones. He went to his doctor as soon as he noticed a cancer danger signal. Thanks to his prompt action, his cancer was discovered when it was still in its early stages, and the prospects for cure are more favorable.

Do you know Cancer's Seven Danger Signals?
 1. Unusual bleeding or discharge. 2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere. 3. A sore that does not heal.

4. Change in bowel or bladder habits. 5. Hoarseness or cough. 6. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing. 7. Change in a wart or mole. If you notice one of these signals and it lasts more than two weeks, see your doctor. It may not be cancer, but only a doctor can tell.

Play it safe and see your doctor once a year for a health checkup, too. And help research and education save lives by sending your check to "Cancer," c/o Postmaster.

GENERAL PRESIDENT

In my report to you in the April issue of "The Lather" there was reproduced four communications in reference to the proposed Ceiling Systems Agreement, dated June 10, 1963. I have received two more communications from General President M. A. Hutcheson of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America in reference to this proposed Agreement on Ceiling Systems which are reproduced on page 1 together with my answers thereto. I should like for you to read these communications thoroughly because this is the only way you can be fully cognizant of the status regarding this matter.

Of great importance to all of us is the Fringe Benefit Bill, H.R. 6041. You will recall this Bill was passed by the House last January by an overwhelming vote. However, this Bill is now expected to reach the Senate floor shortly after the Civil Rights issue is resolved and it has become apparent that a floor fight will be made in the Senate by those who advocate judicial review for prevailing wage determinations.

Local Unions throughout the United States are given much of the credit for the favorable vote in the House, and it is hoped the same cooperation that marked the House fight will prevail now in the Senate. Therefore, we are urging all of our Local Unions and their members to write to their Senators asking their support of H.R. 6041 in this session without amendment. The address is Senate Office Building, Washington 25, D.C.

There is also another Bill (S.2719), which has been introduced in the Senate, to amend the Alaska Statehood Act of July 7, 1958. Our Deputy International Representative of the State of Alaska, Brother W. J. Turner (also Secretary and Business Agent of Lathers Local 529, Anchorage, Alaska) informed me of this Bill and asked that support of this Bill be given by writing letters to the Senators urging them to act favorably on the Bill when it is presented to them for their consideration. The Bill has been referred to the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs at the present time. As General President of the L.I.U. I have directed letters to all of the Senators urging their support of both of these Bills.

We have received several calls from areas where Lathers are needed. Locals 140, Dallas, 230, Ft. Worth, Texas, 326, Little Rock, Arkansas and Local 499, Newburgh, New York, have informed us that there is a shortage of Lathers in their areas. We always notify the International Representatives and Deputy International Representatives when we receive information that Lathers are needed and they in turn convey the information to areas where there may be lathers not working. I would suggest if you are interested in going to any of these areas, however, that you contact the Business Agent first to make sure the shortage still exists.

The names and addresses of our Deputy International Representatives were erroneously omitted from the April Journal. They are listed in this Journal and will continue to be listed in the Journal each month so that you may contact them should you need their assistance.

In the March Journal, I advised you to contact your International Representative direct if you feel he can solve your problem or answer your question because I feel this method will expedite the solution to many of your questions and problems. I am always willing to assist you in every way possible but my primary concern is that your problems and questions are taken care of as promptly as possible. The International Representatives submit to me a written report of their activities every week, so I am always made aware through these reports, the activities of the Local Unions.

I have attended several State, District and Provincial Council meetings recently and I am very pleased with the progress being made in these areas. I have scheduled several meetings for future dates, and I would like to say at this time that I sincerely appreciate being invited to attend these meetings because it offers me the opportunity to become better acquainted with our members who attend these meetings and to gain more knowledge of the activities within these various areas.

It has been necessary for me to be away from the International Office attending to the affairs of the International Union. I am aware that some of the Officers of our Local Unions, and some of the members of our Local Unions have tried to reach me by telephone during these absences. Whenever you call the International Office, please leave a message with my secretary. My Office will see that I receive the message because they are fully informed as to my whereabouts at all times.

I have noted in reviewing the new agreements submitted by our Local Unions that a number of agreements still provide for the one-half cent (½ ¢) to be paid to the National Bureau for Lathing and Plastering. The National Bureau for Lathing and Plastering has been dissolved and therefore does not function any more, so this provision should be deleted from your agreements. Local Promotional Funds are still in existence; however, in order to comply with the law, the Local Promotional Funds should not be jointly administered.

Should your local union and its signatory employers desire to form a local promotional fund, a form of administration with advisers, etc., which would be within the Law should be provided for. If you have arrangements for such local promotional fund and desire further information please let me know.

Under date of April 27, 1964, I directed a letter to all local unions setting forth the information and material which we need when submitting a jurisdictional dispute to the National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional disputes. In this letter I asked that pictures, samples of ma-

Dear Sir and Brother:

This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of March 26, 1964 concerning the June 10, 1963 Agreement between the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union covering ceiling systems.

As you are no doubt aware, the late General President Lloyd A. Mashburn of your organization stated in his letter dated July 18, 1963 that "I had the power to sign the agreement and did sign the agreement and I expect to live up to it. . . . We assume you also are aware that Chairman William J. Cour of the National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes stated in his letter dated June 18, 1963, addressed to the General Presidents of both organizations, that he had informed the Joint Board of the signing of the Agreement and that "the agreement would be recognized as the basis for the settlement of any jurisdictional dispute between their respective organizations on any work covered therein".

It is, therefore, the position of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America that, notwithstanding the statements set forth in your letter of March 26, 1964, the Agreement dated June 10, 1963, executed by the respective negotiating committees and by the General Presidents of the two organizations has been and remains in full force and effect.

Fraternally yours,

Dear Sir and Brother:

I have your communication of April 16, 1964 in further reference to the position taken by you on the agreement between our two organizations, which was negotiated and agreed to by former President Mashburn and the committee he had appointed, and needless to say I am surprised that you as General President of your organization would take the position that you have in this instance, and at the same time ask that committees of the two organizations continue their discussions.

Holding such meetings would be meaningless in view of the position you have taken in this matter.

Therefore, I am advising that there would be no point whatever in wasting the time of committees to draw up understandings and then have them treated in the matter in which you have acted on the agreement that was reached.

Fraternally yours,

Dear Sir and Brother:

Receipt of your letter of April 2, 1964 regarding the proposed Agreement on Ceiling Systems, between our organizations is hereby acknowledged. We respectfully suggest that your present position does not reflect the agreement of all concerned upon the procedure to be followed by both unions in the adoption of the proposed agreement.

Your prior personal statements and correspondence demonstrate that all persons concerned with the negotiation of the proposed agreement including yourself and the Lathers, late General President Mashburn, specifically agreed that the proposed agreement would not become effective until it received the approval and ratification of both executive boards. The proposed agreement was submitted to the General Executive Board of the Lathers International Union and was rejected. Under date of March 26, 1964, you were notified of the action of our executive board in this respect.

We believe that the foregoing leaves no room for dispute that the Lathers International Union has not become a party to the proposed agreement. However we are still anxious to arrive at a mutually satisfactory solution and settlement of the jurisdictional problems about which our organizations sometimes differ. It is my hope and belief that our committees, by continuing their discussions concerning this matter may yet fashion a proposal which will be acceptable to the governing bodies of both organizations and be beneficial to our respective memberships.

With best wishes, I am

Dear Sir and Brother:

I acknowledge with regret your letter of April 21, 1964, in which you advise that further discussions between the committees representing our two organizations would be meaningless.

Despite the fact that the proposed Agreement of June 10, 1963, is not in effect and was never consummated, I do not share your pessimistic view with regards to future meetings.

It is only through continued discussions and mutual appreciation of the problems that beset both of our organizations, that we can arrive at meaningful and amicable conclusions. Therefore, I stand ready and willing at all times to meet with you, or through representatives of our organizations, to further explore any matters of mutual concern.

Please advise.

terial, letters from Contractors, etc. be forwarded to me immediately when a dispute exists regardless of who is assigned the work. This is vitally important in our effort to have the National Joint Board award us the decisions. As journeymen, you can assist your Business Agent in many ways when a jurisdictional dispute exists. In many instances, you are the first to know that a dispute does exist. You should immediately inform your Business Agent of the dispute and give him any information you may have in regard to the dispute in order that he may convey this information to me so that our cases may be properly prepared for presentation to the Board.

It is only through working together that we are able to protect the work which properly belongs to us. Therefore, I again urge you to give your full cooperation in respect to this matter. If you have any questions or desire further information please advise.

The Board of Trustees of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union General Pension Fund and General Pension Plan held a meeting Thursday, April 16, 1964, in the International Office with Employer Trustees, Hoyle B. Gilbert and Thomas J. McGlone and Union Trustees, Harold Mills and myself present. Attorney Louis

H. Wilderman also attended the meeting.

A Chairman and a Secretary of the Board of Trustees were elected at this meeting in accordance with Article III, Section 8, of the Declaration of Trust. I was elected Chairman of the Board of Trustees and Employer Trustec Hoyle B. Gilbert was elected Secretary of the Board of Trustees.

A motion made by Trustee McGlone and seconded by Trustee Gilbert was passed unanimously that Louis H. Wilderman be retained to handle all legal work of the General Pension Plan and the General Pension Fund.

I again urge you to make every effort to have the Pension Plan contained in your Collective Bargaining Agreements when you negotiate, because the more locals and members we have participating in this plan, the better plan we will be able to have.

Sincerely and Fraternally

Decisions of the General President

PUBLISHED IN ACCORDANCE WITH SECTION 180 INTERNATIONAL CONSTITUTION:

"All appellate decisions of the General President and/or of the Executive Council and/or of the Convention must be published in the following issue of The Lather along with a short and concise synopsis of the case being decided."

James J. McDermott #44962 and Joseph A. McSorley, Jr., #48962 Vs. Local No. 53

Brothers James J. McDermott and Joseph A. McSorley, Jr. appealed against the action of Local No. 53 in fining them $35.00 each for a violation of Section 25 of the local's By-Laws; and for a violation of Section 105 of the L.I.U. Constitution. After carefully considering all evidence presented in this matter the General President found these brothers guilty and upheld the fines as placed.

Report from the

GENERAL SECRETARY-TREASURER

We have received the delegate and alternate delegate credentials for our 25th Convention to be held at the Hotel Astor in New York City convening at 10 a.m., Monday, September 14, 1964. These will be mailed to you as promptly as possible and after you have elected your delegate and alternate delegate in accordance with the L.I.U. Constitution and the applicable federal laws, fill out both the original and the duplicate for the delegate and the alternate giving the original credential to the delegate or alternate for him to present when he registers at the Convention and mail the duplicate credentials to us, so that we may check the record of the person elected to see that his record conforms with the requirements of the L.I.U. Constitution in order that we may list him as a delegate or alternate to the Convention.

When you receive the credentials, I will appreciate them being returned as promptly as possible to give us as much time as possible to get the transportation expense checks prepared and sent to the member who is going to be the delegate from your Local Union.

I would like to draw to your attention the requirements of Section 217 of the L.I.U. Constitution in reference to resolutions and as you will note in this section that resolutions must be received at least 15 days prior to the opening of the Convention unless State, Provincial or District Councils meet within five days prior to the opening of the Convention in which case the resolutions from State, Provincial or District Councils may be submitted no later than the closing of the first session of the Convention, which would be the closing of the Monday, September 14th session. You will also note in this section that the resolutions must be submitted in duplicate to the Secretary-Treasurer of the L.I.U.

In Section 219c of the L.I.U. Constitution there is the following requirement for a local to be eligible to send a delegate or alternate delegate to the Convention:

"It is necessary that the per capita tax of the Local Union, which the delegate or alternate delegate represents to have been paid up to and including the month prior to the month in which the Convention is held in order for such delegate or alternate to be seated and/or to participate in the affairs of the Convention."

Although we have very few locals who are delinquent in their tax, I do want to make them aware of this section, and make them aware of the fact that they must get their per capita tax payments up to date in order to be eligible to have a delegate or alternate delegate seated at the Convention.

I have been advised by the Committee on Political Education that some of the voluntary contributions are being received and hope that each member will see fit to contribute the $1 contribution to this cause, so that it may be successful, and so that we may meet the quota that has been set for the L.I.U. for this year. I appreciate your support to this necessary cause and still maintain that the value you receive from this dollar will be the best you will receive from any dollar that you ever spend. Thank you for seeing fit to contribute to this necessary cause.

Lack of Education Characteristic of Poor

A Congressional committee, conducting hearings on the Administration's anti-poverty program, was told here that the most important single thing that distinguishes poor families in America today is the lack of formal education of the family head.

Combinations of low education and other disadvantages can increase the chances of a family being poor. Such things as living in the south, or being old, or being non-white, or having a broken family, together with lack of formal education, account for much of today's poverty.

The report on "Poverty in America" was submitted by The University of Michigan's Survey Research Center to the House Committee on Education and Labor for its current hearings on the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964.

The author of the report, James N. Morgan, a Survey Research Center program director and professor of economics, describes some of the groups in which a substantial fraction of families are poor.

"About 20 per cent of the families in the U.S. can be described as poor by a measure which relates income to a set of minimum needs," Professor Morgan explains. "But if the head of the family never went beyond eighth grade and the family also lives in the south, the chances are as high as six out of ten that the family will be poor.

"If, in addition to being a southerner with little education, the head of the family is also a Negro, chances are nine out of ten that the family will be poor. Or if the family head is not a Negro but is widowed, divorced or separated, chances are almost eight out of ten that the family will be poor."

Although many of the poor families have only one apparent disadvantage, it is not always the same disadvantage for each of them, the report explains. And combinations of two or three disadvantages for a family can be overwhelming.

In other words, the report concludes:

"It is the joint action of several 'disadvantages' that leads to high incidences of poverty, yet there seems to be 'substitute disadvantages,' any one of which can combine with one of the major ones to produce a high chance of poverty.

"The implication is that attempts to eliminate some of the causes of poverty may be fruitless if other causes are not eliminated at the same time. The results of tackling them one at a time may well be discouragingly small."

Oklahoma Voters Crush Move for State 'Work' Law

The voters of Oklahoma have crushed a well-financed move for a so-called "right-to-work" law in their state.

The proposal had been placed on the May 5 ballot by the "Oklahomans for the Right to Work" and had the support of the reactionary Farm Bureau Federation and extreme right-wing groups such as the John Birchers and Billy Joe Hargis' followers.

The final vote, with only 34 precincts uncounted, shows that 375,524 voted against the compulsory open shop and 344,890 voted for it.

Fighting relentlessly against the "work" law were the State AFL-CIO and COPE, the Oklahoma Committee for Free Collective Bargaining and the National Farmers Union.

The outcome was hailed by Roy Tillman, president of the Oklahoma AFL-CIO, and Martin Hauan, executive director of the pro-collective bargaining committee which numbered some 600 prominent citizens—lawyers, farm leaders, college professors, religious leaders.

A breakdown of the vote shows that a turning point in the drive against the "work" law was the heavy opposition of Negro voters.

Analysis of Negro precincts in Oklahoma City and Tulsa shows that the voters in these areas overwhelmingly rejected the "work" law. These precincts chalked up votes like 401 to 3 against, 419 to 13 against, etc.

Among the top Negro leaders who issued statements or campaigned against the "work" law were Rev. Martin Luther King, President Roy Wilkins of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and AFL-CIO Vice President A. Philip Randolph.

James Patton, chairman of the National Council for Industrial Peace and president of the National Farmers Union, reviewed the outcome of the referendum at a press conference in Washington, and gave these reasons why he thought the open shop plan was defeated:

1. The registration and get-out-the-vote drive of COPE was extremely effective.

"There was deep dedication on the part of the rank-and-file once they realized the issue at stake," he said.

2. The overwhelming Negro vote against the "work" law. Patton said it was the largest Negro vote ever cast in Oklahoma.

3. The farm vote—which many expected would be for the referendum—turned out to be slightly in opposition.

The top Democratic leadership in the state came out against the "work" law. This included Sen. Mike Monroney, Rep. Carl Albert, Democratic leader in the U.S. House of Representatives, and major candidates for governor.

The GOP in Oklahoma supported the proposal, as did Henry Bellman, the Republican governor, Bud Wilkinson, former Oklahoma football coach who won the GOP nomination for governor, sat on the fence.

One feature of the election is that more votes were cast on the "right-to-work" referendum than were ever cast in a primary election in the state's history. This follows the pattern set in 1958, when record votes were counted in Idaho, California and Ohio to defeat "work" laws.

Patton stressed that "this proves that when an adequate educational job is done and voters are registered and cast their ballots, the compulsory open shop will lose."

He pointed out that in 1961 a public opinion poll in Oklahoma showed that the people of the state approved the "work" law by 4 to 1.

APPRENTICESHIP

By
National Director

When someone mentions 'Apprenticeship' most of us think of it with an 'old hat' attitude, for we have served an apprenticeship, or have been associated with apprenticeship, most of our lives, but let's stop and look at it for a few minutes.

The word 'Apprentice' comes from the Latin words "Apprendere" and "Apprehendere", which means, "The act of taking hold, seizing, or grasping; understanding." Apprenticeship is the oldest known means of training and learning. It is recorded that Christ worked as an apprentice in his father Joseph's carpenter shop. Through most of history, it was within the family unit that an apprenticeship was served, for generation after generation followed in their father's footsteps and in his craft. This is shown today by the great number of surnames which came from the trade our fore-fathers followed.

Educational systems, such as schools, are a very recent innovation. The professions used only apprenticeship until the late 19th century. To become a lawyer, one served an apprenticeship by reading law in the office of a practicing attorney. Today, one must still serve an apprenticeship or, as they call it, an internship, before one can be licensed as a medical doctor. Knowledge, skills and techniques have advanced so that today Medical Schools, Law Schools, etc., supplement the apprenticeship system for the professions.

It was not until after WW II that the skilled crafts really started to supplement their programs with related classroom and correspondence instruction. After the war the need for skilled journeymen was so great that just about anyone who professed to having served some or all of his apprenticeship some other place or time, was accepted at his word and put to work. It quickly became evident that many were not skilled or knew much about their craft, so efforts were started to raise the quality by stricter requirements, more comprehensive training with related classroom instruction and closer supervision of apprentices. National Programs were started to help with this, to assist and do those things which were not feasible or financially possible on the local level.

This, in a very few words, gives the evolution of education, showing the long history of apprenticeship. This should illustrate to you that you should be proud of your education, your apprenticeship. You are a skilled Craftsman, and, with the knowledge and ability acquired through your apprenticeship, you can create from lines on paper, arches, domes, groins, lunettes; any shape or form, so the ideas of an architect or other person, are transformed from a thought to a substance.

Testimonial Dinner Honors General President Maso

A dinner in General President Maso's honor was held in the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, New Jersey, April 29, 1964, and was attended by over a thousand friends, and associates of General President Maso's from State, and National Officials, and the entire labor movement.

Among the top officials who were present to honor General President Maso were U.S. Senators, Clifford P. Case, and Harrison A. Williams, Jr., who flew in from Washington for the affair. Although Governor Richard P. Hughes was unable to remain for the dinner, he was present earlier in the evening to greet the many guests.

Abe J. Green, Associate Editor of the Paterson News served as Toastmaster for the affair.

Patrick Mullane, President of the New Jersey State Council, presented General President Maso with a watch on behalf of the Council. Harry Pivnick, President of the New Jersey Contracting Lathers' and Plasterers' Association, presented Mrs. Maso with a bouquet of red roses.

In receiving this honor General President Maso said that on occasions such as this words never adequately express what is in the heart of the honored guest.

Tough Factory Floor Made With Metal Lath and Epoxy

ABOVE: Workmen trowel a primer coat over the hardwood floor which earlier had been sanded and vacuumed to eliminate all foreign particles. BELOW: Two workmen needed about ten minutes to level off 20 to 25 square feet of about one-quarter inch thickness.

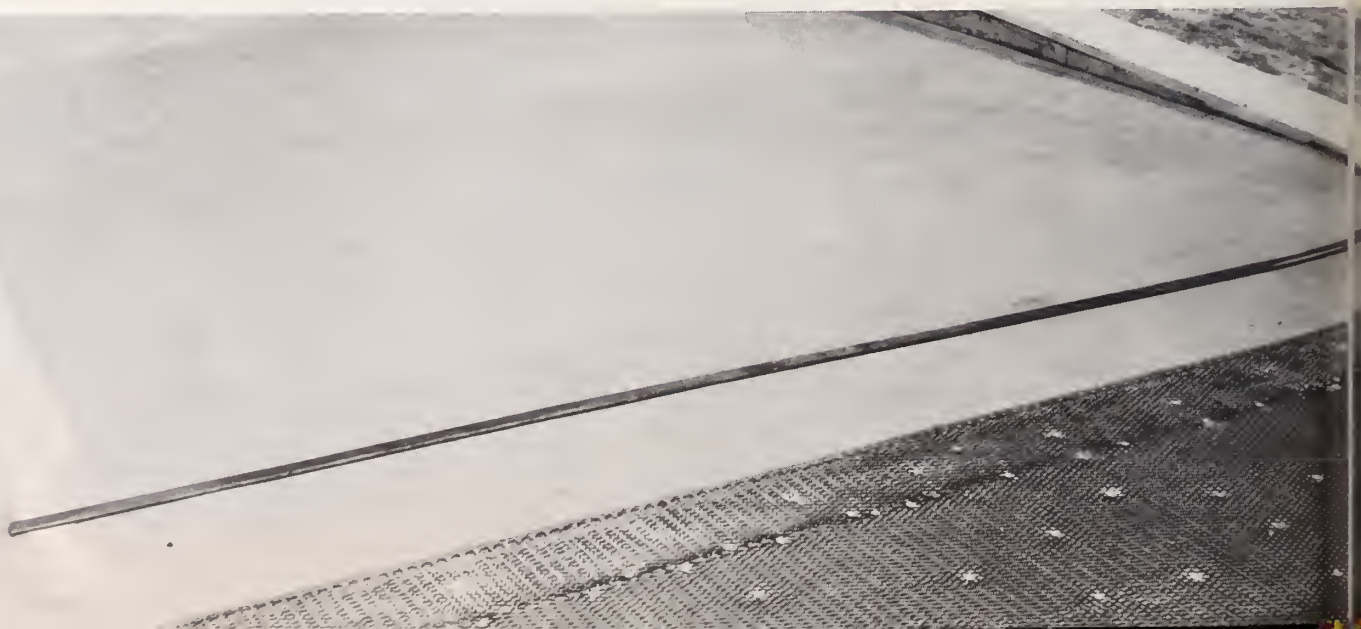

Worn, wheel-rutted and cracked floors in industrial areas are being resurfaced, quickly and effectively, with metal lath and an epoxy-sand topping. The combination produces a surface that numerous tests have shown to have great durability, withstanding wear from all sources, including heavy, steel-wheeled equipment.

One such installation was made by G. Benson Construction Company, Minneapolis, in an 800-foot-long, second-floor passageway of a flour mill in that city. In this area of a General Mills plant, where flour is ground and graded, steel-wheeled lift trucks transport heavy loads of flour and grain. The original hardwood floor previously had been resurfaced with other materials which had deteriorated rapidly.

Consideration of all angles of the problem reduced the choices to either six inches of reinforced concrete or a quarter-inch of epoxy-sand mixture applied over metal lath. The lesser weight, greater speed of installation and less height of finished flooring determined the choice of the latter technique.

Contractor Benson reported that a three-man crew could lay a thousand-square-foot floor in an eight hour day. Four hours later the entire area is opened to normal operation of vehicular traffic, a decisive factor where plant operations are to be disrupted by such repair work. Such rapid progress, of itself would make this new technique extremely valuable to an owner. The added benefits of durability and lesser added thickness are "performance bonuses" which are not received with other systems.

Newly finished topping will be ready within four hours for traffic by heavily burdened steel-wheel trucks:

Exterior Panels Of Metal Lath Provide Savings

To face the Casey Building, Clifton, New Jersey, Architect Alfonso Alvarez called for panels of structural studs and galvanized rib metal lath. The panels were formed on the job and metal lath was welded to each side of the structural studs. Portland cement plaster was applied to the outside panel, and smooth finish gypsum plaster to the inward facing surface.

Reached at his office in Upper Montclair, Mr. Alvarez explained that this design provides lightweight panels that are easily and speedily fabricated. The exterior placement of the structural steel columns, with resultant uninterrupted interior wall surfaces of metal lath and plaster, provided savings of both construction

The three-story commercial building has 28,440 sq. ft. of floor space, and is situated on a 1 1/3 acre site. The exterior design is primarily of exposed steel columns superimposed on portland cement plaster-surfaced wall units, alternating with glass panels. Interior partitions are solid stud-less, using 3/8 in. rib metal lath and plaster, with a resultant space saving-thickness of only 2 1/8 inch.

Lathing and plastering contractor was A. T. Dodge Company, Fords, N. J. Structural engineer was John Alexanders of Fairlawn, N. J., and general contractor was Mahoney-Troast Company, Clifton, New Jersey.

Safety Records of Metal Lath Manufacturers Recognized

Four member companies of the Metal Lath Association have been cited for having perfect safety records among manufacturing personnel, or for having shown the greatest reduction in accident rates, or the lowest frequency rate, during 1963. Recognition, in the form of plaques, was awarded by the Metal Lath Association Safety Committee at its mid-March meeting, under the chairmanship of E. C. Beuthin, Manager of Safety, United States Gypsum Company.

Perfect no-injury records were reported by: The Bostwick Steel Lath Co., Niles, Ohio; the Niles plant of the National Gypsum Company; Republic Steel Corp., Manufacturing Division, Youngstown, Ohio; and the Hermosa, Ill., and Warren, Ohio, plants of U. S. Gypsum Company. Each will receive a permanent plaque to mark its record.

The Bostwick Steel Lath Company also received the Association's safety plaque "for the greatest reduction in accident frequency rate" in 1963. This is a traveling plaque, to which is added the name and year of each winner, and which is held by the recipient during the ensuing year, only.

National Gypsum Company was awarded another traveling plaque, "for the lowest frequency rate" in 1963. When more than one plant achieves a perfect no-injury record for the year, the award for the lowest frequency rate is made to the company expending the greatest number of man hours.

This is the second successive year that U. S. Gypsum Company's Warren plant, and the Manufacturing Division of Republic Steel Corporation have had perfect no-injury records. For the Hermosa plant of U. S. Gypsum Company, it is the fifth successive year. The Bostwick Steel Lath Company has received seven perfect no-injury awards in the last eight years.

J. J. Parise, right, Personnel and Safety Supervisor, National Gypsum Company, receives Safety plaque from Richard N. Parker, left, Managing Director, MLA, and Louis Zale, Ceco Steel Products Corp., newly elected chairman of the MLA Safety Committee.

KEEP COOL -- FOODWISE

Beware the salmonella or staphylococci in your kitchen! These are the gremlins that tie your stomach in knots and make you wonder if the end is nigh. In severe cases, you hope it is -- and quickly!

The imps with the fancy names are bacteria that so often develop in foods not carefully prepared or properly stored before serving. Unseen and usually without odor, they can cause severe stomach cramps and other digestive upsets.

Food poisoning, often miscalled ptomaine (found only in decomposed protein foods), is a danger all year round. However, when cookout and picnic time approaches, every home cook should review the following tips from a Red Cross food and nutrition consultant for making food as safe as it is tasty and attractive.

The first rule for safe food handling, according to the Red Cross, is always wash your hands before starting. In addition, never handle food while suffering from a cold, a sinus infection, or skin eruptions such as boils, carbuncles, rashes, or pimples. Any open sore or cut is also a hazard.

Certain foods are more susceptible to the development of bacteria than others and should receive special care. These include cream-filled custard pies and pastries, creamed dishes such as chicken à la king, meat and meat products, shellfish, poultry, and milk and milk products.

Salads such as potato, egg, macaroni, ham, and tuna, sauces, dressings such as mayonnaise, and gravies also demand special attention. Dishes that contain mustard or vinegar, such as deviled eggs and German potato salad, are less likely to cause trouble.

Dry milk once it is mixed with water spoils as quickly as regular milk.

Beware of some fast cooking techniques that may not heat food throughout.

Heat and humidity are bacteria-breeding grounds, so keep food at or below 50°. Eat picnic foods within 2 to 4 hours after preparation unless it has been kept in a cooler, an ice chest, or a refrigerator.

Food should be exposed to kitchen temperature only during preparation. It is just an old wives' tale that hot foods have to cool off before refrigerating. If foods have to be left out for a few minutes, always cover them with some type of lid. Keep leftovers in the refrigerator until the actual time of reheating.

In chilling food for a large group, divide the food into several containers before refrigerating. Otherwise, proper quick cooling will not take place, and any germs present will have a good opportunity to multiply. There should be less than 2 inches between the outside of the container and the center of the food mass. Refrigerators should not be so overloaded that good air circulation around containers is impossible.

In summary, says the Red Cross, prepare food quickly under sanitary conditions and cool it promptly. Use special care with those foods to which staphylococci are especially attracted. Then you will guard against meals that can become disasters, bacterially speaking!

GOP Maps All-Out Push In Big Cities

Ten major industrial areas have been pin-pointed by the Republican party for an all-out drive to harvest votes among minority and low-income groups. Together, the 10 big cities represent states which control 220 of the 270 electoral votes needed to elect a President. The cities are New York, Los Angeles, Detroit, Chicago, Baltimore, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Milwaukee, Newark, Minneapolis-St. Paul.

The drive will eat up a big portion of the $12 million campaign fund Republicans figure they will need to finance National Committee activities for the 1964 campaign. According to a memorandum recently circulated by GOP National Chairman William Miller, about $9.5 million will be poured into the presidential contest, $2 million to help GOP candidates for the House, and $500,000 for senatorial candidates.

Though the big-cities program will be emphasized, Republicans plan as well to focus heavy activity in 17 states with high farm population, including among them five of those represented by the big city list—Illinois, Michigan, California, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Other states on the GOP list are North and South Dakota, Indiana, Ohio, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Utah, Wyoming, Washington.

The GOP decision to concentrate in selected big cities probably is an outgrowth of the party's reading of 1960 campaign results, when John F. Kennedy drew most of his strength from industrial areas.

At a meeting of GOP National Committee members in January, 1962, a special committee, formed specifically to study 1960 results in the big cities and to recommend new techniques to draw support, reported, "The Republican Party lost the 1960 presidential election in the big cities of this nation. If we had done a better job in some of these cities, we could have carried eight more states with 173 electoral votes."

The special GOP committee emphasized "... it is not necessary for us to carry the big cities—we just need to reduce the Democratic margin ... then our outstate and suburban strength, under normal conditions should enable us to carry the state."

The committee stressed, too, its opinion that "... it is more evident than ever before that the big cities still offer fertile ground for the Republican Party, if it is willing to provide adequate finances, leadership and personnel to plan and execute intensive year-round programs."

Major GOP Targets

Following are major industrial states—some of them represented on the GOP big-cities list—where Republicans plan all-out effort this year. Also, key GOP farm state targets are listed. Each state's electoral vote total is noted. Needed to elect a President: 270 electoral votes.

Report From the GENERAL PRESIDENT

SPECIAL ATTENTION

All Members of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union

On August 15, 1957, our late General President Lloyd A. Mashburn, and Loyd G. Peterson, who was then President of the National Contractors Association appeared before the National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes and made a presentation in behalf of the Lathers International Union and the Contractors International Association and its members.

In reading this presentation, it is evident of the tremendous amount of time and effort and no doubt research which was exerted in compiling this information.

I am sure you can fully realize how deeply concerned our late General President Lloyd A. Mashburn was in protecting our trade jurisdiction and in seeing that our members performed the work which rightfully belongs to them.

This matter is of great importance to each and every member of our International Union, and should be read very carefully so that you may understand, and be aware of the long lasting struggle we have made to not only gain, but to retain, our jurisdictional rights.

I am reproducing here this presentation, which was taken from the original documents of the Building and Construction Trades Department verbatim and sets forth facts which will give you the guidance for obtaining this type of work for our members when it comes up in your area.

Presentation by Wood, Wire & Metal Lathers International Union and Contracting Plasterers' International Association August 15, 1957

Mr. Chairman and members, in order to save time and to avoid a long dissertation, I have put our initial presentation in writing. We appreciate the time allotted to us from your busy schedule to hear our complaints against the decisions of the Board, both past and present, and we will try to state our reasons as briefly as possible. However, we hope, because of brevity, the Board will not minimize the very vital and important effect that these decisions have had upon our industry, both from the standpoint of the Lathers International Union and the Contractors International Association and its members.

Mr. Peterson is a plastering contractor from Minneapolis and is president of their Association. Their Association, like the Lathers International Union, is not a participant in the Board, having withdrawn prior to the time that the Lathers International Union did because of decisions made which we feel are contrary not only to long-existing trade practices in the industry but as well contrary to the agreements and decisions of record contained in the Green Book and contrary to the basic jurisdiction of the International Union.

With that initial statement and on the assumption that the Board recognizes the basic jurisdiction of our International Union as well as the decisions and agreements of record set forth in making these decisions, I would like to read to you the basic jurisdiction of the Lathers and Carpenters International Unions:

"Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union

"Erecting and installing of all light iron construction, furring, making and erecting of brackets, clips and hangers; wood, wire and metal lath, plaster board, or other material which takes the place of same, to which plastic material is adhered; corner beads, all floor construction, arches erected for the purpose of holding plaster, cement, concrete, or any other plastic material.

"NOTE: Plaster board, substituting lath, composed of plaster of Paris, shavings, rope, fibre and straw, is conceded to Lathers."

"United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America

"The jurisdiction of the United Brotherhood extends over all journeymen carpenters or joiners, stair builders, ship joiners, millwrights, planing mill bench hands, cabinet makers, car builders or operators of wood-working machinery.

"Our jurisdiction extends over all men engaged in the occupations enumerated above, whether on the building in its erection or repair, or employed in the preparation or manufacture of material for same.

"Our jurisdiction extends over men engaged in putting up all kinds of wood moulding, putting up 'runs,' strips for plumbers, the valves passing through floors, joists or partitions, where coming in contact with wood; also the setting of all wood work in toilet rooms.

"Fastening on all wood cleats to iron work; cutting up and hanging all rough lumber between iron girders and joists for fireproof or concrete centers, and all forms used in concrete work. The setting of all floor strips in cement floors.

"The setting of all sash, doors, windows and other frames. The building and setting of all centers made of wood. Putting on of plaster boards and putting on all plaster grounds, and also the erection of all furring for cornices where wood is used.

"The building of all scaffolding where any carpenters tools are used; the building and construction of all derricks; making of mortar boards, boxes and trestles; putting in 'needles,' uprights, and all shoring of buildings, razing and moving buildings, etc.

"The nailing and cutting of all wooden stops in doors and windows, the framing of all false work, derricks, etc., when applying to structural iron work.

"The handling of all materials used by carpenters and joiners in and around buildings, including all joints, frames and all lumber and materials used by the carpenter and contractor.

"NOTE: Burkett sheathing as well as compo board, no plaster applied, is conceded to carpenters."

As may be noted, the demarcation line between the Lathers and Carpenters is metal and wood.

You find nothing in the Carpenters' basic jurisdiction which gives them jurisdiction over this work nor does his training, skills, methods or tools qualify him on this type of work.

On the contrary, in the Lathers' basic jurisdiction, which is metal in this present discussion, the training, skills, methods and tools qualify him to erect this work since it is identical with his historical practice of erecting all light iron furred ceilings to receive plaster as well as acoustical material.

Going to the Green Book, I have before me on page 17 an agreement of record which is self-explanatory and again conforms to the basic jurisdiction where the Lather concedes to the Carpenter wood and its erection and installation, and the Carpenter concedes to the Lather all light iron furring and metal studs.

"Carpenters and Lathers

"Agreement entered into between the representatives of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union, January 14, 1903.

"Pending the action of their convention, the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America agree not to assert jurisdiction over any iron work, including iron or wire lathing, studding, or any other exclusively iron work claimed by the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union.

"The Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union agree that we will not assert jurisdiction over or allow our members to perform any wood work, including shingling, wooden arches, door or window frames, wooden studding or furring, or any other carpenter or wood work, except wooden lath to receive plastic material.

"Signed for the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America:

"Wm. D. Huber, President

"Frank Duffy, General Secretary.

"Signed for the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union:

"Chas. Langlands,

"John Stevens, Committee."

Due to the wording of the agreement which says "pending the action of their convention", there may be some question as to the validity of the agreement. However, there should not be for the following reasons:

First, it is in the Green Book and has been in the Green Book and every official publication since 1903; and secondly, I have two letters here from the General President and General Secretary of the Carpenters verifying their concession of this work to the Lather.

These letters also quite definitely establish the demarcation line between wood and metal and concede to the Lather the erection of the light iron furring as well as metal studs as specifically stated in the agreement of record so that metal studs would belong to the Lather and wood furring, wood studs, as well as all other wood products, would belong to the Carpenter.

The following is a verbatim quote of the letters mentioned and the Chairman has photostatic copies available for substantiation.

"Mr. Ralph V. Brandt,
Secretary-Treasurer

401 Superior Bldg., Cleveland, O.

"Dear Sir and Brother:

"Replying to your communication of December 15th, there seems to be some misapprehension in regard to the jurisdictional lines between the two organizations on putting up furring. I did not mean for you to infer from my letter that this Organization claimed jurisdiction over iron or steel furring, but that all furring of wood should be put up by members of this United Brotherhood. Furring, as I understand in the agreement, refers to wood furring and not to another kind of furring, except where it specifically mentions iron.

"Trusting I have made my contention clear and wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year, I am,

/s/ Wm. D. Huber

"Mr. Ralph V. Brandt, Secretary,
Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union, 401 Superior Building, Cleveland, Ohio.

"Dear Sir and Brother:

"Your letter of May 6 is at hand, in which you call my attention to the fact that our members in Minneapolis are claiming the right to erect light ironwork. In compliance with your request I have to-day written the Secretary of our District Council in Minneapolis, informing him that this work properly belongs to the members of your organization, and that there must be no further infringement upon your jurisdiction by our members. I have written Second Vice-President Weston along the same lines, and I trust my letter will have the desired effect.

"With best wishes and kindest regards, I am,

/s/ Frank Duffy

GENERAL SECRETARY."

Further substantiation of our claims for light iron furring is contained in the decision rendered April 20, 1920 and set forth on pages 86 and 87 of the Green Book which reads as follows:

"Light Iron Furring, Brackets, Clips, Hangers, Corner Guards, Beads and Metallic Lath

"(Subject of dispute between the International Union of Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers and the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers.)

"(Award of the Denver Convention, Building Trades Department, A. F. of L., adopted November, 1908. See printed proceedings, Pages 69 to 71, inclusive.)

"DECISION RENDERED APRIL 28, 1920

"In the matter of dispute between the International Union of Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers and the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers referred to in the foregoing title, the following award is concurred in:

"After going into an extended hearing of the jurisdiction claims of both organizations, your committee recommends that the erection and installation of all light iron work, such as light iron furring, brackets, clips, hangers, steel corner guards or beads, and metallic lathing of all descriptions belong solely to the Lathers.

"This does not give the right, however, to the Lather to install or erect any other iron work than as herein specified and outlined.

"This decision is based in conformity with the agreement entered into by the national officers of both organizations and endorsed by the Kansas City Convention of Structural Iron Workers and concurred in by the American Federation of Labor."

Because of the following wording in that decision, "This does not give the right, however, to the Lather to install or erect any other iron work than as herein specified and outlined," we wish to call to your attention the reference to pages 69 to 71, inclusive, of the Proceedings of the Building Trades Department, AFL, adopted November 1908, at which time this action was taken. This was an action taken after a recommendation of the American Federation of Labor on an agreement reached by the Lathers and Iron Workers and in the discussion for the adoption of this agreement, Delegate Duffy, then General Secretary-Treasurer of the Carpenters and Chairman of the Committee, speaking for the Committee, said:

"Light iron work pertaining to lathing is specified. Any light iron work, according to our recommendation [committee's], belongs to the Lather."

In further answer of the Committee by Chairman Duffy to a question put to him, he stated the following:

"There has been no dodging on the part of this committee. We mention what the light iron work is. We distinctly specify that we do not stand for the Lather putting up any sort of beams or using a derrick, nor will we stand for him using a six by six. This dispute has been going on for some time. All that light iron work was originally done by the Lather. In 1903 your national officers and the national officers of the Lathers, with some of the delegates who are now present, met in order to come to an agreement or understanding relative to this dispute. They entered into an agreement, and in the latter part defined what the Lather must not do with heavy iron. The national officers of both organizations decided that the installation of all light iron work, such as iron furring, brackets, clips, hangers, corner beads, etc., belonged to the Lather. In the next year, when the Convention of the Iron Workers met, this agreement was concurred in. Afterwards it was endorsed by the American Federation of Labor."

In view of all of these facts, there would seem to be no question whatever that light iron furring as presently used to receive plaster or acoustical tile is the work of the Lather. This would also be true of metal studing since this is light iron furring without question as defined by these documents and as well, by Webster's dictionary, since it is defined as being comparatively light weight and would seem to fit exactly into the definition given by Chairman Duffy in respect to the 1903 and to the 1920 agreements mentioned above.

We have samples which we present for your information. These are only a few samples of the type of work being done of the metal studs and light iron furred ceilings to receive acoustical material. They are, nevertheless, typical of all the systems which generally differ only by trade name and not as to the material and the function of the material or the training, skills and methods necessary to erect the material.

As Chairman of the Local Joint Board for the Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes for Southern California for approximately twenty years, it was necessary for me to not only attempt to reach settlements of jurisdictional disputes but on many occasions to make arbitrary decisions and to become a student of not only our basic jurisdictions of all trades but as well agreements and decisions of record made by the various officials and tribunals and contained in the Green Book. Later, of course, it was necessary to review and keep current on the decisions made by the National Joint Board.

No place can I find where the Carpenters have anything officially recognized by the Building Trades Department or the American Federation of Labor in writing which would warrant the Board giving decisions on light iron furring or metal studding to the Carpenter, either for the purpose of receiving plaster or acoustical tile. On the contrary, both the decisions and agreements of record as well as the legislative history give proof that the type of work under discussion has already been awarded to the Lather.

All decisions made by all officers and tribunals of the Department up to 1950 as contained in this document, the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' Jurisdictional Manual (these are photostatic copies of decisions which should be in your files), gave all this work to the Lather and even at the present time, Boston, New York and Chicago Boards still continue to award this work to the Lather. Only the National Joint Board has changed its position since 1950 and we in the industry have been unable to determine its reasons because we can find no place where the Carpenter has a claim over this type of work.

This is not our only complaint against the decisions of the National Joint Board where we believe they have erred in rendering decisions which are contrary to the agreements and decisions of record. However, we believe that we should confine this particular discussion to this particular issue because of the limited amount of time which has been allotted to us at this meeting. Further, we believe that if this the most important controversy can be adjudicated to the satisfaction of both sides, the others can be taken up at a later date when decisions are rendered in those instances.

So much for the agreements and decisions of record. The next point is trade practice. Approximately 250 decisions have been rendered since the Lathers withdrew from the Board in March 1955, and many decisions contrary to the agreement of record between 1950 and 1955 which is the cause for our withdrawal. In none of these cases did the Lather request a decision. Approximately all of the decisions requested were by the Carpenter, indicating that we had trade practice since the employer had not only assigned us to the particular job but we had letters which were submitted to the then Chairman, John Dunlop, showing that it was trade practice to assign Lathers to this work. Nevertheless, the Board continually rendered typical decisions which have now by precedent amounted to national decisions which is contrary to the Board's procedure without having a panel hearing, giving Lathers generally only the hanger and carrier and not the cross furring or the board, where the board was used. On the question of the erection of the board, I do not intend to argue that point at this time since that is one of the issues which I believe might be discussed at a later date.

One further point on establishing trade practice. We have Mr. Peterson present who is President of the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association, who will verify that it has been the practice of all of its members to assign this type of work to the Lather, and the board as well.

In addition to that, I have many, many letters here from individual contractors, not members of the Association, establishing and stating on their own stationery, that it is their practice to assign this work to the Lather. We also, prior to cancelling out of the Board, submitted to the Chairman of the Board volumes on area practice which apparently was never given any recognition.

Heretofore, we have pointed out to the Board the seriousness of these decisions upon our industry. Many letters, copies of which I have received, have been directed to the Board by the contractors complaining of these decisions and of the inability of the Carpenter to furnish skilled and competent mechanics to properly perform the work awarded to them. I have to assume, although it may not be true, that these letters were read to the Board. There have been a number of instances where the work has been condemned and the contractor has lost money. There have been a number of instances where the contractor has figured his work based upon an organized crew of competent mechanics who he had in his employ and then had to change by reason of decisions of the Board causing loss to the contractor involved. Even though in 90% of the cases, the wage scale of the Lather was considerably higher than that of the Carpenter and while it caused a definite reduction in wages, it increased the cost of production. There are a number of instances, a few of which I will mention, where the Carpenter never did this type of work before and decisions have been rendered to the point where there has been almost an entire changeover from the Lather to the Carpenter in the jurisdiction of this work. This is the case in New York, outside of the Local Board; in Chicago, outside of the Local Board; Boston, outside of the Local Board; Cleveland; Los Angeles; St. Louis, and many other places.

I would like to show you pictures which I have available which shows the similarity of work receiving acoustical tile and that receiving plaster.

A decision was rendered on July 27, 1957, by the Board awarding steel studs to the Carpenter and here are the pictures.

These are steel studs receiving rock lath which is to receive plaster.

We would like to have the Board explain to us how, in view of the facts set forth herein, they can render any decisions in favor of the Carpenter over the Lather on the erection of light iron furring or steel studs to receive either plaster or acoustical material and where do they find anything in either the basic jurisdiction or the Green Book which would make such awards valid in accordance with their own procedural rules.

CLC Adopts Internal Disputes Plan—Machinery for the settlement of jurisdictional disputes was written into the constitution of the Canadian Labor Congress at its fifth convention here in the expectation that it would solve a problem that has plagued the organization since its beginning.

The plan closely follows the internal disputes setup that AFL-CIO unions have been living under, with a reduction in friction, since its adoption at the 1961 convention. Much of the language duplicates that in the AFL-CIO constitution, including the creation of a panel of impartial umpires and their role in settling jurisdictional disagreements.

An additional clause provides that cases involving merger or reorganization of plants or companies "under circumstances which eliminate the separate entities of previous bargaining units" will be referred directly to an impartial umpire, who is empowered to modify the section dealing with established work relationships.

Mr. William H. Burnell, Acting President-Secretary stated: "We have long realized that it is necessary that there should be Canadian autonomy in deciding jurisdictional disputes involving Canadian Members of International Unions."

Improvements in Canada's economy since the last convention were welcomed in a statement on economic policy, that warned against the government's "apparent conviction that the basic economic problems are vanishing." The improvement, the statement said, should be seized upon as an opportunity to plan for "a sustained pace of high growth and full employment."

It offered a three-point program for growth—expansion of the public sector of the economy with emphasis on higher investment in social capital; a cut in income taxes, especially at the lower levels, to boost purchasing power, and a broadened social security program.

T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party and its chief spokesman in Parliament, proposed to meet the problems posed by automation with a "massive assault on poverty" such as the Johnson Administration has started in the United States.

His program included improved social security measures, higher wages—especially minimum wages—higher incomes for farmers and fishermen, income tax cuts in the lower and middle income brackets, and a "massive" investment in new schools, hospitals, education, low-cost housing, municipal services and other forms of social capital.

Pres. Arne Geijer of the Intl. Confederation of Free Trade Unions reviewed ICFTU activities and urged the mature nations to invest more capital in the emerging countries so as to speed their economic and social development. Only a free labor movement unshackled by government can contribute to such development, he declared.

In other actions the convention:

- Demanded a workweek with a maximum of no more than 40 hours, higher minimum wages and double time for all overtime.

- Voted to press organization, especially in the white collar field.

- Welcomed "hopeful signs that the nightmare fear" of nuclear war has lifted, called for a total ban on all nuclear tests and for a "non-nuclear club of nations" which would not make, use or store such weapons, urged Canada to join the Organization of American States, and laid down policy on a wide range of additional matters.

- Called for nationwide coordination of technical and vocational training and asked the federal government to institute a system of aid to education at all levels, including university scholarships, for qualified students.

QFL Officers Given Carte Blanche to Defend Rights—

The trade unions in Quebec, building up tension over a period of several months, gathered together at a record-breaking special convention in this city to denounce sections of new labor legislation which would undermine labor's right to strike and freedom of association.

Well over 2,000 delegates responded to the Quebec Federation of Labour's call and gave the QFL officers carte blanche to fight the legislation with a general strike or any other means.

A particularly objectionable feature of the labor code is its resort to the courts to settle strike disputes. Labor disputes are especially economic matters, said trade union spokesmen, and cannot reasonably be settled by strictly legal procedures by men versed in law.

Premier Jean Lesage indicated after the conference that the legislation would be amended but labor could not expect to get all it demanded.

A month ago a deputation from the trade union movement met Labor Minister Fortin, warned him of the trade union movement's strong objections to particular aspects of the legislation but got nowhere.

Reaction of QFL President Roger Provost to the Premier's mollifying statement was wait-and-see. Armed with a near-unanimous vote from the huge meeting, Mr. Provost said, "You can be sure we have no intention of bending before any compromise of any kind."

However a strike in the near future is ruled out by the fact that Bill 54, as the legislation is known, will not likely come before the Legislature again until May.

A general strike would be illegal, QFL spokesmen agreed, but argued that normal means would be ineffective to fight the subversion of democratic procedures.

The QFL position on the legislation is in effect similar to that of the Canadian National Trade Unions headed by Jean Marchand which also has protested the dangers in Bill 54.

THE FEDERAL EIGHT HOUR DAY

The year 1868 was a banner one for advocates of the eight-hour day. In that year President Andrew Johnson signed the bill making eight hours the legal work day for certain Federal employes. The law applied only to laborers, workmen and mechanics employed by or on behalf of the Federal Government.

A jingle of the day attributed to the wife of Ira Steward, an early shorter work day leader, set the tone for the eight-hour day drive. The jingle went:

“Whether you work by the piece or work by the day, Decreasing the hours increases the pay.”

Establishment of the eight-hour day by the Federal Government marked a long step forward in shortening the hours of all working people and can be said to be one of the great landmarks of labor immediately after the Civil War.

Don't ever go away again, daddy!

Her Dad is one of the sensible ones. He went to his doctor as soon as he noticed a cancer danger signal. Thanks to his prompt action, his cancer was discovered when it was still in its early stages, and the prospects for cure are more favorable.

Do you know Cancer's Seven Danger Signals? 1. Unusual bleeding or discharge. 2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere. 3. A sore that does not heal.

4. Change in bowel or bladder habits. 5. Hoarseness or cough. 6. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing. 7. Change in a wart or mole. If you notice one of these signals and it lasts more than two weeks, see your doctor. It may not be cancer, but only a doctor can tell.

Play it safe and see your doctor once a year for a health checkup, too. And help research and education save lives by sending your check to "Cancer," c/o Postmaster.

GENERAL PRESIDENT

I would like to bring your attention to Sections 165 through 181, of the LIU Constitution "Charges, Trials and Appeals", because in reviewing the forms on charges filed against members of the LIU, submitted to me, I find in many instances the forms are not filled out to give all of the necessary information to fully inform me of the complete facts in the case. Many times we do not have copies of the Local Constitution and By-laws in which sections are referred to in setting forth the violations, which delays registering the fines until we have obtained copies from the Local Union. This should not happen because a copy of your Constitution and By-laws should be on file here in this office at all times. As soon as your Local Union adopts new By-laws and they are approved by myself, as General President, a copy should be forwarded to me for our files. This is important not only in the instance of checking violations on fine blanks submitted, but is also what I must be guided by, in conjunction with the LIU Constitution, when making rulings affecting your Local Union. Of course another reason a copy of your current Constitution and By-Laws should be on file in this office is so that it will be a matter of record that your Local Union is operating in compliance with the present Federal Laws.

You should also make sure that the proper procedures are followed when filing charges against any member of the LIU, as set forth in the LIU Constitution Sections 165 through 181 "Charges, Trials and Appeals". Many times members are not notified properly of charges filed against them and proper hearings are not held. I must be guided by the LIU Constitution when making decisions on charges against members and if the proper procedures are not followed by the Local Unions preferring the charges, I am unable to decide the case. I believe the LIU Constitution is clear in stating the proper procedures to follow, however, if you have any question or are in doubt as to the interpretation of any of these sections, do not hesitate to let me know.

You have by this time received the credentials for both the Delegate and Alternate Delegate from your local union to our forthcoming Convention to be held at the Hotel Astor, New York, September 14-18, 1964. If you are planning to attend the Convention you may look forward to several additional activities which are planned in conjunction with the Convention.

Local Union No. 46 New York is the Host Local Union to the Convention and they have made arrangements for the Delegates and their families to attend the Worlds Fair on Tuesday afternoon, September 15, 1964, and they have also arranged for a Dinner-Dance to be held Wednesday evening, September 16, 1964.

There will be other events of interest during that time, together with the attractions offered by the City of New York itself.

The Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association held their Board Meetings and Committee Meetings May 15-20, 1964, at the International Inn, Washington, D.C. I had the pleasure of attending many of the meetings and although the minutes of the meetings are not yet completed, I would like to discuss briefly in this report the meeting on the reactivation of the Promotion Program. Both the contractors and Labor were well represented at this meeting and seemed equally interested in the reactivation of the Promotion Program. George Bruggeman presided at the meeting at which Committees were appointed to draw up new By-laws and to submit recommendations for new officers. By a motion moved seconded and carried, Mr. Axel W. Oxholm will be the temporary Counsel for the Group.

The need for support of H.R. 5690 was brought up by Mr. Joe Powers of the OP & CMIA. Mr. Brueggeman stated that the CPLIA is on record as backing this Bill and urged that everyone do whatever they can to get it passed. This Bill if enacted will amend Section 302 (c) of the Labor Management Reporting Act, of 1947, to permit employer contributions for joint industry promotion of products in certain instances or joint committees or joint boards to interpret provisions of collective bargaining agreements.

I shall keep you informed as to the progress of the reactivation of the Promotional Program, through my report in the Journal each month, or through direct mailing should issues arise between publications of the Lather because this Program is most important to our industry and our membership as a whole.

The Board of Trustees for the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International General Pension Fund and General Pension Plan held a meeting May 20, 1964, at the Hamilton Hotel. This meeting was called at the request of the Employer Trustees to conclude some unresolved matters concerning the Pension Plan and Fund, and because of certain legal questions pertaining to the function of the Plan and Fund. One matter in particular was the official appointment of an Administrator for the Fund. Trustee Mills had been administering this fund, however, due to legal questions concerning the administration of this type of fund, and upon the advice of General Counsel Wilderman, the Trustees concluded the Administrator must be someone other than one of the Trustees. General Counsel Wilderman cited two cases which are now pending court action (1) American Bakeries Co. v Barrick, 41 LRRM 2653, (2) Kroger v Blassie, 55 LRRM 2224, and which were the result of like circumstances. The matter of the Fund operation remaining in the office of the LIU was also discussed. General Counsel Wilderman advised the Trustees he felt it legally all right to keep the Fund operation in Office of the LIU, but that it would show good faith if someone other than one of the Trustees was the Administrator. In order to avoid additional expenses being imposed upon the fund June E. Waddell was appointed Administrator, however, there was a motion made and carried that the Trustees continue to explore the possibility of appointing an outside administrator and moving the Fund operation out of the immediate offices of the LIU at a later date. We must at all times operate within the provisions of the Law in handling this type of operation or we take the chance of becoming involved legally, which can prove extremely costly, thus defeating our purpose in the long run.

Harold Mills submitted his resignation as Trustee for the General Pension Plan and General Fund at this meeting effective June 20, 1964. Under the provisions of the Declaration of Trust for the General Pension Fund and Plan, I, as General President of the LIU must appoint someone to fill the vacancy resulting from Trustees Mills resignation.

I just received a Press Release from the U.S. Department of Labor notifying us of the assignment of Mr. Edwin J. Riley, Jr., as Field Representative to handle matters pertaining to the determination of prevailing wage rates for Federal and Federally assisted construction projects. This will be the first such field office established by the U.S. Department of Labor in the country. Actual determination of prevailing wage rates will be made by the Solicitor's office of the Department of Labor in Washington, D.C. the same as in the past. Mr. Riley will be the Solicitor's representative for a region including six New England states plus New York and New Jersey, with quarters in the office of the Department's Regional Attorney located at 18 Oliver Street, Boston, Massachusetts. He will be available for consultation on matters pertaining to the Davis-Bacon Act and related acts.

I will say in behalf of Mr. Riley, that since I have been General President and the occasion has presented itself in reference to the predeterminations of wages rates in the area which he serviced, that Mr. Riley was always most cooperative, and I feel sure should any of our Local Unions located in the region Mr. Riley will be servicing in his new position will be afforded the same consideration should they seek his assistance.

I am quite pleased with the co-operation I have received from you with regard to having the work which comes under our trade jurisdiction assigned to our members. I assure you that I fully understand the trials and tribulations of all Officers and Business Agents of Local Unions because I have been the Business Agent for Local 143, Paterson, New Jersey, since 1930. There are times, I know, when you feel your efforts are in vain, but when everything looks the darkest if you will take time to consider, you will find that every moment spent on the problems you helped to solve has been well worthwhile. I urge you to keep up the good work, to cooperate with your local unions and fellow members and to cooperate with your International Representative and never hesitate to call upon me if I can advise or assist you in any way.

Sincerely and fraternally,

Sal Maso, General President

Fireproof South Colonie School Is Considered

If the South Colonie School Board, South Colonie, N.Y., decides to make fireproof the reconstruction of Colonie Village School, the anticipated insurance saving could pay for the extra cost over a 20-year period.

Supervisor Glenn E. Bretsch told the Board that an estimated $1,300 yearly saving in insurance premiums is expected if the structure is made fire resistant.

The extra cost would be eligible for state building quota, which Bretsch indicated is about 65% "Over 20 years, the savings in premiums would amount to about $26,000. Add this to the state's payment of approximately $52,000, and the total $78,000 would cover the added expenses," Bretsch said.

He told the Board that Charles Fake, of the State Education Department's Buildings and Grounds Division recommended reconstructing the building, which was damaged by fire earlier this month, with fireproof floors, partitions and roof.

They're making dinosaurs more durable—and a lot more useful—now a days. At least, the one that has reared its head, 43 ft. about U. S. Highway 19, in Weeki Wachee Spring, Florida, is built for untold ages. Constructed of steel pipes, arched space trusses, $\frac{3}{8}$ in. galvanized rib metal lath and portland cement, the space age's re-creation of a Mesozoic-era denizen will attract motorists to William Wilkis' proffer of fuel and service.

The dinosaur came into being as the result of a combination of circumstances: William Wilkis, owner of a Sinclair gasoline station, learned that he would have to rebuild, due to highway widening. Having seen the economical, 34 ft. square, domed house which Architect Richard Allen

Rose and Consulting Engineer Bertram S. Warshaw, Miami, had built on Tavernier Key, Wilkis contacted them to discuss construction of a domed filling station.

Unfortunately, the land was about nine feet below the highway, and on one side a hill would obstruct motorists' view of a domed station. To have filled the land to highway grade would have cost $20,000.

"The solution was frighteningly obvious," says Mr. Warshaw. "The Sinclair trademark, a dinosaur, would certainly be unique, and in proper scale, would be large enough and tall enough to fit Mr. Wilkis' requirements." This particular type of dinosaur, known as a brontosaurus, grew in the American Jurassic period to an overall length of 65 feet. Mr.

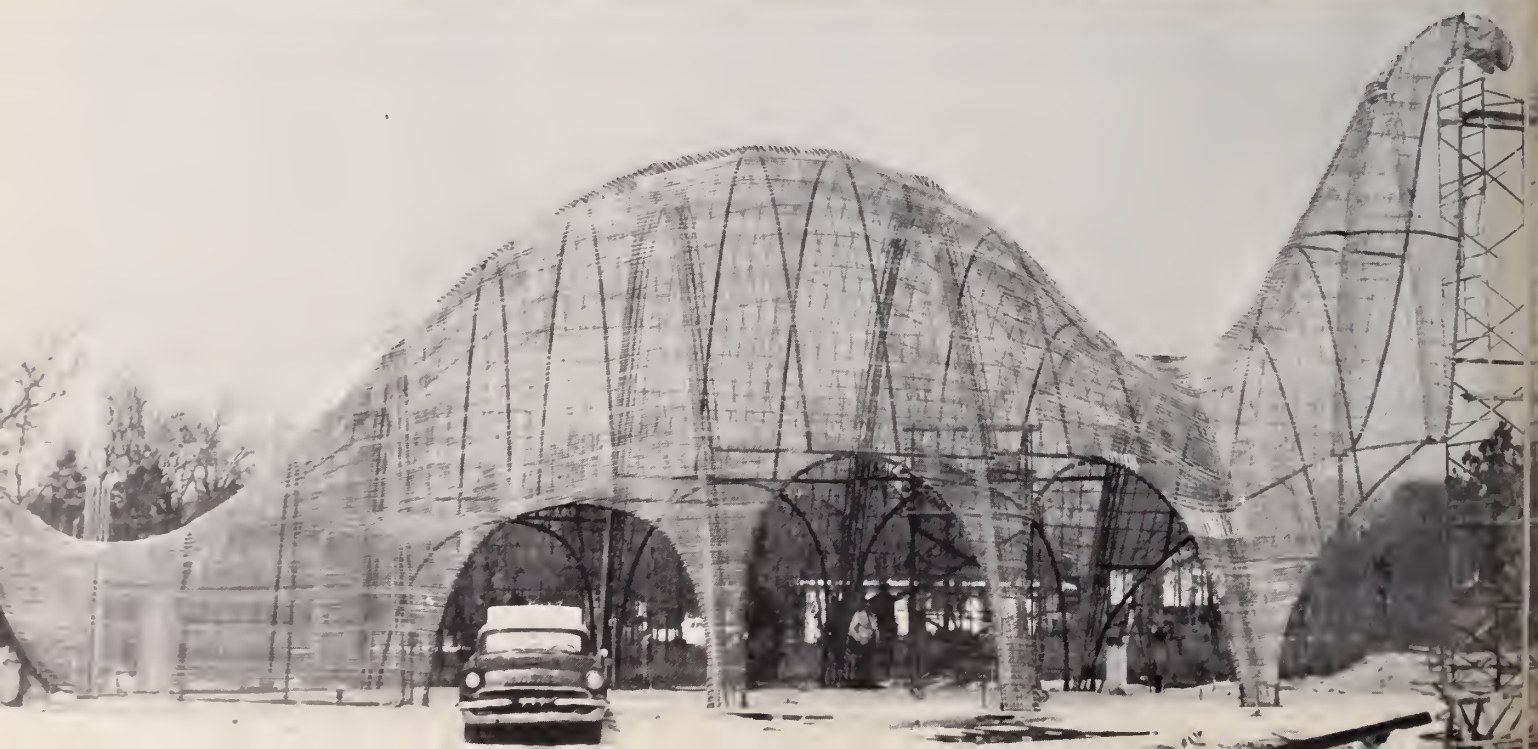

Wilkis' brontosaurus is 90 ft. long, 36 ft. wide and 43 ft. high. It accommodates a roughly oval-shaped 74 x 36 ft. service area, and has 2,350 sq. ft. of usable floor space. Arched openings provide access to three areas, for mechanical, lubrication and washing work.

The structure carries, at the beginning of the dinosaur's tail, an 8 in. thick concrete wall, incorporating a concrete column that supports the spine. At the opposite end, two $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. dia. steel pipes, 15 ft. high, support the breast.

Recognizing the threat of hurricanes, the structure was designed for wind pressures varying from 30 to 40 psf with height. The thin shell consists principally of elliptical parabolas, with four main, transverse,

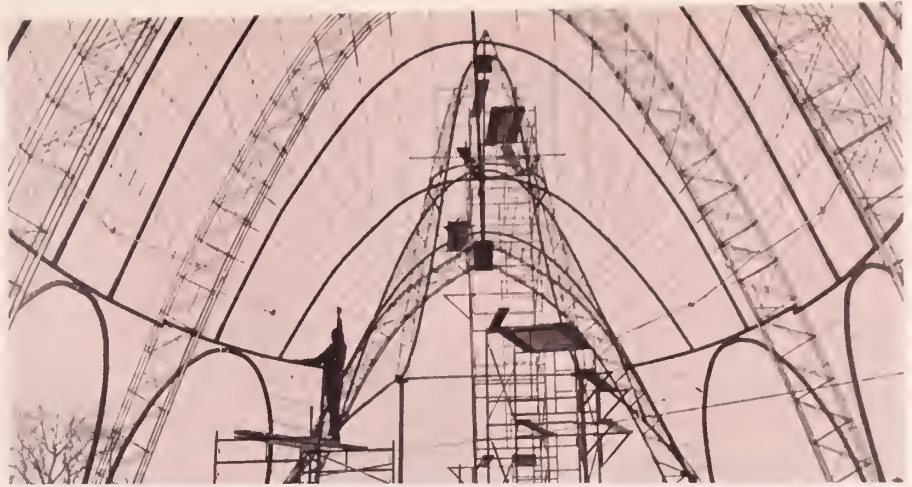

DINOSAUR LIVES AGAIN

The five space trusses which are the major structural members are visible through the rib metal lath "under-skin" of the brontosaurus. The structure is designed to withstand lateral wind forces varying from 30 psf to 40 psf. Wind load is resisted by the four main parabolic arcs, which are visible on each side of each bay. The steel is anchored to the floor slab, which was designed as a mat foundation.

Portland cement, with integral waterproofing added, was sprayed on to the metal lath, first from beneath and then from above. No troweling was needed, except during construction to guide the nozzle man and to remove any excess build up of concrete. Thickness of the finished skin ranges from 3 in. to 4 in.

Space trusses, steel pipe and reinforcing rod were bolted and welded together, in preparation for the tying on of rib metal lath, upper right. Into the construction went 640 ft. of 2 in. pipe and 325 ft. of 2½ in. pipe. In addition to their structural function, pipes also served as electrical conduit and distribution boxes are visible along the "spine" of the figure.

concrete stiffening ribs. Parabolic in shape, these ribs are 15 ft. apart and spring from each side of the three entrance arches. In the neck area, a fifth concrete rib acts as a torsional stiffener. The reinforcing for these ribs was modified so that, as arched space trusses, they support the dead load.

Steel pipe of 2½ in. dia. was shaped to form the arches of the entrance doorways and the general contours of body shape, and to brace the space trusses. The spine was formed of 2 in. pipe. Main arcs were trusses made of No. 6 and No. 7 reinforcing bars. To these pipes and the trusses, No. 3 reinforcing rod was welded, 15 in. on center, each way. It was erected partially by bolting and partially by welding. After it was up, each intersection was welded so that the entire network literally became a spider web to crawl over to place metal lath. To this armature there was wire-tied ¾ in. galvanized rib metal lath to define the dinosaur's shape and to provide a base for the portland cement "skin." The weight of the steel averaged 1 lb. per sq. foot.

When it is completed, the eyes will be blinking lights, while eight translucent red and green fins along the spine will be lighted and will spell out "Sinclair." The cost of shell, foundation and floor slab came to $15,000, or $6.38 per sq. foot. Total cost, exclusive of fixtures and equipment, will be about $25,000, or approximately $10.63 per sq. foot.

Rib metal lath, wire-tied to the structural frame, provides the base and form for the spraying on of the portland cement skin.

No, that's not a high-rise feeding trough beneath Dino's open mouth! The three arches provide entrance to mechanical, lubrication and washing areas. Concrete walls at the beginning of the tail and at the base of the breast provide closure and support.

Safeway Store Features Metal Lath and Plaster

Architect Edwin Weihe specifies a metal lath and plaster ceilings for a new Safeway Store building on 12th Street in Washington, D.C.

R. Floyd Jennings, Jr., of R. Floyd Jennings and Son, Incorporated, who were the Lathing and Plastering Contractors' describe the ceiling as follows: "The ceiling is barrel shaped extending from the front to the rear of the building, a distance of 180-feet with a 70-foot radius. There are nine 23-foot elliptical openings, which were beaded, running through the center. Along the edges of the barrel were fifteen 14-foot elliptical niches cut into the side, which were also beaded."

The type of work being done on this job is the type of construction being advocated by the Architect Edwin Weihe, the Builder Roseoe-Ajax and R. Floyd Jennings and Son, Incorporated, the Lathing and Plastering Contractor.

Report from the

GENERAL SECRETARY-TREASURER

The transportation checks for the delegates from Local Unions to the Convention will be mailed early in July. This will allow the interest to be received through June 30, 1964, as it is paid quarterly.

If for any reason the delegate does not attend the Convention, and therefore, does not use the transportation check, the money must be returned to the L.I.U. to be returned to the Convention Fund.

Transportation for this Convention is based on "first-class air travel from the airport located closest to the city in which the Local Union is located, and the Convention city." This was covered in Case #5 of the L.I.U. Executive Council meeting held May 14-16, 1962.

The Convention credentials for the delegates, and alternate delegates have been mailed to each Local, and Council. If for any reason your Local or Council has not received them yet, please advise me so I can send another set.

The Local or Council should give the original delegate credential to the delegate, and the original alternate delegate credential to the alternate delegate so they will have them to present when they register at the Convention. The duplicate credentials should be returned to the L.I.U.

We have additional reservation cards for the Hotel Astor for the Convention, and if you need more, they will be mailed to you upon request. Reservations must be made directly with the Hotel as we do not have the facilities to handle these reservations.

APPRENTICESHIP

By
National Director

I would like to inform you of what the National Lathing Industry's Joint Apprenticeship Program is doing and plans to do, since the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association, in Convention in 1962 and 1963, passed Resolutions that a National Lathing Apprenticeship Program be created and that it be supported by 1 cent per man-hour worked; and the Lather's International Union is requesting all Locals to negotiate this 1 cent per hour in their new contracts.

The basic purpose of the National Program is two-fold. The first and major purpose is to assist Local Apprenticeship Programs and Joint Apprenticeship Committees in all ways possible. The second is to represent all our Apprenticeship Programs on the national level, to work with the Department of Labor and other government agencies, as well as with our own national organizations.

The National Lathing Industry's Joint Apprenticeship Program has 12 Trustees; 6 representing the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association, and 6 representing the Lather's International Union.

We are now progressing in 2 areas of our primary purpose, which is to serve the Locals and their Joint Apprenticeship Committees. We are creating related instruction courses, a correspondence course and a classroom course. The greatest number of Locals will probably use the related instruction correspondence course, for there are 182 locals having 2 or less apprentices. A total of 255 locals with 420 apprentices. The related classroom instruction course would be available to the other 51 locals who have 1102 apprentices.

We are now in the process of writing and editing these courses and hope to be able to have them printed by the end of this year, so they will be available to the Locals and Joint Apprenticeship Committees.

I think each of you are conscious of the great need for related instruction courses. At this time, the only one that exists is put out by the Department of Education of California. We do have reference material, such as the "Lather's Craft Problems and Reference Book," and the "Manual of Training and Instruction," published by the Wood, Wire and Metal Lather's International Union, but we do not have a comprehensive course of instruction which can be supplied the Local Joint Apprenticeship Committees for their instructors and apprentices, nationally.

There will be included an instructors guide with our Course. The Course will include, in detail, such areas of the trade as: Orientation; Accident Prevention; Mathematics; Tools; Plan Reading; Materials; Welding; Partitions; Ceilings; Specifications, plus others.

The Course will be based on 51 assignments for a series of 144-2 hour periods. This meets with the minimum hours of the National Standards Apprenticeship for the Lathing Industry, which is 144 hours per year for a 2 year course.

For those Locals whose programs are for a 3 year apprenticeship, the Course will be designed so that assignments may be enlarged upon so that it will take 3 years to complete the course.

It all started when . . .

. . . Americans were photographed for the first time in 1839. The famed inventor Samuel Morse brought the first photographic equipment from Paris to the United States in that year. Morse made the first daguerreotypes using the process that he had learned from Daguerre himself.

. . . The year, 1839, also saw the introduction of metal lath as a construction material. Plaster covered metal lath has developed into one of the leading construction materials of the 20th century. It enables architects to design buildings that are not only beautiful, but also low cost, durable and fireproof.

. . . Another first for 1839 was the publication of "California" by Alexander Forbes, an Englishman. This was the first language book about the western coast of America. In his work Forbes advocated that the British take over the territory before Russian or American settlers populated the entire region. In order to make California more accessible he suggested cutting a canal across the Isthmus of Panama.

Lathers Donate Help to Waldemar Research Center

Thousands of individuals and countless firms contributed time, materials and resources towards the $1,250,000 building, estimated to have cost the non-profit medical organization one-third its real value. Playing the starring role in the dramatic construction sequence was organized labor.

In fact, the spirit of the project moved Sen. Kenneth B. Keating to praise the Nassau-Suffolk Building and Construction Trades Council in the Congressional Record.

Sen. Keating also appraised another aspect of the program: "These public welfare activities have not only benefited the community, but have been most beneficial to the image of organized labor."

Sen. Maurice B. Neuberger commended the Nassau-Suffolk Building and Construction Trades Council on Long Island for their efforts which contributed substantially toward making this center possible.

Because of the interest of John E. "Buddy" Long, President of Nassau-Suffolk Building and Construction Trades Council on Long Island, the result has been a series of week ends where plumbers, carpenters, electricians, iron workers, sheet metal workers, laborers, teamsters, brick layers, plasterers, lathers, painters, paper hangers and other craftsmen mingled with less experienced volunteers—scientists, bankers, government officials, and the like—to create this attractive brick building.

Thousands of dollars in building materials and equipment have been donated . . . breweries gave beer . . . bakeries cake . . . the architects worked gratis . . . a public relations firm does the drum beating without fee . . . and the Salvation Army sends a crew to every work session to serve coffee and sandwiches.

In all, 17 different union locals and 25 business concerns have contributed substantially to the project.

We wish to take this opportunity to commend our members for their interest, and time in helping to make this dream a reality. It is living proof that the members are interested in promoting and contributing to community projects that will benefit the American public.

Metal Lath and Cement Domes Cited

Metal lath and portland cement thin shell domes are pictured and explained in the current yearbook of the McGraw-Hill Encyclopedia of Science and Technology. In the "Buildings" section, under the heading, "Casting Without Formwork," brief details and illustrations of the Texas A. & M. Lift Shape, and of the Tavernier Key thin shell dome, are presented.

The McGraw-Hill Yearbook of Science and Technology, according to its publishers, "analyzes, illustrates and reports in detail all significant advances in science, technology and engineering." The 1964 yearbook is the third annual addendum to the McGraw-Hill 15-volume Encyclopedia of Science and Technology, of which nearly twenty-five thousand copies are in use by grade school and college libraries.

The experimental Lift Shape dome was designed by Professor James H. Marsh, III, Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College, and erected there under a grant by the Educational Facilities Laboratories of the Ford Foundation (The Lather, Feb., 1963). Under the procedure developed by Professor Marsh, a metal lath-covered reinforcing mat is fabricated flat on the ground, its center point raised by a crane and its feet pulled in by block and tackle and anchored to concrete foundations; thereafter, portland cement is sprayed onto the metal lath, from below and from above.

Another technique of thin shell dome construction was developed by a Miami, Florida, architect, Richard Allen Rose, and consulting engineer, Bertram S. Warshaw (The Lather, March, 1964). A prototype was erected at Tavernier Key, Florida.

This dome is supported by space trusses, to which 1-in. square steel-tube arches are attached. Wired to the trusses and square steel-tube arches is $\frac{3}{8}$ in. rib metal lath. Portland cement, with waterproofing added, was machine-applied to the metal lath from both below and above to produce a thickness of 2½ inches.

Educational Series Traces Airports

"All About Airports," the current release in the Metal Lath Association's educational line drawing series, traces the development of ground facilities from their earliest days. Starting from the flying days when "an airport was any fairly flat field," and airport buildings were any old building at hand, drawings and captions are used to report the changes that have led to construction with metal lath and plaster of such show places as the Trans World Flight Center, New York.

The campaign against glaring headlights continues in civic and official circles, but headlight glare remains a cause of nighttime highway accidents, says Keystone Automobile Club.

"Some states have come up with laws aimed at the aimed-high headlights," says Edward P. Curran, Keystone's Safety Director. "Generally, these laws provide that motorists approaching oncoming vehicles within 500 feet of one another must depress headlights so that glaring beams are not projected into the eyes of each other. Also, laws have been passed requiring motorists to lower their headlights when within 300 feet of another vehicle in front, in order to keep the driver ahead from being temporarily blinded by glaring light in the rearview mirror.

"These laws will have their desired effect in time, to be sure, depending upon the degree and persistence of enforcement. Meanwhile, efforts must be continued to educate drivers concerning the actual and potential dangers of headlight glare.

"Glaring headlights blind motorists sufficiently long to directly cause accidents. At 40 miles an hour a driver facing the upper beam of a sealed-beam lamp is totally blind for 12 seconds while his car is traveling 725 feet . . . time and space aplenty in which to have a collision, strike a pedestrian, or run off the road.

"Figures clearly show what can and does happen when motorists fail to lower their lights on approaching other cars. Some 18,900 persons were killed during daylight hours in 1962, latest year for which figures are available, while 22,000 were killed during the nighttime, when ordinarily there is only one-third as much traffic on the highways."

DRAMATIC SHAPES

Mr. William S. Vaughn, President of the Eastman Kodak Company has said that "the Kodak Pavilion, at the New York World's Fair, will be symbolic of photography's remarkable achievement over 140 years. In it will be the most complete and colorful exhibit ever assembled to display photography's impact on our lives."

The Kodak Pavilion is a beautiful two-level free-form structure topped by an eight story giant picture tower and is one of the ten largest industrial exhibits at the Fair. It is 394 ft. long and ranges from 120 ft. to 200 ft. wide and covers most of Kodak's 69,000 sq. ft. Fair site. Rib lath and plaster were used to form many of the outstanding features of this Pavilion.

A gently undulating shell, irregular and approximately triangular in shape, defines the full dimensions of the exhibit and ties together its diverse elements. The 30 ft. high shell, of reinforced concrete and which is open on all sides, is a roof for the lower level, unifying and shading the theater entrance, the information center and the exhibits there. The upper deck contains another theater, rest areas, exhibit areas and walkways open to the sky, where visitors can photograph each other against exotic backdrops, including a moonscape and a panoramic view of the Fair itself.

A dominant feature of the Pavilion is an 81 ft. high tower, which houses the main movie theater in its base, and will be one of the distinguishable landmarks at the Fair. Facing in five directions from its top will be the world's largest outdoor color prints, each measuring 30 ft. x 36 feet. They will be front-lighted day and night by a revolutionary new illumination system. Galvanized rib metal lath and portland cement were used to create the light "traps" which frame each print and shield it from the reflection of sunlight. Cantilevered platforms around the tower support specially designed light fixtures with 240,000 watts of illumination for each print.

The circular air conditioned main theater in the base of the tower, is capable of accommodating 35,000 persons daily. The feature attraction will be a 15-minute color movie spectacular, "The Searching Eye," which will portray commonplace and unusual wonders of the world as seen through the eyes of a twelve year old boy. On the second floor of the picture tower is the VIP lounge, where guests of Kodak Company may be entertained. Both the main theater and the VIP lounge area have rib metal lath and plaster hung ceilings.

The lower level, besides housing the main theater, will include 15 exhibit areas, beautifully landscaped gardens, sculptured fountains and rest areas. Facilities for telecasting live shows to all networks will be on the premises. The Kodak Information Center, one of the major features, will give visitors an opportunity to discuss photography with the Kodak experts. The other exhibits throughout the Pavilion will dramatize the vital role the camera's "searching eye" plays in science, medicine, industry, commerce, education, communications, history recording, outerspace exploration and leisure-time activities.

Used internally in this exhibit was 3.4# painted metal lath flat rib and $\frac{3}{8}$ high rib lath cut from copper-bearing steel and covered with a protective coating of paint. Used externally was $\frac{3}{8}$ in. 3.4# galvanized rib metal lath.

Kahn & Jacobs of a design concept by Wil Burtin, Inc., of New York City. The exhibits were designed by Eastman Kodak Company and constructed by Ivel Construction Company of New York City. Structural engineer is Lev Zetlin & Associates and mechanical engineers are Jaras, Baum & Bolles, both of New York City. The general contractor is George A. Fuller Company; plastering contractor is Neff Lathing Company, Inc.; and lathing contractor is Jeremiah Burns, Inc., all of New York City.

During its two April-October seasons, 70 million visitors are expected to see the World's Fair. Of this number, Eastman anticipates that 60% will pass through their exhibit. It is estimated that it will take a visitor about four hours to see the complete exhibition. And no wonder . . . for visitors will see a fascinating presentation about photography . . . as well as one of the most uniquely designed structures at the Fair.

Two dome structures and six pinnacles on the upper level are formed of rib metal lath and stucco. The larger of the two dome structures houses an egg shaped theater for Eastman Chemical Products Inc., which seats about three hundred people. Its ceiling is hung from laminated wood beams and purlins, and consists of metal lath and plaster. Exterior is finished with stucco on metal lath and waterproofed with neoprene hypalon.

Metal Lath Saves Building From Destruction

Fire resistivity is like life insurance: You're in no hurry to get your money's worth out of it, but mighty glad its there when the need does arise. The members of the Mountain Brook Country Club waited 35 years to have the judgment of their building committee and of their architects proved outstandingly right.

Mountain Brook, with its Greek revival gallery and white painted brick walls, stands in stately beauty among tall pines in the rolling foothills of the Appalachians. Located in a suburban area of Birmingham, it is many miles away from the fire protection of city water mains.

Not only is the club a beautiful structure in a beautiful setting, but it is beautifully built as well. When the club was designed, in 1929, by the Architect Aymar Embury, II, New York City, collaborating with Birmingham architects, Miller, Martin and Lewis, full recognition was given to the fact that it would be a considerable distance from the then-fire protected area. Accordingly, the finest available non-combustible materials were specified. All of the ceilings and partitions were built with metal lath and plaster. This foresight is credited with having saved the club from total destruction.

During an intermission in the dancing at a 400-guest debutante party, early in the morning of December 28, 1963, a light bulb popped on a dry Christmas tree and ignited its branches. Feeding on drapes, wood trim, furniture and rugs, flames quickly spread through the room and into the entrance hall. Pete Fountain, who with his orchestra, had been playing for the dancing, used the public address system to ask guests to leave calmly and quickly. Though the main entrance was blocked by flames, no panic ensued and no one was seriously injured.

When they heard screams, two off-duty police officers, who had been handling traffic in the parking lot, ran to the entrance of the club. But by that time the fire had gained such headway that, they said later, it appeared that it would be impossible to save the building.

Though equipment and firemen from Mountain Brook, Homewood and Birmingham were called at once and responded promptly, the fire had a good start and devoured everything flammable in the living room and hallway before being brought under control. The metal lath and plaster partitions and ceilings delayed its spread Flames, belching through doorways of the living room, ignited wood trim and paint of the adjacent hallway, blocking the main entrance and causing four hundred guests to flee through emergency exits. The metal lath and plaster partitions of the hallway completed the containment of the racing flames until firemen could arrive.

After tremendous pressure from the firemen's hoses, only in one spot on the large ceiling area of the living room did the plaster completely fall from metal lath.

sufficiently that firemen were able to confine it to these two rooms. The ceilings and partitions withstood the tremendous heat generated by the fire and resisted the tremendous pressure from the firemen's hoses.

"Had it not been for the metal lath and plaster and the fine efforts of the fire departments, the fire in the Mountain Brook Country Club could never have been contained to the living room and hall areas. In all probability, it would have spread immediately to the upper floors and very possibly the club would have been a complete loss," so says R. W. Tibbett, fire chief of the City of Mountain Brook.

Commented Mr. Graham McIntosh of the McIntosh Plastering Company, Birmingham, whose firm is engaged in the reconstruction work: "Due to the use of metal lath and plaster in the original construction, the fire was contained in the room where it started and in the adjacent hallway. This could have been a disastrous fire, but for the protection afforded by the metal lath and plaster of the walls and ceilings."

Explains Nelson Smith, A.I.A., who is now guiding rehabilitation work: "There is no doubt that metal lath and plaster ceilings prevented serious damage, or even collapse of the second floor framing, during that period of tremendous heat. Determination of club members to restore the building to its fine character of architectural design extends also to the matter of construction. Those materials which performed so faithfully over the years will again be used in the restoration; metal lath and plaster are among those materials and proved exceptionally faithful at a crucial time. Members and guests of the club will continue to have the same sound assurance and protection against future fires as was furnished the last 30 years by metal lath and plaster."

The club is now in the process of being repaired. The structural steel and wood beams of the fire-gutted living room and hallway were found to have been so well shielded by metal lath and plaster that no replacement was necessary.

The 35-year-old club house of the Mountain Brook Country Club still stands in stately beauty because the architect and the building committee had the foresight to specify partitions and ceilings of fire resistant metal lath and plaster.

LINCOLN AND THE RIGHTS OF WORKING PEOPLE

The working people of the nation had a friend in the White House in Abraham Lincoln in the dark days of the Civil War. President Lincoln in his first message to Congress said that labor was prior to and independent of capital and capital could not be created without labor's first existing. When profits skyrocketed during the war, working people through their unions, sought upward adjustments. Lincoln refused to be a strikebreaker. He had said, "Thank God we have a system of labor where there can be a strike." He was consistently a friend of working people and in 1864 told a delegation that "Labor is the superior of capital and deserves much the higher consideration." Mr. Lincoln's views on labor and the rights of working men and women deserve a high place in the many landmarks of labor during our long history.

Stand up and be counted in the fight against Communism

You, as a private citizen, can hit Communism where it hurts!

WHERE? Communism's weak spot! Eastern Europe—

In Eastern Europe 80,000,000 once free men and women still bravely resist Communist domination. Here, Communism is on the defensive. Here, many Russian divisions are tied down. This is where Communism is under greatest pressure. You can help keep this pressure on.

HOW? By supporting Radio Free Europe — Every day Radio Free Europe's 28 powerful transmitters broadcast news of the Free World, religious services, the plain truth to the brave people of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania. Armed with this truth, they represent a major obstacle to the Communist threat of world conquest. Eighty percent of them listen to Radio Free Europe despite Communist jamming. It is their strongest link with the future.

R.F.E. is a working weapon

Radio Free Europe is one of the Free World's major offensive weapons in the Cold War against Communism and Soviet aggression. But it needs money now to continue its work. As a privately supported, non-profit organization, Radio Free Europe depends on individual contributions from private citizens. Your help is needed. What's it worth to you to hit Communism where it hurts? Ten dollars? Five dollars? Give whatever you can...

How Lucas Ray built himself a lake with U.S. Savings Bonds

Like umpteen million other Americans, Mr. Ray loves to fish. Unfortunately, in his part of South Carolina, public lakes are scarce.

Not one to be discouraged, he cashed in a few thousand dollars' worth of Savings Bonds and built his own. He has it well-stocked with crappies, catfish, bass and other fish. And an attractive 4-room cottage sitting beside it (also built by Mr. Ray with money he saved in Bonds).

In case you're wondering, Mr. Ray possesses neither great wealth nor superhuman powers as a saver. He accumulated the money for the lake, fish and cottage by joining the Payroll Savings Plan where he works.

Every week the company sets aside $9 from his paycheck and puts it toward the purchase of a $50 Bond every month. His savings build up automatically.

Americans with all kinds of savings goals buy Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan. And while their dollars build up a nest egg for their future, they help Uncle Sam safeguard our freedom right now.

Must be lots of important things you'd like to have in your future. Why not sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work and see if it isn't the easiest way in the world to save for them?

Quick facts about Series E Savings Bonds

- You get 33 $\frac{1}{3}$ % more money at maturity
- You can get your money when you need it
- Your Bonds are replaced free if lost, destroyed or stolen

Report from the

GENERAL PRESIDENT

I have in previous journals reproduced various communications between myself as General President, M. A. Hutcherson, General President of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and William J. Cour, Chairman of the National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes, to keep you up to date on the status of the proposed Ceiling System Agreement dated June 10, 1963, between our International Union and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

In this issue of the Lather I am reproducing communications which have been exchanged since the June, 1964 issue of the Lather was published. They appear in the following order and are self-explanatory:

(1) Letter dated June 10, 1964, directed to William J. Cour, Chairman National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes.

(2) Letter dated June 16, 1964, from William J. Cour, in reply to my letter dated June 10, 1964.

(3) Letter dated June 24, 1964, directed to William J. Cour, Chairman, National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes.

As of this date I have not received a reply from Mr. Cour to my letter dated June 24, 1964.

I have reproduced these communications because first, I felt that each and every member should be fully aware of any action taken which has an effect on our trade jurisdiction. I have in this past month had the pleasure of visiting many of our local unions and attending a number of the meetings of not only the local unions but also the State District and Provincial Councils. I now know just how important it is that you be informed fully in this respect because I have found during these meetings that many of our local unions and members do not have a complete understanding of this proposed agreement on Ceiling Systems. Many of our local unions and our members believe this proposed agreement is a bona fide document and have earnestly tried to abide by it, and in doing this they have innocently conceded work which rightfully belongs to them in accordance with our trade jurisdiction. I ask you to please remember this is our work and we must do everything within our power to protect it. This is my primary concern. We have a trade and a product to be proud of . . . why should we stand back and permit someone else to perform this work. I urge you to go out and see that this work is assigned to and performed by our members. We may have lost a little foothold in some areas, but this can be regained with the proper effort.

I have sent a letter to all Local Unions, State, District and Provincial Councils concerning the noncompliance status which has been declared by the National Joint Board against the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union and our own International Union.

The national Joint Board has ruled that where both of the disputing unions are in noncompliance with the procedural rules of the Joint Board, consideration of the merits of jurisdictional disputes involving these unions will be deferred during the period of noncompliance. They further ruled and instructed the Chairman that when a request for job decision is submitted by a contractor involving trades who are both declared in noncompliance, he is to notify the contractor of the noncompliance status of the disputing unions and to instruct the contractor to proceed with the disputed work on the basis of the original assignment.

Please do not be misled to believe that because we, the carpenters and bricklayers are declared in noncompliance and no cases involving two trades who are both in noncompliance, are being considered during the period of noncompliance, that you do not need to submit your disputes. You must continue to submit your requests for decisions to me the same as in the past. We must not relax for one moment in protecting our trade jurisdiction. You must also see that our members are assigned the work properly coming under our trade jurisdiction and see that they perform this work once they have the assignment.

If you have cases now pending decision by the Joint Board as soon as they are considered and we have any information with regard to these cases, I shall advise you immediately.

If you have any questions or desire any information or assistance please contact me and I assure you that you will receive my full cooperation.

I appointed three deputy International Representatives since my last report to you. They are as follows: Edwin Dunn, Eastern Canada; Julius Sole, and Percy L. Lovett. Julius and Percy are given assignments in various areas in the southern region. Ed will assist in the eastern region of Canada. Donald Richter was appointed deputy International Representative, in time for listing in the June Journal. Don is located in the Mid-west, and is assisting in that area. This gives us seven deputy International Representatives and eight International Representatives. These Brothers are doing a great job and with the cooperation of our Local Unions and our Membership as a whole, they will do an even better job. They are listed by name, address and telephone number in the Journal each month and are ready and willing at all times to assist you in every way possible. When you have a problem, or a question do not hesitate to call upon them.

At this time I am pleased to inform you of the appointment of International Representative James L. Connolly, from Eastern Canada, as Trustee of the General Pension Fund. Jim accepted this appointment and assured me, as Chairman of the Board of Trustees, that he will put forth every effort to fulfill his duties as Trustee. From past experience, I have no doubt that he will do a good job in this capacity.

In the June Issue of the Lather, I informed you of the appointment of Mrs. June E. Waddell as Administratrix, of the General Pension Fund. An audit of the General Pension Fund has now been completed and Mrs. Waddell is now handling this fund. It was necessary to make certain changes in the processing of the reports submitted to comply with the present Federal Law, but everything should be in order and running smoothly in about two weeks. It would be most helpful if you would inform your employers of this change and ask them to direct all communications including their remittances and reports as follows: Mrs. June E. Waddell Administratrix, General Pension Fund, 6530 New Hampshire Avenue, Tacoma Park, Maryland, 20012.

Mrs. Waddell advised me that a number of communications are being received in this manner now, so apparently a number of persons have already been informed of this change. Your cooperation in this manner will be greatly appreciated.

When the June issue of the Lather went to press, we were anxiously awaiting action to be taken on the Fringe Benefit Bill by the Senate of the United States. This is Bill, H. R. 6041, which provides for the inclusion of Fringe Benefits in prevailing wage determinations on government construction contracts.

I am pleased to be able to inform you at this time that on Tuesday, June 23, 1964, the Senate of the United States, by voice vote, without amendment and without debate, passed H. R. 6041, the Fringe Benefit Bill.

Senator Hubert Humphrey, who had introduced similar legislation in the Senate, commended the Senate for the action taken and called the Bill "A significant improvement and modernization of the Labor Law of this Country." Humphrey said, "Passage of H. R. 6041 will now place all construction contractors on equal competitive terms. It will not interfere with the prevailing wage rates paid in the community but will protect local contractors from unfair competition." He also complimented Senator Pat McNamara, Chairman of the Senate Labor Subcommittees "for the prompt and expeditious manner in which he has handled this legislation."

This Bill was signed by Lyndon B. Johnson, President of the United States, on Thursday July 2, 1964 at 11:15 and I accepted with pleasure the invitation to be present for the signing of this bill, I considered it an honor to be among those present on this memorable occasion.

The Bill to amend Section 302 of the Taft-Hartley Act, which will permit joint participation of Labor and Management, is at this time out of Committee, and should be presented for consideration by the Senate in the very near future. This Bill affects such programs as the Promotional Program, by permitting joint participation such as we had under the previous National Bureau for Lathing and Plastering, Inc.; this would enable us to jointly participate in the promotional program, as we did before.

From the communications received in this office, anticipation is building up daily, in respect to the forthcoming Convention. As the time draws nearer, the various local unions and State, District and Provincial Councils are electing their Delegates to represent them at the Convention. Many times anxiety takes precedent over proper procedure at a time like this, and proper notifications and procedures are not adhered to. You should carefully read Sections 218-219 of the LIU Constitution and make sure your elections are held in compliance with this section. This is also set forth in the Convention Call published in the May issue of the Lather. This sometimes means the difference between your chosen candidate being seated or not seated at the Convention. Important resolutions will be presented for consideration, and important issues will also be considered.

This may seem repetitious, but again I urge you to make every attempt, when negotiating your new collective bargaining agreements, to have both the Pension Clause and the Apprenticeship Clause contained in your agreements. These are two vital issues and are very important to our membership.

Sincerely and Fraternally,

Sal Maso

Mr. William J. Cour, Chairman
National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes
815 Sixteenth Street, N. W.
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Cour:

This letter is being directed to you because of the decisions being rendered by the National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes on disputes between the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

Under date of March 27, 1964, I forwarded to you a copy of a letter which I directed to M. A. Hutcheson, General President, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America with regard to the proposed Agreement between our respective organizations dated June 10, 1963, on Ceiling Systems. Under dates of April 3, and April 16, 1964, I forwarded copies of further communications between President Hutcheson and myself pertaining to this proposed Agreement on Ceiling Systems. These communications were self-explanatory and quite clearly showed that no agreement had ever been consummated between our organizations on Ceiling Systems, dated June 10, 1963, and in view of this fact no agreement could possibly be in force and effect on Ceiling Systems, dated June 10, 1963.

However, irrespective of these communications which set forth facts regarding the action taken on this proposed Ceiling Systems Agreement dated June 10, 1963, the National Joint Board has continued to render decisions using this proposed agreement as a basis therefor. I call your attention to one particular case, as follows:

At their meeting of May 13-14, 1964, the National Joint Board considered the jurisdictional dispute between the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union over the installation of a suspended grid system consisting of hangers, main tees, cross tees, splines moulding and lay-in-tile, Zoology Building Job, decision: "The installation of hangers and main tees shall be assigned to Lathers. The installation of cross tees, splines moulding and lay-in-tile shall be assigned to Carpenters. This action of the Joint Board was predicated upon particular facts and evidence before it regarding this dispute and shall be effective on this particular job only."

Then at their meeting of May 21, 1964, the National Joint Board considered President Hutcheson's letter of May 20, 1964 regarding the Joint Board action at its meeting of May 13-14, 1964, in the jurisdictional dispute between the Carpenters and Lathers on the Zoology Building, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. The following is a quote from these minutes: "The Joint Board reviewed its previous action regarding this jurisdictional dispute and voted to rescind the job decision rendered at its May 13-14, 1964 meeting. The Joint Board further voted to make the following job decision: The work in dispute shall be assigned to the Carpenters. This action of the Joint Board was predicated upon particular facts and evidence before it regarding this dispute and shall be effective on this particular job only."

I fail to understand the reasoning behind the Boards action in this instance, and this is only one occasion where the Board has rendered decisions contrary to the Decisions and Agreements of record set forth in the Green Book. The Board has also continued to issue decisions on area practice. I am sure you are aware of the action taken at the General Presidents meeting in Bal Harbour, Florida in February, 1964, in respect to area practice.

I have tried to analyze the actions of the National Joint Board in respect to the Decisions rendered, and I can honestly say, I can find no basis for their action in rendering these decisions.

I would like to be informed just what particular facts and evidence is before the National Joint Board to cause such decisions to be rendered.

I would appreciate hearing from you by return mail with regard to this matter.

With kind regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

Sal Maso

Mr. Sal Maso, General President
Wood Wire and Metal Lathers International Union
6530 New Hampshire Avenue

Dear Mr. Maso:

At its meeting June 11, 1964, the Joint Board considered your letter of June 10, 1964, requesting information regarding the basis for decisions by the National Joint Board in jurisdictional disputes between the Wood Wire and Metal Lathers International Union and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners on ceiling systems.

The Joint Board discussed prior communications regarding such items in dispute between the two International Unions and reviewed a copy of an agreement on ceiling systems dated June 10, 1963, as presented to the Joint Board at its meeting on June 13, 1963 by representatives of both the Wood Wire and Metal Lathers International Union and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

The Joint Board voted to inform President Maso that in rendering job decisions on ceiling systems in jurisdictional disputes between the Wood Wire and Metal Lathers International Union and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners it is basing its decisions on the terms of the agreement referred to in the previous paragraph when the terms of said agreement are found to be applicable to the work in dispute in a particular case. The Joint Board further voted to forward to President Maso a copy of a letter dated June 18, 1963, addressed jointly to President Mashburn and President Hutcheson, and a copy of President Mashburn's letter of June 21, 1963.

Very truly yours,

"I wish to advise you that I have done the same thing and will advise you of the result as soon as I have all the votes in. I would like you to do likewise for my guidance in the future."

Now, keeping in mind the dates of these two communications, I refer you to the poll of the Executive Council of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union, taken under date of June 26, 1963, at which time the Executive Council consisted of nine (9) members, which resulted in the following:

Five (5) Executive Council Members voted against the Proposed Agreement.

Four (4) Executive Council Members voted in favor of the Proposed Agreement.

I would now like to emphasize excerpts from the two above communications.

In the second paragraph of the letter directed to Lloyd A. Mashburn, dated June 11, 1963, by M. A. Hutcheson, "I note on the agreement that the committees have provided for your's and my signature which is also agreeable to me, and of course I will join the committee in recommending to our General Executive Board their approval."

In the second paragraph of the letter directed to M. A. Hutcheson, dated June 28, 1963, by Lloyd A. Mashburn, "I wish to advise you that I have done the same thing and will advise you of the result as soon as I have all the votes in. I would like you to do likewise for my guidance in the future."

I would now like to refer you to the Constitution of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union, Section 72, starting on page 27, which reads as follows:

"The Executive Council shall have the power to act on all questions referred to said Executive Council by the General President for their consideration and action. In so acting, the Executive Council shall act in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the L.I.U. and of applicable law. Accordingly, in acting upon questions referred to the Executive Council by the General President, the Executive Council shall issue rulings so that the Sections and Subsections of the Constitution of the L.I.U. are applied as well as interpreted at all times in accordance with the requirements of applicable law and to best protect the interests of the L.I.U., State, Provincial or District Council of the L.I.U., Local Unions of the L.I.U. and all of the members of the L.I.U. and of the Local Unions thereof."

Also see Section 74, of the Constitution of the L.I.U., page 28, which reads as follows:

"When the Executive Council is not in session at either a regular or special meeting thereof, then the General President may submit matters either by registered letters or by telegram to the members of the Executive Council for their consideration and action thereon. RE: LATH/CARP

Dear Mr. Cour:

This will acknowledge receipt of your letter dated June 16, 1964, advising me that the Joint Board considered my letter of June 10, 1964, in which I requested information regarding the basis for decisions rendered by the National Joint Board in jurisdictional disputes between the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners on Ceiling Systems.

You state in your letter that the Joint Board voted to inform me that in rendering job decisions on ceiling systems in jurisdictional disputes between the two above-mentioned organizations it is basing its decisions on the terms of the agreement referred to in the previous paragraph which is the proposed agreement on ceiling systems, dated June 10, 1963, between the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

I previously sent to you copies of communications relating to the proposed agreement on Ceiling Systems, dated June 10, 1963, however, I shall again refer these letters to you. The first letter is directed to the late Lloyd A. Mashburn, by M. A. Hutcheson, dated June 11, 1963. The contents of this letter are as follows:

"In accord with our telephone conversation in reference to the recommendations of the Committees representing our two organizations on ceiling work, it is agreeable to proceed upon the recommendations of the Committee that this proposed agreement be placed to affect immediately, subject of course to the approval of the General Executive Boards of both organizations.

"I note on the agreement that the committees have provided for your's and my signature which is also agreeable to me, and of course I will join the committee in recommending to our General Executive Board their approval."

I now quote the contents of the letter dated June 28, 1963, directed to President Hutcheson, by the late President Mashburn.

"I have your letter of June 11, 1963, advising that you have referred the jurisdictional agreement between our two organizations to your Executive Board.

Mr. William J. Cour

Council as to matters submitted to them by registered letter or telegram shall be binding as the action of the Executive Council in the same manner as though the Executive Council were assembled in either a regular or special meeting and has so acted."

Also see Section 77, of the Constitution of the L.I.U., page 28, which reads as follows:

"In voting, unless specifically provided otherwise in this Constitution, a majority vote of the members of the Executive Council present and voting shall determine all matters decided by the Executive Council."

In view of the foregoing information, which clearly shows there has never been any such agreement in force and effect, it is most regrettable that this proposed agreement, dated June 10, 1963, on Ceiling Systems, between the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, has been permitted to affect the trade jurisdiction of the two trades involved. However, it is even more deplorable that when actual facts have been presented, clearly showing there was never any such agreement in force and effect, that the National Joint Board, supposedly a panel made up of persons who will issue impartial decisions on jurisdictional disputes between any two, or more, trades, would persist in using as the basis for their decisions, a proposed agreement, which under the existing facts and circumstances, could not be considered a valid document by anyone.

I again request that this proposed agreement, dated June 10, 1963, on Ceiling Systems, no longer be used as a basis for rendering decisions on jurisdictional disputes between the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

Your cooperation in this matter will be greatly appreciated, and I should like your comments with regard to this matter by return mail.

With kind personal regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

Sal Maso

Louis H. Wilderman, Esquire, General Counsel, Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union

For all of its 465 years, until it was moved with painstaking care half-way around the earth, the Pieta, Michaelangelo's statute of Mary holding the body of the crucified Christ, stood in the Basilica of St. Peter's, Rome. Today, surrounded by all possible safeguards, the highly prized Pieta stands behind a transparent bullet-proof shield in a metal lath and plaster-walled room of the Vatican Pavilion at the New York World's Fair.

Such high-quality construction is universal in the pavilion: Partitions have been formed of wood and metal studs, to both sides of which lathing contractor Jeremiah Burns, Inc., nailed 3.4# diamond mesh metal lath, and over which Allied Plastering Company applied three-coat gypsum plaster. Exterior enclosing walls were constructed of 4 and 6 in. steel studs, to the interior sides of which metal lath was wire-tied as the base for hard coat gypsum plaster and colored sand-finish plaster. Ceilings of metal lath and acoustical plaster were called for by Architects Kiff, Colean, Voss & Souder, collaborating with R. P.

Hughes, where it was necessary to provide sound isolation and to allow for a multiplicity of openings for ventilation and for flush-mounted lighting fixtures.

In the soaring chapel that is the center of the pavilion, metal lath and plaster provide membrane fireproofing of the structural steel, and are the form of a dramatic design. Structural support is provided by fourteen peripheral tapered columns, each 10 in. \times 15 in. at base and 10 in. \times 24 in. at top. From the top of each, a tapered curved steel beam was framed radially into a center ring, 53 ft. above the floor of the chapel by Steward H. Muller Construction Company, Inc., the general contractor.

In order to provide the desired flow of line, the architects specified a finished dimension of the metal lath and plaster of 1 ft. 4 in. \times 2 ft. 3 in. at the base of each column, flaring inward to 1 ft. 4 in. \times 4 ft. 6 in. at the top of each column. The curved steel beams that support the roof taper upward into the center ring. Metal lath and plaster encasements follow the taper of each beam. The plaster on the metal lath surrounding both the columns and the beams has been painted gold.

Stained glass clerestory windows occupy the 17 ft. space between columns, each arching 5 ft. higher at its center than the tops of the adjoining structural steel. The shape of the arched top of each window is projected inward and upward toward the center of the chapel, diminishing between the exposed, converging ceiling beams. This finely detailed and complex shape was precisely formed with furring, corner bead, metal lath and plaster. The plaster of these arches are white and provides dramatic background for the gold tone of the ceiling beams and of the structural columns. Beneath each clerestory window is a frieze of metal lath and plaster, covered with dark gold colored draperies.

The lines of the roof of the chapel follow those of the ceiling, thereby presenting a reversal of its shape. To the exterior of the arches and furring that form the diminishing between-

The gently rising and tapering arches of the roof repeat, in reverse, the ceiling of the chapel. Here, too, the shape was precisely formed of metal lath, as the base for portland cement, neoprene and gold color hypalon.

Unions Win Long Battle For Stronger Wage Law

A nine-year battle by organized labor, spearheaded by building trades' unions, ended in victory last week when the Senate passed a bill that updates the Davis-Bacon Act's protective conditions.

That Act requires payment of prevailing wages on government construction projects. However, it has contained a major flaw, in that "fringe" benefits, now a big factor in labor costs, did not need to be included in making wage determinations.

Thus, non-union substandard contractors, who pay little or no "fringe" benefits, have been able to underbid fair union contractors, causing chaos in the construction field.

The newly enacted bill corrects this injustice. It amends the Davis-Bacon Act to provide that the Secretary of Labor, when he determines prevailing wages in an area, shall also include fringe benefits or the cash equivalent, thus putting all contractors on an equal basis.

Senate passage, by a voice vote, sent the bill to the White House for President Johnson's signature. He has long supported it. The House had passed the bill in January by an overwhelming 357-to-50 vote.

Benefits the Secretary of Labor is instructed to include in wage determinations are medical and hospital insurance, pensions, retirement or life insurance, compensation for injuries or illness, vacation and holiday pay, jobless benefits and costs of apprenticeship or similar training.

Other benefits may be included if they are the pattern in a particular area. If benefits are not matched in kind, their cash value is added to the hourly wages for straight time work.

Noting that a similar bill has been before every Congress since 1955, President C. J. Haggerty of the AFL-CIO Building Trades Department hailed final passage as "the greatest legislative victory for the building trades in the past decade."

Led by Humphrey, Kuchel

AFL-CIO President George Meany also praised enactment. He had written each Senator prior to the vote urging passage of the bill.

The measure had strong bipartisan support in both chambers. Its Senate sponsors included both party "whips"—Hubert Humphrey (Dem., Minn.) and Thomas Kuchel (Rep., Calif.), as well as other leaders in both parties.

Humphrey stressed that the legislation eliminates "a type of unfair wage competition that was the very reason" for enactment of Davis-Bacon back in 1931.

"This is a significant improvement . . . of the labor laws of this country," he added.

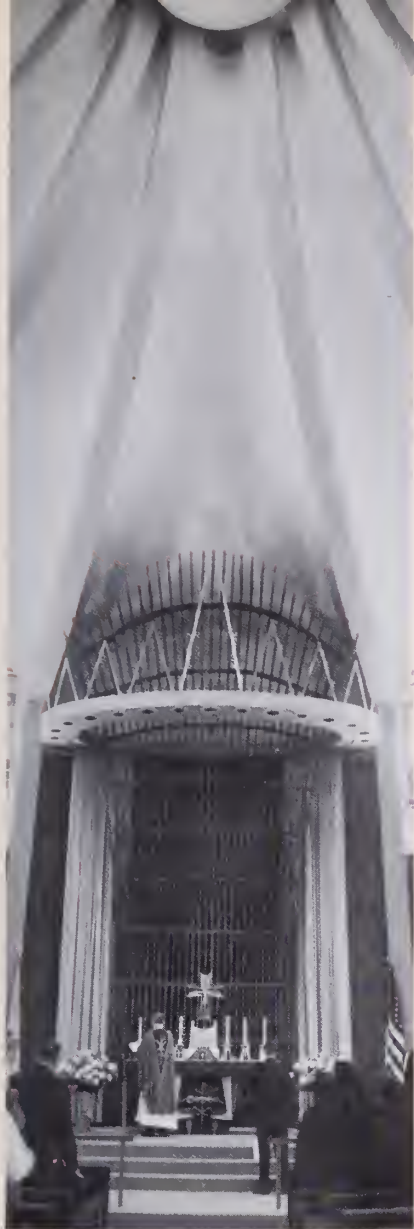

Reporting and Disclosure Act History Published

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz today announced the publication of the complete legislative history of the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959, which is administered by the Department's Office of Labor-Management and Welfare-Pension Reports.

The Act began its stormy journey through Congress on January 23, 1958, when President Eisenhower proposed legislation in a message to Congress. It passed the Senate as the Kennedy-Ervin bill, but emerged from the House as the much-amended Landrum-Griffin bill.

In its 1,138 pages the hard-cover book follows the Congressional discussions and actions through its 18 months of consideration and debate. The bill was signed into law on September 14, 1959.

Publication of the material was supervised by the Labor Department's Office of the Solicitor. The book is being placed on sale at $6.25 a copy and may be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

beams shapes, there was affixed $\frac{3}{4}$ in. rib metal lath. The 14 ridges and the 14 valleys were formed of corner bead. A light weight portland cement aggregate was trowled on to a thickness of 2 in., and over this surface Fulton Roofing Corporation applied coats of neoprene and of gold color hypalon.

The rising lines of the roof lead the eye upward to a slender, gold colored metal cross rising amidst an arrangement light-reflecting stainless steel rods.

U. S. Navy to Name Ship After Samuel Gompers

The President today announced that a destroyer tender to be built by the Navy will be named the U.S.S. Samuel Gompers after the founder and first president of the American Federation of Labor.

The tender will be built in the Puget Sound Naval Shipyards, Bremerton, Washington. The first ship of its type constructed since 1945, it will be 644 feet in length with a beam of 85 feet, displacing 20,500 tons. Construction is expected to take two years.

The keel will be laid on July 9 at ceremonies attended by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, who will represent the President, AFL-CIO President George Meany, and other governmental and labor union officials.

In making the announcement, President Johnson said:

"It is fitting that a U.S. Naval vessel bear the name of Samuel Gompers. A man who believed in and worked for peace, he knew its best guarantee is 'the power of self protection.'

"Few men represented more effectively the American idea of individual right and responsibility. A leader in the struggle for recognition of workers' rights, including the right to organize and bargain collectively, Gompers set the course for American labor by rejecting outright the concept of the 'class struggle' so prevalent at the time. He determined that working men and women would achieve social justice within the free enterprise system and under the shelter of democratic institutions—not by throwing them down but by improving them.

"The social and economic position of American workers today is to a large extent attributable to the efforts of Samuel Gompers. This ship will bear his name and our Nation's flag well."

Born in London in 1850, Samuel Gompers was at the age of 10 a cobbler's helper. He became a cigar-maker, and in 1863 came to the United States with his parents. He joined and held various posts in the Cigarmakers' Union. In 1881, at the age of 31, he was one of the founders of the American Federation of Labor and was elected its first president. He served as president of the AFL until his death in San Antonio, Texas, in 1924.

A national and world figure, Samuel Gompers served on various boards during World War I and was a member of the Commission on Interna-

Social Security Question Box

Q. To settle an argument, when was social security first taken out of your wages? I was still working in 1934 and it was taken out then.

A. Social security taxes were first withheld from wages in January 1937.

Q. I was born in September 1902. I am thinking of going to work and would like to know how many years I need to be insured under social security?

A. A woman would need 13 quarters, or $3\frac{1}{4}$ years. A man would need 16 quarters, or four years work.

Q. I am writing in regards to my sister-in-law. She has been living with us for 12 years. When I retire will she be eligible for any of my social security, or does it just go to my wife and two minor children?

A. Your sister-in-law will not be eligible for any of your social security.

Q. My wife died last March. I was wondering if there is any benefit payable on her death?

A. If your wife had worked under social security, there is a possibility of a lump sum death payment to you. If she had a social security card, you should check with the nearest Social Security Office.

Q. I was born in 1908 and have worked under social security, off and on, for many years. How, and when, can I find out how many quarters I have and how many I will need when it comes time for me to apply for these benefits?

A. A woman born in 1908 needs 19 quarters. A man born in 1908 needs 22 quarters. You should request "Post Card form OR-7004" from your nearest Social Security office. Fill it out and mail it, asking for your quarters of coverage. You will receive a listing of your total earnings. The reply will also show you whether or not you are now insured.

Q. Recently I hired a housekeeper. How do I go about paying the social security taxes on her wages?

A. You should request Leaflet

OSI-21 from your nearest Social Security Office or your Internal Revenue Office. The leaflet explains how to get the forms and make the necessary reports. It contains a post card addressed to the Internal Revenue Service, which, when mailed, will put you on the I. R. S. mailing list.

Q. I am receiving $114.00 per month social security. Based on my earnings am I entitled to any more?

A. Based on the earnings indicated in your letter, your monthly amount is correct.

Q. Where do I write to find out if I have enough quarters to be insured under social security?

A. Write to Social Security Administration, P. O. Box 57, Baltimore, Md. State your name, date of birth and your social security number.

Q. If it becomes necessary for me to retire on a disability before I become 65, how much could I expect to draw?

A. Your payment will be based on your average monthly wage. The maximum is $127.00 and the minimum is $40.00. Benefits will be computed as if you had reached age 65.

Q. My husband was born in 1917. He works for the Railroad. Also, he has worked under social security and has 29 quarters and he only needs two more quarters, or 6 months more. Is this true?

A. Your husband needs two more quarters and he can work and earn these quarters at his convenience. There is no set time for your husband to acquire these two additional quarters.

Q. Will my wife be able to collect on my social security when she becomes 62 years of age even though I do not retire?

A. The answer is no. She can collect benefits as a wife only for the months that you receive benefits.

Q. I am a widow of 4 years and will be 62 years of age in 1963. I have never worked under social security; however, my husband has always worked under social security. Can you tell me how much I will receive?

A. You will receive $82\frac{1}{2}\%$ of your husband's benefits. Please check with your local Social Security office in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida for the exact amount of your benefit.

Q. A friend of mine has 17 quarters of coverage and had to stop working due to a permanent disability. Is she eligible for disability pension under social security?

A. No. She must have 20 quarters during the 10 yr. period preceding her disability to be eligible.

Q. My husband is 69 years of age and is receiving $118.00 a month from Social Security. If he should pass away, would I receive any benefits and how much. I am now 54 years of age.

A. You would receive a Lump Sum of $255.00 for burial expenses upon filing a claim, then, at age 62 you would receive $97.40 a month.

Q. I am 47 and worked from 1940 to 1949 when I stopped working to raise a family. Also, I am older than my husband. Do I have to wait until my husband is of age to receive social security?

A. No. Based on your age you need 27 quarters to be insured. You already have sufficient quarters and you may start receiving benefits at age 62. You do not have to wait until your husband retires to receive social security benefits based on your own record.

Q. When I am 65 my wife will be 62. What percentage will my wife receive at age 62; and age 64?

A. At age 62 your wife's benefits will be reduced 25%; at 63 $16\frac{2}{3}\%$; at age 64 $8\frac{1}{3}\%$.

Q. My wife is now 49 years of age and has worked under social security from 1937 through 1942. Will she be entitled at age 62?

A. Your wife needs 25 quarters. If she worked full years from 1937 through 1942, she has only 24 quarters of coverage. She needs one more quarter to be insured.

Q. Can you tell me the minimum benefits due a widow with two children under 18 years of age? When would the benefits stop?

A. The minimum rate is $60.00 and the maximum rate is $254.00. The benefits stop when the youngest child becomes age 18, providing you are under age 62. If you are age 62 when the youngest child becomes 18, your benefits as a widow would continue as long as you are the unmarried widow of the wage earner.

5th Anniversary Celebrated by Union Eye Care

The Fifth Anniversary of a dream come true will be celebrated here July 29 when Union Eye Care Center, Inc., holds its annual meeting.

Attending will be Northwestern Ohio trade union leaders, many of them members of the group which, a little over five years ago, decided labor could see its way clear to starting a going center. They planned to make first quality glasses available to union members and their families at reduced prices.

That was the dream. The reality is that Union Eye Care now has four centers, all of them beautifully furnished and equipped. Most important, all are thriving. The corporation is owned by 250,000 union members in 225 locals and lodges. Thousands are served by it each year.

The enterprise enjoys the enthusiastic support of Lathers Union, Local 2.

Like cooperative endeavors everywhere, the elected representatives of the owners meet annually to choose the Officers and Executive Committee and review the status of the enterprise. Unlike some, each year members have a lot of growth to review.

Last year Union Eye Care opened new centers in Euclid and between Lorain and Elyria, bringing to four the number of locations where union members and their families can be served. Preliminary reports indicate that all four are operating on a financially sound basis.

While some members of the all-union executive committee had been concerned lest the new outlets take too much volume from the older ones, the latter actually showed an increase in the number of persons served.

Part of this year's annual meeting will be devoted to planning for progress. The goal is acquainting every potential user with the advantages of of union-supported centers.

Each of the centers carries a comprehensive selection of frames. All supply first quality lens. The processing and fitting equipment are the best money can buy.

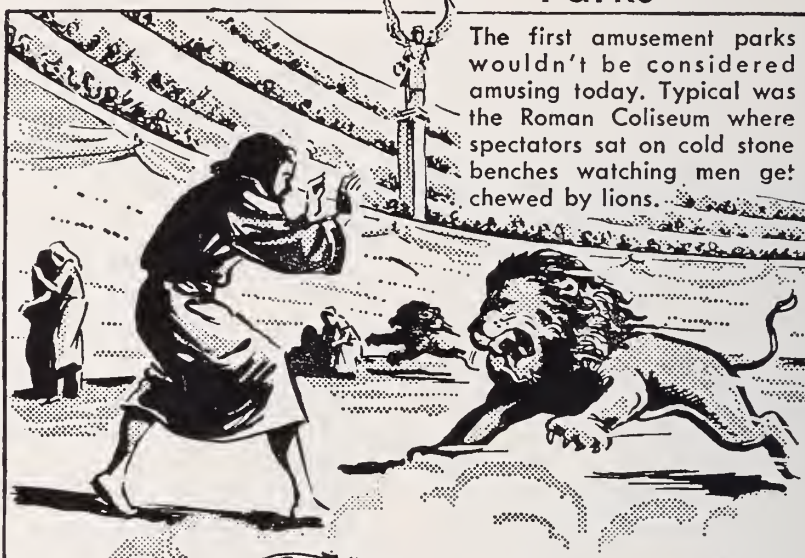

As an extra bonus, the centers handle only union-made merchandise.

Versatile Metal Lath & Plaster Aid in Creation of Fun Houses

The transition of the public's preference for outdoor amusements is traced in educational line drawings, which have been distributed to newspapers by the Metal Lath Association. The gory spectacles in the Roman Coliseum, when Christian martyrs were thrown to hungry lions for the sadistic pleasure of the populace, were cited as a forerunner of today's amusement park.

A large step in a more pleasant direction, it was reported, was the development and the public enjoyment of the thrill-packed rides of amusement parks, fairs and carnivals. The most recent development is the amusement park that is built around a single historical or highly imaginative theme; metal lath and plaster are often specified for these structures, since they allow full play to creativity.

ALL ABOUT Amusement Parks

The first amusement parks wouldn't be considered amusing today. Typical was the Roman Coliseum where spectators sat on cold stone benches watching men get chewed by lions.

The Coney Island Boardwalk in New York was a step in a more pleasant direction. For decades, vacationers and tourists have thronged to ride on thrill-a-minute roller-coasters, to see papier-mache "monsters" in fun houses, and to try shooting down decoy ducks for a quarter.

More modern and charming, however, are amusement parks built around a theme. One example is Baltimore's Enchanted Forest where children can step into a fairy tale land of Gingerbread Cottages and the Old Woman's Shoe and other structures from Mother Goose. Intricate and amusing detail is made possible by metal lath and portland cement construction, a versatile construction technique that can give a building nearly any shape imaginable.

PORTRAIT OF A SUCCESSFUL LATHING AND PLASTERING CONTRACTOR

He is a Christian, whether he is aware of the fact or not. He may not go to church very often, and he may use some words he didn't learn in Sunday School, but honesty, integrity and Christian principles are basic characteristics. He likes everyone, if given a chance, and treats them as he would like to be treated.

He is an American, proud of the rights, privileges and opportunities which are his, and which no other country in the world can offer in such abundance. He votes in all elections, confident that a majority vote will go a long way toward correcting any faults or mistakes that exist.

He believes in Organizations, and supports those which he feels are good ones, because in Organization there is strength and knowledge. Strength to correct faults that are sure to develop, and knowledge gained by the free exchange of ideas and information. He was, and still is, a good Union man, faithful to the laws that set forth that he be a good craftsman and an honest worker.

He belongs to, and supports National, State and Local Contractors Organizations whose purpose is to promote and expand the opportunities of all in a profession of which he is justly proud. Through this expansion and opportunity will come growth, so that in time more can share in the satisfaction of well deserved success.

He knows his business. He knows that a fair price is necessary for survival. He bids jobs based on his knowledge and experience, for he knows that if he lets competition set his prices he will go broke, as so often happens when jobs are gotten regardless of costs and conditions.

He doesn't want all the work, for he knows that by cutting prices he forces competition to a ruinous level.

He does good work, because he knows that it is the cheapest—correcting faulty work costs more than is gained by inferior workmanship. If faulty work results from conditions beyond his control, he cheerfully corrects it as soon as it is brought to his attention.

Extra work is figured at a fair price, for those who pay for our services appreciate honesty, and more is gained from the trust and confidence created than would be realized from the small extra profit received at the time.

He sells lathing and plastering at every opportunity, even though he knows that another will more than likely benefit from his initial efforts. His reward may come later, in a greater amount than the original gain—"What you do for others you never lose."

He is proud and thankful for his material possessions, and for being held in high regard by his fellow craftsmen, but is never boastful, for he knows that all the skill and knowledge he possesses was acquired, for the most part, from the years of experience of those who were pioneers of our great industry. He will pass on to others this vast store of know-how, adding to the basic knowledge those things he has learned for himself and the skills he has acquired while observing and working, rather than boasting of superior knowledge or huge bank rolls.

It is a well known fact that, "When you listen you learn what others know. When you are talking (or writing), you learn what you think you know."

City Building Reclaimed, Protected with Metal Lath, Plaster for Fire School Hq.

The administration building now being used for the training school of New York City's Fire Department was built in the early 1900's with block walls and wood rafters, on Welfare Island in the East River but, today, with the addition of furring, 3.4# diamond mesh metal lath and plaster inside, it has become an attractive and pleasant portion of the City's program of education for trainee firemen.

After insulating bats were stapled between the roof rafters, and ducts and other service lines were run, a furred ceiling of 3.4# diamond mesh metal lath and plaster was installed to conceal the service lines and to provide fire resistance. Metal studs and metal lath were used to form durable, sound-insulating and fire-resistant partitions and to allow for the installation of service lines.

The inner sides of the exterior block walls were furred, covered with metal lath and plastered with three-coat sanded gypsum plaster with hard white finish being used throughout. The partitions divide the building into five classrooms, an all-purpose hall, a reference library and offices for the fire department officials in charge.

The project was planned and supervised by the Department of Public Works of the City of New York. The lathing contractor was John J. Matheson & Co., of the Bronx, the plastering contractor was William Isherwood, Inc., of New York City. The general contractor was Blaise Construction Co., Tuckahoe, New York.

YOUR MAGICAL SENSE OF SMELL

A six-year-old told her teacher that she smelled a queer odor in the schoolroom. Escaping inflammatory gas was quickly detected. Some 500 pupils were evacuated, just minutes before an explosion demolished the $400,000 building. Not a single life was lost. The newspapers, appropriately enough, headlined the story, "Saved by a Nose."

Smelling is a function of one of the major senses. A man's sense of smell plays a vitally important role in his eating habits and health in general. A man's tongue tells him of only four flavors: sour, sweet, salty and bitter.

But his nose can distinguish thousands of various flavors. A man's nose, not his tongue, savors food. When he's hungry and inhales the aroma of cooking food, the task of his smelling apparatus is only in the beginning stage. Not until he starts chewing does smell come into fuller play.

As he chews, he releases fumes of odor that flow through and back into the mouth, to reach the inner recesses of his nose. This is where the olfactory nerve (seat of smelling senses) is located. It is here that man discovers the savory taste of a good steak or a choice dessert.

The American Medical Association thus advises, "Eat slowly. Take time to chew. Allow plenty of time for those all-important food fumes to reach your olfactory system. Also, food that is chewed well is more easily digested."

Science is just beginning to penetrate some of the interesting mysteries of how the olfactory system operates, how its fantastic decoding system operates instantly to tell a man if he's smelling garlic or a gardenia.

The message of sound is received in the ear by vibration. The eye receives the message of sight by light waves. There's no simple explanation to fit all the known facts about the subtle sense of smell. There are several theories. The one most commonly mentioned is that a man is able to detect an individual odor by the special way it disturbs the fine enzyme balance of the olfactory cells in his nose.

In other words, the nose has a complex receiving apparatus that gets signals from the world of odor. Hence, a man picks up the skunk's message with dismay, the rose's message with delight, the escaping gas' message with fright and an attic's musty lingering message with nostalgia.

Science doesn't have all the answers, but it does know that a man's nose can receive, analyze and sort odors with a speed and finesse that no computer can duplicate.

It's estimated that a man's nose can detect up to two trillionths of a gram of strong-smelling chemical.

We're told that every existing thing has its own odor, and there's no limit to the number of smells that the human nose can recognize. Handling such a flood of sensations would be a lot harder if a man's nose didn't have a remarkable talent for adaptation. When an odor comes in strongly, he automatically "tunes down the volume" by a process known as "odor fatigue." The first whiff of an offensive odor is powerful, the second somewhat weaker.

Very soon, he barely smells it at all. The potent stench of the stockyards, for instance, doesn't spoil the appetites of the men who work there. Their noses have learned to live with the smell, to make it "normal" instead of offensive. People who live in towns where the water reeks with sulphur don't mind it, while out-of-town visitors will shun it.

A man's sense of smell can sometimes play strange tricks on him. For example, the U.S. Bureau of Mines wanted to do some testing. They introduced a foul-smelling chemical into the regular gas mains of a small community. All customers were alerted to the experiment.

Yet, one housewife bawled out her butcher for delivering spoiled meat. Another insisted that her husband needed a bath. Two families ripped up the floors of a room in search of what they thought was possibly a small animal that had gotten under the house and died. And, one woman threw all of her husband's old shoes into the trash can in an effort to get rid of the "strange" odor.

Odors have a far reaching effect on our moods and emotions. They have been called "the shortest routes into the subconscious." In the selling field, "odor therapy" has been given serious study. In fact, it's become big business. The right smell, it's been found, can touch off a buying rage, from the purchasing of stationery to real estate.

One couple who had their home for sale held an open house. During the two hours that the potential buyers came, the woman kept cakes baking in the oven. The house sold! Laundries add a faint scent to make their clothes smell fresh. Chemists are marketing a fantastic array of special use aromas, including a spray can "new car smell."

Odor has no prejudices. It plays no favorites. It's an interesting phenomenon. There's an abundance of aromatic fascination all about. It's yours for the smelling!

“Belle” is Hit of Union Industries Show

Barreling down the Ohio river, during Derby Festival Week, the “Belle of Louisville,” last of the active twin-stack river stern-wheelers, beat the Delta Queen (out of Cincinnati) by a “nose.”

Spectators jammed every vantage point on the Kentucky shore for five miles up the Ohio river to witness this second annual six mile Ohio River race. Other boats had tried to beat the Delta Queen in 1928, 1929, 1930 and 1946. Last year the Belle of Louisville finished a distant second to the Delta Queen.

The Belle of Louisville has, within a few short years, become a civic symbol. Pride and joy of the citizenry of the area—the vessel is owned and operated jointly by the city of Louisville and Jefferson County. The "Belle," beside a regular schedule of river excursions, is used for private parties, balls, meetings, convention groups and plays.

The Belle of Louisville was chosen as the theme for the operative Plasterer's and Cement Masons International Association's exhibit in the 19th annual Union Industries show held in historic Louisville, Kentucky May 22 to 27, 1964.

Under the direction of O.P. & C.M.I.A.s' Director of Research and Promotion John K. Buster and with excellent cooperation of Plasterers Local Union 123 (R. T. Daily Jr., Business Agent); Cement Masons Local Union 694 (Ray Edwards, Business Agent); and Lathers Local Union 18 (Charles Hill, Business Agent); a replica of the "Belle" was constructed on the site in six days.

The exterior is of Portland Cement Plaster with various color Marblecrete panels, in place of the first deck windows. The interior displayed — colored sand finished plasters — artistic panels of new interior and exterior materials of Mineralite and Granolux—as well as cut-aways of all systems from thin coat plaster to four hour fire rated systems. Each had identification thereon of the fire resistive rating and their sound decible rating.

The show was officially opened when William F. Schnitzler, Secretary-Treasurer of the AFL-CIO, cut the ribbon, with General President Edward J. Leonard and other leaders in attendance.

Our exhibit was manned during the six days of the show by members of Local Unions 123 and 694.

One of our signs on the Belle stated the fact that the replica was built on the site in six days.

Large crowds toured our exhibits, spending an unusual amount of time reading our indentifying signs and carefully viewing the cut-away construction.

Many questions were asked about Plaster and Cement and many compliments were made of our exhibit by the viewing public. The Union Label and Service Trades Department termed our exhibit the "Hit of the Show."

Some of the many remarks overheard were:

"Built in six days? What's all this talk about not using Plaster—it takes too long to dry?"

And—

"Look—they use as a base what we have for a finished wall.

Trades Assembly and Economic Action
Civil War Era

The period just before, during and following the Civil War was one of new developments in the American labor movement. Among these developments was the establishment of the trades' assemblies. These were sort of all-union councils and began in Rochester, N. Y. These assemblies introduced an entirely new weapon in the labor struggle: the boycott.

Historian Foster Rhea Dulles quoted a contemporary account which said, "All the trades unite for this purpose and when a case of oppression is made known a committee from the Trades' Assembly calls upon the offender and demands redress. If the demand is not complied with, every trade is notified, and the members all cease trading at the obnoxious establishment."

The boycott weapon has become traditional in the economic struggle and has been the center of much state and Federal legislation through the years. Assertion of the boycott power is a landmark in the development of labor's strength.

Like umpteen million other Americans, Mr. Ray loves to fish. Unfortunately, in his part of South Carolina, public lakes are scarce.

Not one to be discouraged, he cashed in a few thousand dollars' worth of Savings Bonds and built his own. He has it well-stocked with crappies, catfish, bass and other fish. And an attractive 4-room cottage sitting beside it (also built by Mr. Ray with money he saved in Bonds).

In case you're wondering, Mr. Ray possesses neither great wealth nor superhuman powers as a saver. He accumulated the money for the lake, fish and cottage by joining the Payroll Savings Plan where he works.

Every week the company sets aside $9 from his paycheck and puts it toward the purchase of a $50 Bond every month. His savings build up automatically.

Americans with all kinds of savings goals buy Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan. And while their dollars build up a nest egg for their future, they help Uncle Sam safeguard our freedom right now.

Must be lots of important things you'd like to have in your future. Why not sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work and see if it isn't the easiest way in the world to save for them?

Quick facts about Series E Savings Bonds

- You get 33 1/3% more money at maturity
- You can get your money when you need it
- Your Bonds are replaced free if lost, destroyed or stolen

Report from the

GENERAL PRESIDENT

In my report in the July issue of the Lather, I informed you that the fringe benefit bill HR 6041, had been signed into Law by President Lyndon B. Johnson on July 2, 1964. Under date of July 27, 1964, I mailed to each Local Union, State, District and Provincial Council, forms and a letter of explanation as to how to fill these forms out so that your members would receive the payment of fringe benefits in accordance with this Bill. These forms were to be filled out and returned to me. Please do not delay in getting this information to me as soon as possible, and if you have any questions or need any assistance, you should contact either myself or your International Representative.

Since my last report to you in the July issue of the Lather, I appointed Carl F. Michel, as Deputy International Representative, in the Northwest Area and Francis Horan as Deputy International Representative in the Northeast area. Their addresses and telephone numbers are listed with the other Deputy International Representatives in this issue of the Lather for your information.

On several occasions Employers have questioned the legality of the General Pension Fund and General Pension Plan. We have published the information concerning this matter as to the legality of our Plan and Fund, previously in the Lather. It is registered with the Department of Labor, under the Management and Disclosure Act, Welfare and Pension Division, and it is registered with the Internal Revenue Service. At this time, I am pleased to inform you that Representatives from the United States Department of Labor, Welfare and Pension Plan Enforcement Division came into the office last week and checked the operation of the Plan and Fund. There were certain additional records which should be kept, and we are now in the process of setting the books up for these records. There was also one report which had not been made to the Department of Labor which is now being prepared.

Being aware that the Executive Committee of the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association were meeting in Oklahoma City on the 24th of July, 1964, I directed a letter to Mr. Robert Maidt, President of the Association together with copies of the General Pension Plan and the General Pension Fund and asked him to present this to his Executive Committee to see if there was a possibility of having them endorse the General Pension Plan and General Pension Fund of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union on a national level.

I am very pleased to inform you at this time that, as a result of my request the following motion was presented and unanimously carried at this meeting:

"The CPLIA Committee endorses the National Pension Plan in principle and requests that a joint committee be named by the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union and the CPLIA to administer and further the efforts of a joint National Pension Plan."

I sincerely appreciate the efforts of President Maidt in getting this motion presented and passed. I feel this is a step in the right direction and I shall do everything possible to see that it reaches a successful conclusion.

I received a letter from George H. Brueggeman, President, of the National Bureau for the Promotion of Lath and Plaster. He is making every effort to consummate the reactivation of the National Bureau. However, in order for the National Bureau for the Promotion of Lath and Plaster to be a success, we must give it 100% support. You can help to make the new National Bureau a success by taking steps to see that the Bureau clause is included in new agreements you negotiate. If the clause is in your present agreement, make every effort to see that it is enforced. Such clause cannot be mandatory, but the promotion of Lath and Plaster is vital to you and to your contractors, therefore it should be agreeable to both parties for this clause to be included in your agreement.

The following steps have been taken to re-constitute the National Bureau for the Promotion of Lath and Plaster:

1. Officers have been elected.
2. Legal Counsel has been hired.
3. Steps have been taken to have the Charter reinstated.
4. Representatives of the Local Bureaus have been requested to report to their bureaus and request Local support.
5. The Contractors have promised to urge their members to help get local bureau support to back the National effort.
6. Immediate efforts are being made by the New National Bureau to prepare a program to present to the Local Bureaus for endorsement.

I repeat, the promotion of our product is one of our primary concerns, therefore, I urge that each and every one of you do everything you can to assist in making the new National Bureau a success. I shall keep you informed of the progress made in the formation of the New National Bureau.

The AFL-CIO Standing Committee on Safety and Occupational Health in cooperation with the Labor Conference of the National Safety Council is sponsoring the sixth annual nation-wide campaign to reduce the tragic toll of accidents, on Labor Day week end. We are concerned about the alarming increase in needless accidents during Labor's own national holiday, and urge your active cooperation with this worthwhile campaign.

I, therefore, ask that you make a point of issuing reminders to all of your members that Labor Day, the summer season's last major holiday is a time to exercise the utmost precautions. This is a holiday set aside in honor of labor, so let us make every effort to keep accidents and fatalities to a minimum this year.

Although we never like to lose a member for any reason we are always very proud and ready to congratulate any of our members who leave our trade to go into a field which is a worthy cause, such as the Military Service, the Peace Corps, etc. At this time I would like to extend congratulations and best wishes for successful career to Angelo Mirabella, #51611, who is on withdrawal card from Local 308. His picture and accomplishments appear in this issue of the Lather.

I reported to you previously with regard to the jurisdiction of the Bahamas. This is in the jurisdiction of the Florida State Council of Lathers. They have held meetings and have this program set up very well. However, it has been brought to my attention that on occasions contractors out of the state of Florida have sent journeyman Lathers to these Islands without the proper notification to the State Council. In all instances when a contractor obtains work in these Islands, he must notify the Florida State Council Business Agent, Julius Sole, before sending any journeyman lathers or apprentices in there to work. I ask that you all give your full cooperation with regard to this matter.

I am happy to pass on to you the news of the appointment of Hugh C. Murphy as Administrator of the Labor Department's Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training. He succeeds Mr. Edward E. Goshen who retired as Administrator after serving 27 years with the Bureau. Mr. Murphy is a native of New York City and a former apprentice and journeyman bricklayer. He joined the Bureau in 1946 as a Field Representative and joined the National Office of the Bureau in 1962 as an Assistant Administrator in charge of the Office of National Industry Promotion. He assumes direction of a nationwide organization created by Congress in 1937 to promote and help develop formal apprenticeship programs. Its apprenticeship and training activities have been expanded to oversee the on-the-job training provisions of the Manpower Development and Training Act of 1962 and to foster equal employment opportunity in all of the programs under the Bureau's direction. Prior to joining the Federal service he was chairman of the apprenticeship committee for Bricklayers Local 34 in New York City as well as of the State Conference of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International Union. He still holds membership in Bricklayers Local 34.

I know that each and every one of you join me in wishing Mr. Edward E. Goshen a long and happy retirement and that you all join me in extending heartiest congratulations and best wishes to Mr. Hugh C. Murphy in his new position as Administrator of the Labor Department's Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training.

I am sure those who are Delegates to the LIU Convention in September, and those who plan to attend the Convention as guests, are busy preparing for the trip. In addition to attending the Convention, many of you will no doubt arrive early or extend your visit in New York to attend the World's Fair. I am looking forward to meeting each and every one of you at the Convention and hope that everyone has a most enjoyable time. If I can assist you in any way please let me know.

Sincerely and fraternally

Sal Maso

COPE Dollars Help Elect More Liberals

The following is excerpted from the United Auto Workers "Washington Report":

A little less than a year ago, one of the biggest job-creating programs of the Kennedy Administration went down to a narrow defeat. The vote in the House to dump the Area Redevelopment bill was a razor-thin 209 to 205. A shift of only three votes would have rescued ARA and put thousands of jobless men back to work. The Johnson Administration is going to try again to revive ARA—the Senate passed the bill 65 to 30 last summer—and this is where you come in.

If we're going to have a better Congress next year we're going to have to elect more liberals, men and women who are willing to support programs to help fight poverty and create jobs and provide adequate schools and hospitals and all the other unmet needs on our national agenda.

We're going to need more Congressmen like John Brademas, Bob Kastenmeier and Ron Cameron. And the best way to put more men like them in Congress is for working men and women to contribute "their votes, their voices and their dollars," as Cong. Cameron says. The statements of these three Congressmen—and other liberals like them—should underscore the vital importance of COPE Dollar Drives, so that the fat cats with bulging bankrolls don't run the show all by themselves.

Each of these Congressmen comes from a marginal district. Each of them won election in 1962 by less than 55 percent of the vote—their percentages range from 51.2 to 53.6 percent. They face tough fights this fall, and there are dozens more like them.

In the 1956 campaign, the contributions of union members averaged about 12 cents per person, while the average contribution of the fat cat executives in the nation's 225 largest corporations was about $2700. We need a law to limit campaign contributions to a reasonable level, but until that time we need the help of every union member. We can do better than 12 cents apiece, so let's roll up our sleeves and get to work. ARA would have passed last year with three more votes. Let's make sure that we don't come up three votes short next year.

These Congressmen know the value of COPE dollars in a hard-fought campaign. We not only need to keep them in Congress, we need to give them some company, so that they won't have to breathe hard every time a close vote comes up. Here is what these Congressmen have to say.

Robert Kastenmeier (D.-Wisc.)—"Modern campaigns become costlier with each passing year so Congressmen like myself welcome the work which COPE does in soliciting dollar bills from thousands of individuals. The 1960 election figures show that $175 million was spent in campaigns, which is more than $1 per citizen—yet most of this money came in huge amounts from special interest groups seeking special favors.

"COPE money has no strings attached because the COPE program ranges from help for the migratory farm worker to better care for the mentally ill. COPE is no narrow-minded lobby—its interests encompass the needs of people in all walks of life."

George Rhodes (D.-Pa.)—"At a time when conservatives and radical right groups are throwing more and more money into Congressional campaigns in support of anti-labor and anti-liberal candidates, it becomes more and more important for American working men and women to help elect progressive Members of Congress. COPE's efforts to stimulate broad interest in the election of progressive legislators by encouraging voluntary contributions is making a major contribution to the preservation of our democratic system."

Ronald Cameron (D.-Calif.)—"In this era of skyrocketing campaign costs, it is important that all citizens help bolster the democratic process by contributing to it with their votes, their voices and their dollars. Dollar drives—whether initiated by political parties, labor unions or corporations—provide a lubricant for the wheels of government at a time when they are most apt to creak and groan—the time of the political campaign."

Metal Lath, Plaster Contribute to Building Today's Showplaces

The development of hotels, from the rude structures of Biblical times, to luxurious, fire-proof metal lath and plaster show places of today, is traced in "All About Hotels," current release of an educational line drawing series. Early inns, it is reported, had a do-it-yourself quality, as guests often found it necessary to supply their own food, fuel and bedding.

The rise of commerce in Europe during medieval times and, years later, the westward push on the North American continent, contributed to the growth and refinement of hotels. Drawings and captions in this, the current release in the Metal Lath Association's educational line drawing series, report the changes that have culminated in the construction of today's luxurious, fire-proof hotels.

ALL ABOUT Hotels

Hotels are as old as man's itch to travel. The first of them is mentioned in the Bible, but real development of hotels didn't begin until medieval times in England. English inns were built of stone, often had thatched roofs. Guests frequently supplied their own food, fuel and bedding.

First American hotels were built of Cape Cod shingle and provided a resting place for seafarers. As stagecoach routes began to crisscross the country inland, farm houses were also turned into hotels. Some of these ramshackle wood buildings were firetraps.

Modern hotels are luxurious, architectural show places. Plaster-covered metal lath construction makes eye-catching interior detail possible and protects the inhabitants against fire.

The August per capita tax report from the local must be received and the tax must be paid on the delegate and alternate delegate in order for them to be seated at the Convention.

The transportation checks have been mailed to all Local Unions that have their credentials in and accepted. Transportation checks will be mailed as soon as the credentials are received.

The additional expense checks will be given to the Local Union delegates during the week of the Convention.

All resolutions must be received fifteen days prior to the opening of the Convention unless they are being presented by a Council which has had a meeting within five days of the opening of the Convention. If the Council met within five days prior to the Convention, they can submit resolutions up to the closing of the first session.

Only delegates from Local Unions receive expenses from the Convention Fund. Alternate delegates from a Local Union who attend in place of a delegate from the Local Union will then receive the expenses that the dele-

The Convention convenes September 14, 1964 in the Hotel Astor in New York City. Reservation cards were sent out with the credentials, but if more are needed, they will be furnished upon request. Each person attending the Convention will be responsible for their own reservations. Reservations should be sent in as soon as possible so that you will be sure of having a room when you arrive in New York. I will have an office set up for the registration of delegates to the Convention, and will have it posted on the Hotel Bulletin Board for your convenience.

I will be looking forward to seeing you at the Convention and if there is anything that I can do for you during the time you are at the Convention, please call on me.

Fair Building Uses Lift-Shape Technique

The Medo Building at the New York World's Fair was created by one of the newest of construction techniques. In fact, it is the first commercial structure ever built by this technique, and was preceded only by an experimental prototype structure.

The lift-shape technique is the outcome of 14 years of research by the Architectural Research Department of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas. Assistant Professor James H. Marsh conceived this method of constructing shapes without conventional formwork, and guided the research and the construction of the prototype.

The Medo Building was constructed in slightly less than seven weeks. After pouring the six three-foot footings, the concrete foundation and the slab, reinforcing bars were laid flat in a prescribed geometric pattern that most nearly resembles a giant asterisk. Intersections were wire-tied. Over this flat form there was applied, and wire-tied, a cover of 3.4# galvanized diamond mesh metal lath. Cables from a crane were attached to a "wagon wheel" and spoke arrangement located under the center of the assembly.

As the assembly was lifted, with support applied solely at the center point, the six protruding points sagged. Further bending force was applied with sets of block and tackle attached between opposite points. When the legs were properly in position, angle braces on the bottom of each were slipped into the previously prepared foundation holes. Extra steel bracing and metal lath were welded to the legs for added strength.

Portland cement was sprayed alternately, four coats to the underside and three coats to the upperside of the armature, to form a monolithic structure. The dome was waterproofed with hypolon and butyl latex paint, brushed on.

John A. Walquist was the architect of the job. Pavarini Construction Company, Inc., erected the superstructure and did the lathing, while William Isherwood, Inc., executed the plastering contract. The George A. Fuller Company was general contractor.

The reinforcing bar and metal lath armature has been lifted into place and the legs connected to the three-foot-deep footings. Shoring is used temporarily to assure desired shape.

LABOR DAY— PAST AND PRESENT

LABOR Day is the trade union movement's gift to all the citizens of the United States and Canada. No other holiday came into being the same way, nor celebrates the living men and women who work with their hands and minds to keep America great and strong.

At first the holiday was the exclusive property of trade union members. Soon, however, their parades, speeches, and athletic events were attracting crowds of spectators from the balance of the community, and the holiday began its journey towards universal observance.

The first labor holiday was called by the Central Labor Union of New York City in 1882, on the motion of Peter J. McGuire, founder of the Carpenters Union, and the first secretary of the American Federation of Labor under Samuel Gompers.

The holiday was observed with a mammoth parade, at which the Central Labor Union paid tribute to the Knights of Labor which was holding a convention in New York.

The following year, the Central Labor Union again held its parade on the first Monday of September. And in 1884, the union made that date its official "Labor Day."

UNION LABEL WEEK
September 7-13 1964
UNION LABEL AND SERVICE TRADES DEPT., AFL-CIO

Sentiment for the holiday soon became nation-wide, and the next decade saw most of the states establishing by law a holiday paying tribute to working men and women. The first state to formally set the day aside was Oregon. It chose the first Saturday in June as its day, but this was changed six years later to conform with the established pattern of the first Monday in September.

By 1894, 29 states had acted to make Labor Day a legal holiday. In that year President Grover Cleveland signed a measure adding it to the list of the year's great occasions.

The Canadian provinces of Alberta, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Ontario and Saskatchewan and in the Yukon Territory also observe the day as a legal holiday.

A brief look at the conditions facing American workers at the time Labor Day became a national holiday will put into sharp focus the gains that have been made by the trade union movement since that time.

There were substantially less than a half million trade union members in 1894. The period was a time of economic chaos, and workers found it hard to provide the necessities for themselves and their families.

Let us hear the times described by two eminent historians:

"Everything seemed to conspire to convince the people that democracy was a failure. Prices and wages hit rock-bottom and there seemed to be no market for anything. Half a million laborers struck against conditions which they thought intolerable, and most of the strikes were dismal failures. Ragged and hungry bands of unemployed swarmed over the countryside, the fires from their hobo camps flickering a message of warning and despair to affrighted townsfolk. Coxey's army, consisting of broken veterans of the armies of industry, inspired by the pathetic delusion that a 'petition on boots' might bring relief, marched on Washington where they were arrested for trespassing on the Capitol grounds—a charge which somehow was never preferred against the silk-hatted lobbyists who presented their petitions for higher tariffs. The corn crop was a failure; wheat fell below fifty cents a bushel, cotton to six cents a pound and bitterness swept over the West like a prairie fire. Never did the Government seem more unfriendly, or democratic processes more futile. The Pullman workers struck for a living wage, and every agency of the government was enlisted to smash the strike. Representatives of the people in the lower House tried to reduce tariff duties, and representatives of privilege in the Senate made a farce of the effort. Congress passed an anti-trust law and it was enforced not against the trusts but against labor unions; when the great Sugar Trust was finally called into court, the Attorney-General of the United States sabotaged the prosecution. Congress enacted an income tax and it was voided in the highest court. And the President sold bonds to Wall Street, while silver, the poor man's friend, was disinherited and disgraced." *

From these faltering beginnings, the labor movement has profoundly altered the social and economic structure of the nation. The growth of organized labor is one of the significant developments in American history. Union membership has mushroomed to about 18 million. And with this growth came pride and prestige in belonging. In some of our biggest and richest industries, union members are in the majority. Throughout the nation, one out of every four wage earners belongs to the union of his craft.

With this growth also came power. And this power has been used not selfishly to advance the interests of a particular pressure group, but to raise the dignity and living standard of everyone who works for a living and to bolster the economy of the nation.

The list of achievements is too long to recount, but the labor movement has helped raise wages to ten times the level of 1894, hours have been cut in half or more, health and welfare benefits, pensions, paid vacations, and many other things are now the rule. The nation has been strengthened by the passage of much labor-sponsored legislation: minimum wage, social security, pure food and drug laws. Better schools and highways have resulted from the efforts of the labor movement—the catalog of social improvements is nearly inexhaustible.

In addition, the personal contribution of union members to the life of the community has enriched the nation.

As the fight for recognition and a living wage became less intense, the members of organized labor were able to participate more as citizens and as members of their communities.

As a result, a union member has held a cabinet post, and many have served in the Congress of the United States and in the Canadian Parliament.

Down the line, through the state and provincial legislatures to important county and city posts, the roster of union members doing an effective job for their fellow citizens is impressive.

As you enjoy Labor Day 1964, either with a parade, or merely enjoying the day with your family or friends, take pride in the fact that you are a member of the trade union movement who is carrying on the tradition of the sturdy pioneers who have not only made Labor Day a festive day for all the nation, but have made possible a standard of living to enable you and your neighbors to enjoy the holidays, and indeed all the days of the year.

APPRENTICESHIP

By

National Director

In the June issue I reported on the related instruction courses on which we are now working. I would like to discuss aptitude tests in this issue, for from statistics it has become very evident a need exists for one designed specifically for our industry.

In most crafts today, scientific methods are being used to help select apprentices for they have found that by the use of tests, the turnover in apprentice programs have been reduced to a very small per cent. Where apprentices are selected on a "hit-or-miss" basis, a very high per cent fail to complete training. An example in our craft is that in 1961 for every 3 boys indentured as apprentices, there were 2 boys who dropped out of the program, and in 1962, for every 3 indentured, one dropped out, which is the average for 1958 through 1962.

Many benefits result from the use of tests in screening of candidates for apprenticeship, including:

1. A better quality of apprentices entering training, thereby decreasing the number of dropouts before the completion of training.

2. Protection of the union and the employer by insuring that the time invested in training will result in better journeymen.

3. Giving the apprentice an insight into his abilities and helping him to choose the most suitable type of apprenticeship for him.

A study is now being conducted for our craft by the United States Employment Service, Department of Labor, in cooperation with affiliated State Employment Services of New Jersey, Illinois and California. The entire United States Employment Services General Aptitude Test Battery will be administered as the trial set of tests to groups of journeymen in these 3 states. This aptitude test battery, popularly known as the GATB, consists of 12 tests measuring nine aptitudes, as follows:

1. INTELLIGENCE — General learning ability. The ability to "catch on" or understand instructions and underlying principles; the ability to reason and make judgments.

2. VERBAL APTITUDE — The ability to understand meaning of words and ideas associated with them, and to use them effectively. The ability to comprehend language, to understand relationship between words and to understand meanings of whole sentences and paragraphs. The ability to present information or ideas clearly.

3. NUMERICAL APTITUDE — Ability to perform arithmetic operations quickly and accurately.

4. SPATIAL APTITUDE—Ability to comprehend forms in space and understand relationships of plane and solid objects. Frequently described as the ability to "visualize" objects of two or three dimensions, or to think visually of geometric forms.

5. FORM PERCEPTION—Ability to perceive pertinent details in objects or in pictorial or graphic material. Ability to make visual comparisons and discriminations and see slight differences in shapes and shadings of figures and widths and lengths of lines.

6. CLERICAL PERCEPTION — Ability to perceive pertinent detail in verbal or tabular material. Ability to observe differences in copy and to proofread words and numbers accurately.

7. MOTOR COORDINATION — Ability to coordinate eyes and hands or fingers rapidly and accurately in making precise movements with speed. Ability to make a movement response accurately and swiftly.

8. FINGER DEXTERITY—Ability to move fingers and manipulate small objects with the fingers rapidly and accurately.

9. MANUAL DEXTERITY — Ability to move hands easily and skillfully. Ability to work with the hands in placing and turning motions.

Finger dexterity and manual dexterity are measured with the use of apparatus while the other aptitudes are measured by paper-and-pencil tests.

The next step is the statistical analysis of the test results in relation to the supervisor's ratings or other measure of job performance to determine which of the nine aptitudes are the important ones required in the performance of the job. Then minimum qualifying scores are established for each one of those key aptitudes. These minimum qualifying scores are set at the point which will weed out most of the poor workers. These scores then become the minimum qualifying scores for use in the selection of new apprentices. An individual is considered qualified only if he comes up to the minimum in each one of the key aptitudes; he is rejected if he falls below the minimum on any one of these key aptitudes.

Aptitude tests do not tell the whole story. The information derived from the test scores must be used along with all the other information obtained about the candidate by other methods such as the interview and previous school records. This enables the Joint Apprenticeship Committee to consider all the factors that may have a bearing on the candidate's occupational success and satisfaction: Interests, potential skills, leisure activities, physical capacities, personal traits, social and economic factors, acquired skills, and education and training.

When this study is completed, Contractors' Associations, locals and joint apprenticeship committees interested in obtaining further information about the tests for lather apprentice applicants, should contact the local office manager or the state headquarters of their State Employment Security Agency.

WHIMSEY TAKES A DURABLE FORM

Usually, T. J. McGlone & Co., Inc., Rahway, N.J., is engaged in applying metal lath and plaster to residential and commercial structures. Every now and again, says President T. J. McGlone, they meet a really challenging, really interesting problem and solve it by designing a metal lath and plaster assembly.

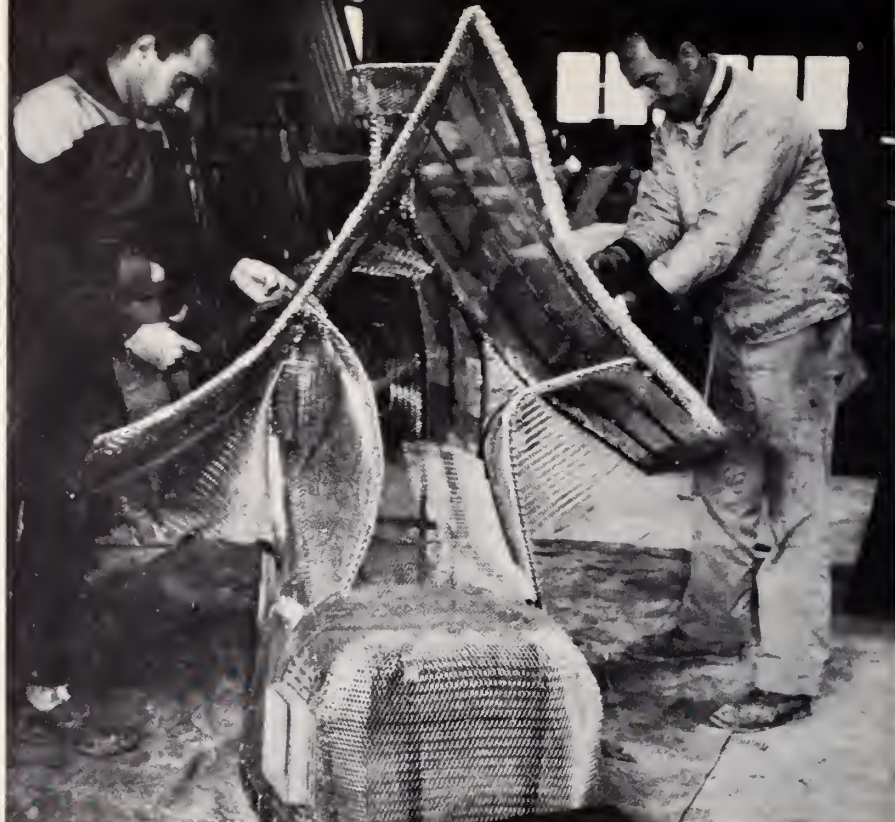

An outstanding instance was the

The wedge of cheese, and holes which appear to have been made in it by hungry mice, was created of metal lath and portland cement. As in all openings in these structures, corner bead was formed to define the shapes of "mouse holes." The 22 ft. 6 in.-radius wedge is 7 ft. 6 in. high at the center point and slopes upward to 8 ft. 6 in. at the periphery. Both interior and exterior walls are metal lath and portland cement plaster. Display cases are finished in galvanized metal lath over ½ in. plywood.

recent assignment which was handed to them by Architect W. Tjark Reiss, of Hudson, New York: It was summed up in a set of blue prints that provided maximum dimensions, showed general shapes and specified construction with "portland cement on metal lath and channels; smooth surface inside and out." The project appealed to the artistry that is an inherent part of the make-up of each lather and plasterer, for the specifications called for the construction of exotic structures for the Essex (N.J.) Park Commission's new Turtle Back Zoo in South Mountain Reservation. Included were the house of the Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe, a walk-through octopus which displays tropical fish and a pumpkin-jack o'lantern that is Peter Rabbit's home; also included were a giant ant hill for insect displays and a "mouse town" contained in a 20-foot slab of "cheese."

In addition, metal lath and plaster or portland cement were chosen for their durability, fire resistivity and versatility of design in the construction of other, more prosaic Zoo structures.

The furring channels and metal lath armature of the 5 ft. high shoe house was assembled in the McGlone company shop.

The octopus and his saucy sailor's hat were created of channels, 3.4# diamond mesh metal lath and portland cement plaster, from tip to tip.

The artistry of the lathers was called into play for the shaping of the menacing tentacles and the bulbous body.

Peter Rabbit's house is a 3 ft. 8 in. high pumpkin of appropriate color, with a 12 in. high stem, all of metal lath and portland cement. His carefully formed nose is 9 in. on a side, while his eyes, are 10 in. diameter. The grin, that reveals his metal lath and plaster tooth, is 14 in. high.

The carefully irregular "ant hill" is 15 ft. 3 in. high and was constructed of galvanized metal lath and portland cement over a framing of 2 x 4's, on a concrete slab. Within, a separate assembly of furring, metal lath and plaster, was formed into a roughly dome-shaped room. Glass-fronted cages, set flush in these interior walls, contain various live insects.

Department Store Features Thin-Coat

Bullock's Lakewood, 5005 Clark, Lakewood, California was changed from an alternate material to large size lath and thin-coat plaster with the result that the lathing work was increased approximately 700%. The lathers installed all the metal furring, metal studs and large size lath to receive a thin-coat plaster.

The store consists of a basement, three main floors and a penthouse. The work on this project consists of approximately 40,000 sq. yds. of large size lath and thin-coat plaster, of which 6,000 sq. yds. is two-hour fire rated (achieved by using double layer of large size lath) and the balance is one-hour fire rated construction, attached with screws. 7,000 sq. yds. of metal lath is attached to pressed metal studs.

Material used on the job consists of approximately 200,000 lineal feet of screw type metal studs and track, 6,000 lineal feet of $\frac{7}{8}$ " screw type furring channel, 30,000 lineal feet of pressed metal studs.

Two other interesting features are approximately 1,000 yds. of columns furred with furring channel with large size lath applied and $2\frac{1}{4}$ " solid partitions using 1" gypsum rib with $\frac{1}{2}$ " large size lath on each side.

Architects were Welton Becket and Associates, Los Angeles; General Contractor, C. L. Peck, Los Angeles; Plastering Contractor, C. F. Bolster, Los Angeles; and Lathing Contractor, A. R. Amos Lathing, Co., Long Beach.

Local 9 Members Receive Craftsmanship Awards

The Washington Building Congress believes that recognition of fine craftsmanship is a very real service to the entire local construction industry. Public recognition of superior craftsmanship is deeply satisfying to a mechanic doing outstanding work at the regular pay rate, and the encouragement of this craftsmanship, along with improved labor-management and public relations, benefits everyone in the industry. For these reasons the Washington Building Congress sponsors an annual Craftsmanship Award program.

The Washington Building Congress held its eighth annual Craftsmanship Awards Dinner on Monday evening, July 13, 1964, at the Mayflower Hotel.

Recognition was given to 20 individual building trade mechanics and one team of three men, for their exceptional craftsmanship and display of interest and ingenuity in the execution of the work selected for awards.

Featured speaker at the dinner will be Karel Yasko, Assistant Commissioner, General Services Administration. Roger E. Allard, chairman of the WBC Craftsmanship Awards Committee will read the citations and J. C. Turner, president of the Greater Washington Central Labor Council will present the certificates and gold lapel pins at the dinner.

In the plastering and lathing field, three men received certificates of superior craftsmanship. They were:

F. Carlton Meehan (lather) of R. Floyd Jennings & Son for executing a complicated ceiling treatment rendered more difficult by the limitations in height. The job displays grace and perfection of the resulting curves—which even a slight inaccuracy would have rendered intolerable.

Noval Sipes (plasterer) and Harvey Leroy Murray (lather) employed by the John H. Hampshire, Inc. for the work they performed at the Museum of History & Technology, Smithsonian Institution, in the First Ladies Hall and other parts of the museum.

The architects were McKim, Mead & White and Norair Engineering, the general contractors.

For the skillfull execution of a complicated ceiling treatment rendered more difficult by the limitations in height. There is space and perfection in the resulting curves—which even a slight inaccuracy would have rendered intolerable.

For the exceptional ability on the part of the lather to produce the proper curves and contours, and the finished work of the plasterer performed in accordance with exacting models furnished by the architect.

THE TIDE OF IMMIGRATION

The impact of immigration from the Old World on labor and the nation was profound. Between 1860 and 1920 almost 28,500,000 immigrants came to America — a number almost equal to our total population of 1850. One historian says that "... without doubt our economic structure has been reared to no small extent upon the rough labor of newly arrived immigrants."

Immigration was opposed by trade unions in the early days, but the newcomers found their place in the labor movement and from these ranks have come much of the basis and a great deal of the leadership of organized labor. The immigrants directly and indirectly, through their sons and grandsons, have given much to America and this great tide which reached a peak of 1,285,349 in 1907 has been a continuing landmark of labor and of our history.

DON'T BE A LITTERBUG! Be careful with even a single bit of litter. That's the only way to keep streets and sidewalks neat and clean . . . parks and public places a pleasure for all to enjoy. ■ Thoughtless littering—bit by bit—soon adds up to a mountain of trash. The clean-up costs plenty in taxes . . . fifty million dollars last year for major highways alone. And littering could cost you money in court! That's right! Littering is against the law in all 50 states. So always stick your litter in the basket—then you won't get stuck with a fine! And you will be doing your best to KEEP AMERICA BEAUTIFUL!

"TERRIFIC"

"Bestwall Gypsum Plaster is really terrific!" says John DiGregorio. "The glass fiber reinforcement makes ceilings and walls amazingly strong, hard, and resilient."

John knows. He and his father and their 250 employees are using 4,000 tons of Bestwall Plaster and 6,000,000 square feet of Bestwall Lath in the construction of Grosvenor Park Apartments, Bethesda, Maryland. They've discovered (have you?) that Bestwall Gypsum Lath and Plaster, reinforced with miles of glass fibers, resolve many job difficulties and assure superior results. For highest quality and for maximum fire protection, Bestwall is your best choice.

Grosvenor Park Apartments—Karl W. Corby Construction Company is erecting and renting the largest high-rise apartment complex ever built in the Wash. (D.C.) area. Plastering contractors are S. DiGregorio & Son.

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

Report of General President Sal Maso and General Secretary-Treasurer J. Earl Ferguson

THE Twenty-Fifth Convention of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union, held at the Hotel Astor, New York City, convened September 14, 1964, and adjourned September 17, 1964.

Many important issues were taken up at this Convention and many important actions were taken. The issues considered and the actions taken are definitely in the best interest of our International Union and you, the members of the International Union.

Probably the most important action taken at this Convention was the adoption of Resolution No. 26 which was in reference to the proposed agreement between the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union, dated June 10, 1963, on Ceiling Systems. Resolution No. 26, regarding this proposed agreement, is set forth in its entirety in this issue of the Lather, on page 19, so that you may be fully aware of the contents of the Resolution and the action taken by the Convention on this Resolution. We urge that you read this Resolution thoroughly and be guided by the action taken by the Convention. You should, in accordance with the mandate of the Convention, make every effort to see that Journeymen and Apprentice Lathers are assigned to and perform the work which rightfully belongs to them. If you have any questions or need any assistance with respect to this matter, please do not hesitate to contact Headquarters. You will receive assistance in every way possible. We must regain control of our trade jurisdiction, and we must see that our members are employed on this work.

On page 27 of this issue of the Lather, there is reproduced a "RESOLUTION OF THANKS", submitted to the Convention in behalf of all the Delegates, Alternate Delegates, Guests, and their Wives and Children, dedicated to Local Union No. 46, the Host Local Union to the Convention. It is needless to say this Resolution was adopted unanimously by the Convention, because apart from the numerous deliberations which came before the Convention, everyone was afforded outstanding entertainment, which was arranged and sponsored by the Host Local Union, Local 46. We know that everyone who attended these functions joins us in extending sincere appreciation to the members of Local Union No. 46, who served on the Committee making these arrangements, and to the Local Union as a whole for being such a gracious host.

As your newly-elected General President and General Secretary Treasurer, we wish to take this opportunity to thank each and every member of this great organization for their part in making the Convention a success and for showing their faith in us by electing us as their General Officers for the forthcoming three years. We assure you that we shall carry out our duties as General President and General Secretary-Treasurer to the best of our ability and always in the best interest of the LIU and its membership.

We also want you to know that we are available at all times for you to call upon for assistance in solving any problems and to help you in every way possible. Please feel free to contact us any time.

We urge your support and cooperation and assure you that you shall receive ours.

Sincerely and fraternally,

Open Letter to All Members

THE Twenty-Fifth Convention of the Lather's International Union is now history and a matter of record and we have all returned to our respective homes and tasks. I feel very deeply my responsibilities and duties being elected by you as your President of our International Union. My heartfelt thanks to you for this, the greatest honor of my life, and my complete dedication to the L.I.U. and its best welfare will be my guide.

The actions taken by the Convention on the many items of business will have a beneficial effect on the future of the L.I.U. and its progress. To each and every delegate I want to express my appreciation of their interest, their careful considerations and wholehearted participation in the Convention.

We realize that every issue discussed has pros and cons and that each individual reacts according to his own situation. Now that all matters have been decided, let us work together in harmony and not look back with thoughts of contention but rather look forward to a future bright with promise for our industry.

I know that I speak for Earl Ferguson, to whom you have entrusted the office of Secretary-Treasurer, as well as myself, in expressing our gratitude to you for your support in the past, and in the future before us. Every decision we make or action taken will be based only on what is in the best interest of the L.I.U., and personal bias, interest or personalities will not be allowed to influence our considerations. Our actions will be directed by a singleness of purpose, the advancement and growth of our International, our Craft and our Industry.

Again, our deepest thanks and with complete assurance, I am at your service,

Mayor Wagner of New York City Addresses Convention

The following are remarks by Mayor Robert F. Wagner given at the 25th International Convention on Monday, Sept. 14, 1964.

It is a great pleasure for me this morning to welcome you back to New York. The last time you met here was in 1955. Those of you from out of the city who were delegates in 1955 might think that nothing much has happened in New York since you were here last. It is nine years later now, but the cross-town traffic still seems just about the same. New York City still has most of the same buildings, the same theaters and restaurants—and even the same mayor.

But the fact is that many important changes have been made since 1955. New York City has been rapidly building and renewing itself. We built the Pam Am Building, for instance, and are still working at the magnificent Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts. We built the fabulous World's Fair, which I expect all of you will take time to take in—not once but several times. Yes, we have been doing a great deal of building. Each year we have built more housing and more new office space than any other three cities in the nation, combined.

We are proud of the contribution your particular industry has made to this construction record . . . and the flexibility your industry has shown in meeting the challenges of technological change . . . the change from steel frames to reinforced concrete forms, for instance.

New materials are revolutionizing many of our industries, just as automation is. But while automation plows jobs under and creates joblessness, the use of new materials can more easily be adjusted to. Over-all, technological advance can increase the total number of jobs and stimulate job opportunities. There are, of course, exceptions; and the construction industry knows some of those exceptions. You know too well that in some cases the use of new materials has cut both costs and jobs. It is a constant struggle.

As for automation, we certainly do not know or have the complete answer to the challenge of it; but we must find that answer.

Al J. Hayes, president of the Machinists, said recently: "If automation continues to result in the growth of a large, frustrated and aggressive citizenry—without satisfactions rooted in work—it will inevitably threaten the democratic institutions that have been our country's greatest contribution to mankind.

"And though we know it will not serve society to destroy the machines, still we must remain aware of the need to work together for the purpose of insuring that the machines will not destroy society."

Once upon a time the chief concerns of labor were wages, hours and working conditions. More recently the attention of the unions turned to security—job security and retirement security. Today the focus is beyond even that. In an increasing number of cases, the big problem confronting labor today is not the problem of getting the maximum in wages and pensions out of the employer. Today labor is beginning to be forced to figure the cost and the competition . . . and not so much competition from abroad as competition from machines and from substitute materials. That is a challenge; and it faces management as well as labor.

In some cases this challenge has brought management and labor together, to try to work out the answers. This is not yet a general rule, but it is beginning to be . . . and nowhere more so than in your industry.

This is the age in which mankind discovered power—nuclear power and technological power. Today we are in danger of being overcome by our own power.

We are in almost the same fix as that which confronted those prehistoric men who first learned how to start fires. They, too, must have understood that they were in danger of destroying themselves, until they learned how to control fire . . . how to stop it, and how to guard against its spread. We must learn how to do the same, with both nuclear power and technological power.

This is also the age in which a part of mankind has begun to demand its share of the heritage of civilization . . . a share long denied them. The chains of bondage are being broken, and the disruption is substantial and even frightening.

During the decade we are in, 26 million young workers will have come into the American labor force. This is 40% more than during the last decade. To absorb this number into the economy is a challenge. It is also a necessity.

Referring to this very prospect, Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg said three years ago, while he was Secretary of Labor: "Should we move ahead to high levels of economic activity and employment, then we can look forward to employing all these young persons with their talents, skills and aptitudes, to a point of economic growth never before attained in this country. I think we can and will."

Under the leadership of President Kennedy and President Johnson, the working man and his family, the contractor, the small businessman, as well as the giant corporation, have benefited from an unmatched 43 months of continuous prosperity. In the four years of this administration personal income has risen $86 billion. Five million new industrial jobs have been created, and the prices which we pay for the things needed by our families have remained relatively stable. But the President himself has said that he is not satisfied, that we must do better, as long as there is still unemployment and underemployment.

The fact is that we have not been doing as well as we should. We have not been creating the number of new jobs in private enterprise that must be created.

In the construction industry we have not been adding enough to the number of available jobs. We must add more. We must build more.

There must be authorized in the not-too-distant future a vast new program of public construction—above all, schools . . . and hospitals and other public facilities . . . and homes by the million, and bridges and expressways, too.

This public works program should be large enough to absorb every skilled worker and to provide opportunities for substantial numbers of new workers . . . apprentices . . . from every group of our society and especially from the disadvantaged groups, the minority groups.

We must have a correspondingly large program of jobs for the unskilled—not only for the young but for the middle aged and for those past 40.

Productive jobs must be made available. Productive jobs mean productive lives. Full employment means a decrease in the fears which support the forces of discrimination.

In constructing a building you need to have the specifications before you can begin. Once the specifications are known and the plans are drawn, construction can begin. Within recent years and recent months the specifications for our economy and our society, too, have changed in important respects.

It is essential that we adjust to those changes and build within those new specifications.

There is no alternative. I say that those who advocate the opposite course . . . who refuse to recognize that we are living in 1964 and not in 1884 . . . who speak of limited government and states' rights—including the right to enact union-busting, right-to-work laws—who maintain that civil rights are a local matter but that poverty is an individual matter . . . these are counsels of regression and reaction more radical than any which have been heard in our nation for three-quarters of a century.

Such a point of view represents a danger which every union member must resolve to overcome. This is a danger as great as war and destruction. Recognizing this danger, I know that you and all your members throughout the nation will take the necessary action on the necessary day next November.

For the rest, I again welcome you to New York City in the name of our eight million people. Have a good convention, and come again soon. Don't wait for another nine years to pass.

GOOD Construction — A Necessity of Life

Address by Edward J. Leonard, General President of the Operative Plasterers & Cement Masons Int'l Assn.

President Maso, Secretary Mills, Delegates, honored guests, ladies and gentlemen:

I hope that you will join with us and assist in coordinating our forces in cooperation with all other sectors of the construction industry interested in propagating the necessity of safe and sound construction—in short, GOOD construction.

By safe construction I mean what the word implies: Safety to life, safety to health and safeguards against loss and damage of property.

By sound, I also mean what the word implies. For one thing, I mean the type of construction that affords adequate resistance to transmission of noise from one apartment to another through walls, partitions and ceilings.

This is a quality of GOOD construction that lay people do not understand or appreciate until they find themselves trapped by the nerve-jangling, unhealthful din that annoys and prevents proper rest that's so essential to good health—that results from cheap, flimsy construction. Here is a typical example, taken from the public press:

"In a legal suit in the New York courts, an apartment tenant sued his neighbor for constantly awakening him by knocking on their partition. The defendant filed a countersuit stating he was compelled to knock on the adjoining partition so as to awaken and prevent his neighbor's loud snoring so he could sleep. The defendant further contended that every time he sneezed in his apartment, the neighbor shouted 'Gesundheit!'"

By GOOD construction I mean what the word implies; not counterfeit, not fallacious. I mean construction that is dependable and satisfying; not for just several months or a few years but for perpetuity.

By GOOD construction I mean a bargain for the owner, affording adequate safety for himself and his family, essential sanitation, with some architectural beauty. By including these points, GOOD construction affords comfort in daily living and economic security based on sound investment.

In recent years, some opportunists who lack construction knowledge have invaded the industry to take advantage of new, liberal financing methods. In many instances they have debased essential standards under the guise of modernization. The result has been buildings that lack comfort, sanitation and safety, thereby causing distress to the innocent, uninformed victims who were lured to invest by pretenses of economy.

Yes, all things cost money—the food you eat, the clothing you wear, your education, your recreation, and the many things you purchase every day of your life. You appreciate quality, and you would not forsake quality for the small saving offered daily by cheap substitutes.

Yet the unsuspecting public is victimized by the word "economy" when it may involve only a slight saving in the initial cost of construction. It is tempting to save a few dollars, but economy of this nature is indeed unwise when it means sacrificing fire protection, sound protection, sanitation, stability, beauty and ultimately real economy.

It seems inconceivable that in this so-called civilized and enlightened age the average daily fire toll in the United States is 32 lives, 1,500 homes, 14 schools, 8 churches, 5 hospitals and nursing homes, 120 stores and 150 industrial plants.

In the last decade—from 1953 to 1963—the loss of life from fire in the United States increased approximately 10 per cent, amounting in 1963 to approximately 12,000 deaths.

In 1953 there were 727,000 building fires; 10 years later, approximately 900,000 building fires.

In 1953 there were 480,000 residential fires; in 1963, the number of residential fires had increased to approximately 630,000.

In 1953, 420,000 of residential fires were in one and two-family dwellings. In 1963, the figures in this classification had increased to approximately 560,000.

The total of fire losses in buildings increased from $889,120,000 in 1953 to $1,440,000,000 in 1963.

The rising toll of fire losses, both in terms of life and property, can be attributed in large degree to the increasing use of materials that either have substandard ignition points or are downright combustible.

Three prominent manufacturers of materials that are principally competitive with plastering showed profits in 1953 that totaled $76,407,000 before taxes and $31,319,000 after taxes. Ten years later—in 1963—the profits of these same three companies amounted to $128,001,000 before taxes, an increase of $51,594,000. After taxes, the total of net profits was $65,703,000, which was $34,338,000 more than in 1953, or an increase of more than 100 per cent.

These figures are only a sampling of the profits of a comparatively few of the manufacturers whose products have oftentimes been associated with conflagrations in both large buildings and small homes. In an effort to prevent all building tradesmen concerned with good and quality construction from opposing the efforts of those who would debase building codes by the lessening or elimination of safety factors, some manufacturers have endeavored to imply the old axiom of divide and conquer by pitting one trade against another, by endeavoring to create jurisdictional disputes.

In many instances they've failed because they could not deceive building tradesmen, but unfortunately in some localities they succeeded where tradesmen were not familiar with their deception and intrigue.

This subject is too important to be considered as a jurisdictional matter between building trades or as a cause of favoritism for or against any manufacturer. It is too important to be confused with conventional and prefabricated construction.

It is a question of morality, for the safety and comfort of all tradesmen—of all people in all walks of life—are impaired when laws are lacking or those on the books are not enforced.

The people are entitled to legal protection in their homes, their places of work and recreation, wherever they may be in every type of building. Particularly is this important in the home, for the home is for most people the major investment of a lifetime. The first payment represents virtually their entire savings to date, and the mortgage usually represents all of their serviceable years in the future. Loss of this investment is generally irreparable financially, to say nothing of the loss of life that may result, or the loss of treasured mementos and furnishings.

Looking over the vast profits made by companies engaged in the production of substitute materials promoted in the name of economy, the amounts of taxes paid to the federal government loom large. It would seem that the government could act properly in the name of humanity and for the sake of real economy. Already involved in the financing of building construction, the government could add to its programs as a subsidy, a small amount if necessary to afford adequate safety and comfort to the occupants of buildings especially those in which the government already has financial interest; local governments should protect their communities with adequate laws properly enforced.

In just one city—which need not be identified, because it is not exceptional among the larger cities of the nation, but could be used as a criteria,—the federal government has invested many millions for housing purposes in the last 10 years. Let us see what else has happened in that same metropolis in the same 10 years.

In 1953, approximately 185 persons died by fire. That year, approximately $17,000,000 was appropriated for a fine fire department, and $1,700,000 for the city's building department.

In 1963, in this same city, fire deaths amounted to approximately 260. The fire department appropriation, necessary for a good department, was $34,000,000, and the building department appropriation was $5,000,000.

It is striking to note that in this decade the city's population decreased by approximately 50,000. Yet with 50,000 fewer persons, the city's fire losses in life and property increased and with them, of course, higher taxes for the costs of city government.

WHY?

Well, since I am not a member of any of the inner circles which I consider to be responsible for one of the most dastardly hoaxes ever perpetrated on the American public, I don't pretend to know all the facts. But I do read the newspapers, and I have noted the following articles:

From the Wall Street Journal of October 6, 1948, under the heading "Cheaper Building; Experts Finishing Model Codes; Would Abolish Needless Restrictions,"

The article reads:

"In an office high above the city's teeming Grand Central area, a small group of men is putting the finishing touches to two documents that can help puncture high building costs across the country.

"A simple procedure for permitting use of newly developed materials without special approval of local governing bodies is one of the highlights of the proposed codes. They would also wipe out inflexible restrictions against new building techniques involving either new or old type materials.

"Interest in the new codes is at a high pitch, although the 'abridged' model won't be available until later this year, and the 'basic' document some time in 1949.

"The biggest job, says Code-Maker Strehan, will be persuading ruling fathers of local communities to adopt them. To help bring this about, the Building Officials Conference of America will form local committees, to push the new regulations in their localities.

"The introduction of new materials under the BOCA codes would cease to be the headache it is today. New products would be subjected to tests in recognized independent laboratories at the expense of the producer, under conditions simulating those that occur in normal use. Those that come through the ordeal with flying colors would get the BOCA's stamp of approval. Before a material could be accepted in a particular community, however, it would have to be approved by the local building official."

The paper "Construction News" referring to the BOCA codes, stated on March 5, 1947, under the heading "Unbiased Testing":

"There the committee learned the Building Officials Conference has established a national foundation to conduct 'unbiased' testing of materials, methods and processes. By including the foundation's findings in its nationwide requirements, the Conference would thus take out of the hands of local legislative bodies decisions regarding specification. In addition, the nationwide basic code would not become outdated because new materials and methods would be tested and approved under the general performance standards as they came into use, Huggett explained it. It would form the 'basic law' to which all construction operations must conform, and would not require amendment.

"Manufacturers are already collaborating in the testing program and are submitting materials as soon as they are ready for the market, the committee was told. Tests are made free of charge and the foundation is supported by a revolving fund of $650,000 supplied by members and material manufacturers."

On October 8, 1871, the City of Chicago was virtually destroyed by fire. In an endeavor to prevent recurrence of such an unnecessary holocaust, the city fathers enacted laws affording the citizenry reasonable safety through adequate fire regulations.

Many other cities, and some states, lacking experience or sufficient knowledge of legal building code measures for protecting life and property from fire, copied or patterned their building codes after Chicago's. Consequently, Chicago became the Spain, or testing ground, for building code regulations in America. Consequently, building materials and methods accepted in Chicago's building code, often virtually received national acceptance.

On New Year's eve or December 30th, 1949, Chicago's City Council enacted a law that became effective about the latter part of January 1950.

Under a heading of "FIRE HAZARD CLASSIFICATION" this law supposedly was to determine the speed with which flame traveled over the surface of combustible materials. It seems evident from the deliberations preceding the enactment that few people, other than some Manufacturers and their representatives who would profit by the enactment of the law, had any knowledge whatsoever of this method of testing building materials or the results of such tests.

The result of accepting this so-called flame-spread testing method PLACES HIGHLY COMBUSTIBLE AND VERY DANGEROUS building materials in the same classification as safe and non-combustible materials. This is accomplished by the Hocus-Pokus method of testing that classifies non-combustible materials that will not nor can not burn with a flame spread rating of 0.

Then giving some combustible materials, yes, highly combustible and dangerous materials, a flame spread rating of 15 or 25 or 50 or etc. Then accomplish with a little semantic Legerdemain, the tailor making regulations by identifying materials as Class 1 - 2 - 3 or 4.

Then materials with a flame spread rating of 0 to 25 or 0 to 50 or etc., may be classified as Class 1, consequently Class 1 could mean combustible or non-combustible materials leaving no difference between things that do and do not burn.

This deception is more ridiculous than saying black is white and day is night because of the vast and unnecessary loss of life and property involved.

Consequently representatives of those who would profit by this law, saturated the country that Chicago incorporated into law this Method of classifying "Fire Hazard Classification of Building Materials."

The fact is the method was NEVER intended to distinguish between combustible and non-combustible materials. Consequently nevertheless many other misled and uninformed legislative bodies, of cities, counties, and states have enacted this deceptive regulation or so-called law.

It would be far better if the public were informed of their lack of protection so they would not depend upon such so-called legally enacted safety factors and use their own precautions.

There is another so-called method of testing if a material is fire safe by determining how fast heat and flame will burn downhill and everyone knows fire and heat rises upward. You will always place your coffee kettle and frying pan over a flame, not under a flame, if you wish to cook it. True, honest, inexpensive and simple methods of ascertaining the relative fire hazards of Building Materials is by determining three things: 1) The ignition point. 2) The B.T.U. content. 3) The amount of smoke and toxicity.

Numerous other methods of deception that mercenaries may endeavor to employ to exploit the public by debasing any industry regardless of hazard to life or property if there is a dollar in it.

In the absence of proper knowledge or apathy by legislative bodies or law enforcement agencies, we owe it to the public we serve to correct the existing deplorable conditions and maintain vigilance to prevent any recurrences of debasement of standards and hazards to life and property.

In closing, I would strongly recommend that you join with all segments of the construction industry in propagating the necessity of safe and sound construction.

Gov. Hughes, Sen. Javits Address 25th Convention

(Highlights of address of Gov. Richard Hughes of New Jersey)

"I am very happy to be here with you this morning. It is just a wonderful day. It is always a happy thing to be able to come to a friend's birthday party or to a friend's reception or to a friend's presiding as international president over a great organization like this from all over the country.

"It is a great honor to New York to have Sal Maso in this position. He and I have a close personal friendship. We worked well together. I get into a little trouble about something, I call him up and he is always there. Once in a while he has needed me and I want to assure him I am always going to be there, too. But our friendship started in a funny way. I was elected Governor of New Jersey in the fall of 1961, kind of an upset election. Back in 1959 or early 1960 I happened to be a lawyer, I was practicing, I was doing very well by working hard, and I was a legislative counsel—that is another word for lobbyist—for the Association of Railroads in New York. I went to the legislature quite a bit. I would put on parties once in a while. I happened to be in Washington at the Sheraton-Park Hotel. Sal was down there at some convention or official business. We ran into each other. We were sitting around late one night with some mutual dear friends. I noticed Sal, the first time I met him, we talked. You know, I was a lawyer, had been a judge, he knew about me and so forth and I had known about him. He looked at me and said, 'You know, Hughes, you ought to run for Governor of New Jersey.' I said, 'Why it never occurred to me, Sal. Why do you say that? There are a lot of good men and so forth.' He said, 'Look at it this way. You have a good reputation. You have been a judge on the bench for ten years. You have a good labor reputation. You have many cases that show you were fair and so forth in disposing of labor's problems.'

"On the 46th Birthday of our martyred President, John Kennedy in 1963—I told this story to Sal many times—he called several governors from the Northeast, also the Governor of Illinois, Otto Kerner down to Washington on Washington's Birthday. President Johnson was there, two or three other people.

"The theme of his argument was this: That this country was in a situation where there had to be an implementation of justice in the field of Civil Rights and it couldn't come from Washington, it could not all be done in Washington. He wanted us to go back and particularly with organized labor to go to organized labor and talk to it and ask it to be fair, ask it to go with him, to go to the country, to go with the future of America.

"So I came back and I got the AFL-CIO, I got Sal. I rounded up some republican leaders. The heads of the Republican Party, the heads of the Democratic Party, we all came together in a series of committees. I think we have done some good. We have not performed any miracles but

Governor Richard Hughes

I have kept my word with President John Kennedy. That is a great satisfaction to me. These men have kept their word with me. We are still a long ways from home but we are working together well. As these problems in the state come up, a lot of them involve the interests of organized labor.

That does not mean labor bills or labor legislation. It means a lot of things. It means burgeoning industry in the state. It means great construction to make full use of the great building trades talent we have in this country."

Senator Jacob Javits

(Highlights of address of Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y.)

"It is very important to me to tell you how highly I value your General President because he has exemplified in his own life and career something I believe in very deeply. That is the role of the labor leader as a public citizen as well.

"He has enabled the labor movement to be proud that it is producing not only its own leaders but its own statesmen. I have heard, for example,

Senator Jacob Javits

Resolution No. 26

To the Officers and Delegates in attendance at this 25th Convention of the L.I.U.:

WHEREAS, On June 10, 1963, the late General President Lloyd A. Mashburn, General Secretary-Treasurer Harold Mills, Vice-President S. D. Arnold and Brother C. B. Gariss, affixed their signatures to a proposed agreement between the L.I.U. and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, titled "Agreement on Ceiling Systems," and

WHEREAS, Contents of proposed agreement describes work rightfully coming under the jurisdiction of the lathers, and

WHEREAS, Lathers employed on this type of erection had to relinquish their employment when proposed agreement was implemented, and

WHEREAS, This resulted in a loss of countless hours of work for members of the L.I.U., also a loss of membership to the L.I.U., and

WHEREAS, Proposed agreement was signed and implemented without the approval of the Executive Council of the L.I.U., therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED, That the delegates to this 25th Convention of the L.I.U. non-concur in proposed ceiling agreement with the United Brotherhood of Carpenters.

Buckeye State Council of Lathers

a great deal about the fact that labor leaders ought to figure more in our cabinet appointments, in our appointments to high federal office. For example, it is very rare for a labor leader to be an ambassador or minister on behalf of the United States. There is no reason in the world why this should be confined to educators, bankers or lawyers.

"I think we are coming into the day when labor leaders will qualify in terms of the public esteem. I believe that it is men like your General President Maso, who will help that come into being sooner. Hence, I am delighted to be speaking before you where I deal so much in the public service and the public era is reflected in the leadership.

"So, Sal, I wish you many continued years of good health and fruitful and bountiful service and wish to express to you my appreciation as one Senator of the United States not only for the leadership of your own union, which is an exemplary union in many ways but for your willingness to engage in the public service as any leader in whatever field must be willing to do in our nation.

"Now, Gentlemen, I should like to share a few thoughts with you first. I serve on the Central Committee on labor and Public Welfare. In that committee it has been possible to strike a blow for a matter which interests you particularly, the two bills your counsel, whom I had the honor of speaking to a few minutes ago, tells me you are interested in, on-site picketing which has not yet become law and the Davis-Bacon Fringe Benefits which have become law. I have sponsored the legislation in both. As far as the Davis-Bacon Act is concerned there is no question about the rightness of that judgment. Senator Kuchel in the Senate is the principal sponsor, I was happy to join with him. I am very pleased to see that that is now the law.

"On-site picketing has represented a long standing grievance on the construction workers and I think one which is very justified. The objection which has been made against on-site picketing has been that a very small labor dispute could tie up a very big problem. It was for this reason that the opposition justified its own position against it. In the bill as it has been reported out by my own committee that situation is cared for and the National Labor Relations Board is given authority to deal with what may be purely fractional disputes in order to avoid tying up a major job on that account. But the idea of depriving the construction worker of his basic right to picket just because he happens to work on a job with other unions and his work happens to be shifting from place to place depending on where construction is taking place is wrong.

"The on-site picketing bill should be passed. I pledge you my full efforts in that regard in company with Senator Morse and others who in the Senate have been working very hard to get this done over all these years."

To those Delegates who were too busy finishing off that delicious meal to hear the introduction of the lovely terpsichorean who entertained them so elegantly at the Dinner Dance, incident to the 25th National Convention of the L.I.U., please be advised that this lovely lady was not just another dancer,

Mary Baldwin is the wife of Jim Baldwin, Business Agent of Local No. 53, and a card carrying Lather of fourteen years. Charlie Landy, Sr., her father, has been a card carrying member of the L.I.U. since 1924. Her brother, Charlie, Jr., has been carrying his card since 1956.

Not to be outdone, Mary has been a member in good standing of the Philadelphia Chapter of the American Guild of Variety Artists for the past nineteen years. During those nineteen years, Mary has performed in many of the better clubs in and around Philadelphia. As you can plainly see, Mary is the product of a good Union background and can take her place in line with her husband, father and brother as a skilled Unionist.

Goldwater Accentuates the Negative

The public statements and writings of Sen. Barry Goldwater are almost entirely negative. He opposes a strong, free trade movement. He would weaken the social security system. He is against an effective program of health care for the elderly under social security. He is against strong federal government. If he is for anything, in terms of specific positive programs to deal with the nation's needs, he has yet to express it. Below are his stands on major issues:

Unions—Goldwater would ban union political activities. He favors "right-to-work" laws. ("I strongly favor enactment of state right-to-work laws."—Conscience of a Conservative). He introduced a bill in the Senate Jan. 14, 1963, to place a whole new set of restrictions on unions, an openshop law among them. He feels unions should be brought under anti-trust laws.

"The immense and ever-growing power of labor unions constitutes a grave danger to our economy. . . ." (Senate speech, Sept. 24, 1962).

Social Security—The Spartanburg, S.C., Herald, Sept. 16, 1960, said: "He (Goldwater) said . . . in an interview that he is opposed to a social security program in which the federal government provides funds. 'Millions are being spent recklessly for this.'"

General welfare—In his book, Conscience of a Conservative, Goldwater wrote: "The government must begin to withdraw from a whole series of programs . . . from social welfare programs, education, public power, agriculture, public housing, urban renewal. . . ."

Health Care—Goldwater opposes health care for the elderly under social security. He says it would "destroy freedom," and views the fight for the bill as one "in which the ideals of free enterprise and voluntary action meet head on with the radical liberal dogma of the welfare state." (Chicago Daily News, Dec. 24, 1960).

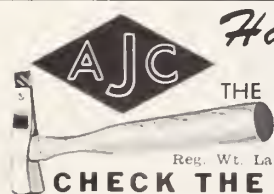

Taxes—"Get rid of the whole graduated income tax." (Washington, Star, Dec. 3, 1961). "Government has a right to claim an equal percentage of each man's wealth, and no more." (Conscience of a Conservative). In practice this means if a man making $50,000 were taxed 50 percent—$25,000—a man making $5,000 must be taxed 50 percent—$2,500.

The federal government—"I fear Washington and centralized government more than I do Moscow. (Spartanburg, S.C., Herald, September 16, 1960).

Human rights—Goldwater was one of only six Republicans who voted against the recently passed civil rights bill. He claims sections of it violate the Constitution.

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

Report from the

GENERAL PRESIDENT

I have been setting up the resolutions adopted by the Twenty-Fifth Convention which will bring about changes in the LIU Constitution, and I should like to call your attention to two of these resolutions in particular. One is Resolution No. 25, which provides certain protection for a working Business Agent, and Resolution No. 73, which recommends that the Apprenticeship Clause be included in all collective bargaining agreements. While neither of these Resolutions can be mandatory, I strongly urge you to make every effort to have them included in your agreements as you negotiate new ones.

The Apprenticeship Joint Committee held a meeting recently in Phoenix, Arizona, in conjunction with the Convention of the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association. This meeting was very constructive. There was a motion made and passed concurring with the actions of the Co-Chairmen in signing a contract and entering into an agreement with McGraw-Hill Book Company Inc., to create instructional guidebooks to teach craft related knowledge to lather apprentices. This is a very worthwhile program and it is to the advantage of every local union to see that the clause providing for the one cent per hour per journeyman and apprentice be included in their agreements.

In further reference to your agreements, under date of July 27, 1964 I directed a letter to all Local Unions, State, District and Provincial Councils requesting that they fill out certain forms which were enclosed with this letter, in order to have their fringe benefits predetermined by the Department of Labor in accordance with the newly passed Fringe Benefit Bill, HR 6041, which amended the Davis-Bacon Law to include the predetermination of Fringe Benefits on Federally financed work.

You have been very cooperative in sending in your agreements and returning the fringe benefit forms, however, there are still a few Local Unions who have not returned the forms. This is very important to the members of your Local Union, because it can mean the difference between their fringe benefits being predetermined and not being predetermined. This may not mean any difference in the actual amount of money you receive, but it does make a difference with respect to the payment of your fringe benefits. Therefore, I urge those local unions who have not submitted these summary fringe benefit forms to do so immediately.

It has been brought to my attention, that many of our members have confused the Pension Fund listed in the financial section of the Lather, with the General Pension Fund and I should like to clarify this matter at this time. The Pension Fund which is set forth in the financial section of the Lather is the Pension Fund which covers the full-time employees of the International Union who are members of the International Union, such the General Officers, International Representatives, etc. This Fund was initiated by action of the Twenty-Fourth Convention held in 1961. This is not the General Pension Fund and is in no way related to the General Pension Fund which is for members of the LIU, whose local union has negotiated the General Pension Fund clause in their agreements, and whose contractors pay into this fund at 10 cents per hour for each hour worked. Action was taken at the Twenty-Fifth Convention held in September 1964, to include the full time employees who are members of the LIU into the General Pension Plan and Fund, therefore, this Pension Fund will not be published in the Lather hereafter. The General Pension Fund is not included in the financial statement in the Lather, because it is jointly administered by the LIU and Employer Trustees, therefore it is a fund set up separate and apart from the International Union. I would like to say at this time that I am very pleased with the number of Local Unions who are covered under the General Pension Plan and with the number of local unions who are negotiating this Plan into their agreements. This is not only a protection for their members, but the greater the number of participating members, the more chance the plan has to be improved. This is, of course, what we had in mind when the plan was first initiated. We had to start somewhere, with the expectation of growing. This we are doing and we should in the future be in position to negotiate better benefits for our participating members. You are urged to make every effort to have this Pension Fund Clause included in your working agreement.

As soon as possible a new sample working agreement will be prepared which will comply with the LIU Constitution as revised by actions taken at the Twenty-Fifth Convention. This is also true of the sample Constitution and By-laws. As soon as these sample Working Agreements and Constitution and By-laws are complete, copies will be sent to each Local Union and Council for their guidance.

When negotiating your new agreement you should, without fail, include the Trade Jurisdiction of our International Union, in its entirety as set forth in the LIU Constitution, Section 3. This is of the utmost importance from a legal standpoint as well as protection for the members of your Local Union.

The Twenty-Fifth Convention has been over now for one month and we must now unite and carry out the mandates of this Convention. We are all aware that many differences of opinion existed prior to and during this Convention . . . these must now be put aside and everyone must work together toward our common goal . . . the successful building of our International Union.

Through this, my report to you, the membership, I am asking your cooperation and I am reproducing in this issue of the Lather, the letter I directed to our Vice-Presidents, International Representatives and Deputy International Representatives, asking their cooperation.

The potential of our International Union is tremendous and we must put forth every effort to take advantage of these possibilities and build our International Union into an even greater organization than it already is.

At this time I want to urge each and every member to vote in the forthcoming National Elections on November 3, 1964. This is a privilege which we should not let pass by.

TO ALL VICE PRESIDENTS, INTERNATIONAL REPRESENTATIVES AND DEPUTY INTERNATIONAL REPRESENTATIVES OF THE WOOD, WIRE AND METAL LATHERS INTERNATIONAL UNION

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

Our convention is over and the majority has made its determination. We must now concern ourselves with the future of our International Union and with the carrying out of the wishes and programs adopted by the International Convention.

I realize that serious political differences were involved in the election of International Officers held at the convention and that bitter feelings were engendered by the debates and by the arguments. However, we must not harbor any resentment against local unions or individuals who may have opposed the position which any of us took. Our International Union must go forward united without any division among us.

It shall always be my purpose to further the interests of our International Union and all of its locals, and I know this is your aim too. Therefore, we must fight together to press our work and to maintain our trade jurisdiction, but we must do this united toward the common goal of protecting the best interests of all the members of the International Union.

In the past I have received 100% cooperation from you, and I know I can look forward to the same cooperation in the future.

With kind personal regards,

Sincerely and fraternally

Edward D. Chouinard
1874-1964

Many of our old-time members were saddened to learn of the death of one of our really old-timers—Brother Edward D. Chouinard #1656, who passed away recently at the venerable age of 90 years.

Brother Chouinard was enrolled in the International Union, as a charter member of Local 74, on September 25, 1901. For many years he served as President of Local 74 and during this time was an efficient lathing superintendent, much sought after by the larger Lathing and Plastering Contractors.

In August 1914, Brother Chouinard decided to go into business for himself and founded a Lathing Contractor Company, bearing his name. Until he retired at age 80, he remained a prosperous and fair contractor, always keeping in mind his loyalty to his own local and to the International.

Have you watched a Credit Manager's eyebrows rise higher when you say your husband has been employed by "Joe Blotz, Contractor" for 3 days? (never mind his 25 year pin—tell this Credit Manager that later, like when he says "Salary?") . . .

Has your neighbor, Mrs. White Collar, asked "What are those little black specks on your husband's face?" (refer her to the Credit Manager) . . .

Report from the

GENERAL SECRETARY-TREASURER

Labor's Choice

"It is our deep conviction," said the AFL-CIO General Board in its statement endorsing Democratic candidates Lyndon B. Johnson and Hubert H. Humphrey for President and Vice President, "that the election of 1964 is the most crucial this country has faced since 1932."

In 1932 the nation was in a state of near collapse as the depression drained the country's strength and spread fear and desperation among a shocked and stricken people.

The trade union movement had lost its World War I strength. Its membership rolls were shrinking, riddled by the 15 million or more jobless. Whatever measure of security it had gained for its members at the bargaining table was washed away in the engulfing economic storm.

Unions worked for that election of Franklin D. Roosevelt, but there was no overall, concerted labor campaign, no carefully planned register-and-vote drive by a Committee on Political Education.

Throughout the Thirties and into the World War II years labor became more deeply involved in the national political process, supplementing its long-time legislative activities with political education on vital issues in election campaigns and contributions to candidates.

The passage of the Taft-Hartley Act after a decade of progressive legislation focused with great intensity the fact that legislation, just as much as depression, could wash away gains won on the picket line and around the collective bargaining table.

Labor organized politically to answer the attack and to protect itself from further assaults. And when the AFL and CIO merged in 1955 the constitution for the new labor center declared as one of its objects and principles:

"While preserving the independence of the labor movement from political control, to encourage workers to register and vote, to exercise their full rights and responsibilities of citizenship and to perform their rightful part in the political life of the local, state and national communities."

In 1964 the AFL-CIO is playing that role. It is set out in terms not only of the interests of America's organized workers but in terms of the nation and the world. For organized labor is part of the fabric of American society and trade union movements the free world over lead the fight for peace and freedom.

The Republican Party has this year fallen into the hands of those who are determined to give the country a "choice" that essentially narrows down to a "Choice" between further progress along the lines on which the nation has moved since 1932 or a return to the period when depressions brought a mighty nation almost to its knees.

The "choice" is between policies dedicated to protecting the forces of freedom everywhere, to seeking peace without impulsive action or aggressive intent to those of a Republican candidate who would gamble with the survival of mankind in a nuclear conflict.

Labor has made its "choice." It will dedicate all of its efforts between now and Nov. 3 to the election of Lyndon Johnson and Hubert Humphrey. Their election is the single most important contribution every American worker can make to his own and the nation's well being. (For the record see pages 14-17.)

Federal Apprenticeship Committee Marks 30th Year, 100th Meeting

The Federal Committee on Apprenticeship, marking 30 uninterrupted years of active existence, held its 100th business meeting today without ceremony in Washington, D.C.

Under-Secretary of Labor John F. Henning chaired the meeting.

The Committee paused long enough today to have its picture taken, then turned to business. Its current agenda includes training on Indian reservations, apprenticeship in defense contracts, "specialists" occupations, subsidies in apprenticeship, preapprenticeship, and budget allocations.

The committee was established by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1934 to provide the Secretary of Labor with a panel of top advisors on apprenticeship from the fields of labor, management and education.

There are 11 members on the committee today, five each from management and labor, and one from education.

There were four members on the original committee in 1934, and fewer than 10,000 apprentices in the United States.

Today, apprentices number an estimated 250,000, with 163,000 in programs registered with the Bureau of Northwestern Insurance Company building dominates Gateway Urban Renewal Area of Minneapolis.

Beauty with Dignity

When Minoru Yamasaki designs a building, that's news.

The famed architect first became generally known to the American public through his revolutionary designs at the Seattle World's Fair.

But it's obvious that his talent does not require the excitement of a World's Fair to generate something spectacular. As staid an account as the Northwestern Insurance Co. has inspired a building that will dominate the Gateway Urban Renewal Area of Minneapolis.

And lath-and-plaster is an integral part of the sensation being created by the stately structure, with its slightly Oriental flavor, now in its final stages of construction.

One of the most unusual exterior features of the building is its enormous "porch," 56 x 112 feet, supported by 15 90-foot concrete columns, 24 inches square with a strength of about 6000 pounds per square foot.

The $200,000 lathing and plastering contract is notable in its own right, not just from the fact that it is involved with a structure by a world-famous architect.

"For example, there is an unusual furred wall treatment, using $\frac{3}{4}$ inch nail-lock channel and 3.4 metal lath applied to that. The outside is pre-cast panels, the insulation and nail-lock channel (the channel is shot into the panel) applied to that. The advantage here is the labor-saving of pre-cast panels, but with no sacrifice of insulation value or interior appearance. Putty coat plaster is applied as the interior finish, applied directly to the metal lath.

Bob Wilkie of Local 190 was assigned as lathing foreman; Harry Martin, plastering foreman. Thirty men worked on the lathing and plastering crews from Feb. 1 through Sept. 1.

The entire exterior of the building is marble faced, the panel insets carrying out the same design line as the pillars supporting the porch roof. Decorated glass adds to the exterior attractiveness.

Inside, the ceiling is metal pans with plaster partitions added later. "We had 8000 yards of solid plaster inside partitions," says Joseph Conroy, Jr., of the firm Conroy Brothers, Minneapolis, as he recapped the job.

Outside wall furring totalled 4,000 yards, installed in the nail-lock channel, metal lath combination mentioned previously.

Economic Council Will Help Labor-Management Accord—The establishment of the Economic Council of Canada marks an important step in the development of economic planning in Canada. The Council has come into being at a time when there is also a growing interest in labour-management co-operation under government auspices and otherwise. The Economic Council itself is a body in which many interests are represented, including representatives of organized labour appointed after consultation with the major trade union centres.

The Act under which the Economic Council of Canada came into being specified that: "It shall be the duty of the Council to advise and recommend . . . how Canada can achieve the highest levels of employment and efficient production in order that the country may enjoy a high and consistent rate of economic growth and that all Canadians may share in rising living standards. . . ." The Council is required in more specific terms to assess the prospects of the economy, to recommend policies which will stimulate economic growth, to strengthen Canadian ownership of industry, to study the effects of technological change and automation, to study ways and means to a high and consistent rate of economic growth, to study how national economic policies can best foster the balanced economic development of all areas in Canada and make recommendations concerning those projects that in the opinion of the Council will contribute to the growth of the Canadian economy.

One of the specific duties of the Council is "to encourage maximum consultation and co-operation between labour and management in the fulfillment of the objectives of this Act."

The Executive Council of the CLC has taken steps to establish a Special Committee on Labour-Management Relations and Economic Planning. This Committee is to scrutinize and study the work of the Economic Council of Canada and of similar bodies established in the various provinces.

Attack on Poverty Needed CBRT Head Tells Members—An all-out attack on poverty in Canada was urged here by William J. Smith, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers meeting in convention here. Declaring that the war on poverty is needed here far more than in the United States, Mr. Smith declared, "Well over a million families in Canada are living on incomes of less than $3,000 a year and unions cannot ignore their plight."

"Their poverty has a direct influence on us, economically, as well as morally," he said. Mr. Smith said that poverty is self-perpetuating and the children of the poor are doomed to the same kind of life as their parents because of the rapid disappearance of jobs open to semi-skilled and unskilled workers.

He declared, "In our interdependent society, this contributes to the dragging down of wage levels for unionized workers."

Mr. Smith stressed that what is needed is a properly planned economy and criticized the federal and provincial governments for permitting "waste, profiteering, mass unemployment and all the other evils of an unplanned society."

He said that Canadian unions should be more politically active and more than just a bargaining agency for its members.

"As governments at various levels intrude more and more into the realm of labor relations, the ability of a union to exert political influence may well become its most important asset."

Trade Union Seminars Held For Colombo Plan Students—Eighteen Graduate Colombo Plan students of the Canadian Labour College attended two seminars here on Trade Unionism and Co-operatives, from August 24 to September 3. They represented three continents, Africa, Asia and the Caribbean.

Discussion leaders for the first seminar on trade unionism were Max Swerdlow, Registrar of the Labour College, Andy Andras, Director of Legislation, Kalmen Kaplansky, Director of International Affairs, Joe MacKenzie, Director, Organization, all of the Canadian Labour Congress. Special speaker was Mr. Herbert Tulatz, Assistant General Secretary of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions.

Mr. Tulatz acted as a consultant, generally summarizing and evaluating trade union conditions and involvement throughout the world. The purpose of the seminar was to relate Canadian trade union conditions to conditions in the students' own countries.

Speaking on structure and government of the Canadian Labour movement, Mr. Swerdlow said that the basic strength of the Canadian movement lay in the local union. This was manifested at the biennial convention where delegates from locals make up the main body. He compared this with the bloc-voting systems of the British labour movement and the AFL-CIO. Later in another lecture on Collective Bargaining in Canada he made the point that in today's complex world, it was necessary for collective bargaining to be more related to the general economy rather than merely to local conditions as in the past.

Speaking on Legislation and Political Action, Mr. Andras stressed the necessity for labour movements the world over to exert pressure on governments to ensure good labor legislation. Labour legislation, he said, reflects the attitude of governments toward labour. The involvement of government in the economy today makes it practically impossible for government to be neutral, he intimated. Political action by unionists was becoming more desirable all the time.

The second part of the seminar, dealing with co-operatives included, as speakers, such distinguished co-operators as Ralph Staples, President of Co-operative Union of Canada, who dealt with the history and philosophy of the co-operative movement; Dr. A. F. Laidlaw, secretary of the CUC, who dealt with some of the co-ops problems, accomplishments and possibilities, as well as the organizing, operating, structure and government of a local co-op; and Msgr. Frank Smyth, Director, Doady International Institute, who spoke on co-operative Education.

Other speakers included Edward O'Meara, Director of Co-operative Branch, Ontario Dept. of Agriculture, who spoke on Canada's Co-ops.

George Davidovic, CUC Research Director, gave a world survey of co-ops, in which he pointed out that there were 174 million families involved in the world's co-operative movement in 1961.

Paul Godt, Supervisor of Cooperatives, Dept. of Northern Affairs, gave a very interesting outline of the Eskimos involvement in co-ops in the Canadian North, while Donald MacDonald, CLC Secretary Treasurer, stressed the necessity of workers to support "their" co-operative movement.

Finally Jim MacDonald, seminar organizer and chairman and executive secretary of the National Labour Co-operative Committee, gave the "raison d'être" of the official link between labour and the co-operative movement—the NLCC (National Labour Cooperative Committee).

The interesting, varied program included three visits to various types of co-operatives and three films on co-operation in different parts of the world.

As a final exercise in the seminar, the Colombo Plan students formed themselves into discussion groups to investigate ways and means of expanding co-operatives in their own countries.

Research Shows Builders How to Avoid "Acoustical Fishbowls"

Privacy and fire resistance were rated as being among the two most important considerations for architects and builders of today's structures. The evaluation was given by Richard N. Parker, Managing Director, Metal Lath Association, speaking here, today, before the 25th Convention of the Wood, Wire & Metal Lathers International Union, at the Hotel Astor. National headquarters of the Metal Lath Association is in the Engineers Building, Cleveland. Mr. Parker resides at 1445 Grace Avenue, Lakewood, Ohio.

"To the building owner, it's a simple matter of dollars and cents: When a builder puts up an office building or an apartment house that is a 'drywall acoustical fishbowl,' he may soon find himself with an unprofitably high rate of vacancy."

Mr. Parker chose the occasion to announce the doubling of the Metal Lath Association's program of research, and development. He traced a sixty year record of leadership in laboratory testing, product standardization, research and development by the metal lath industry. During this period, tests for fire resistance, acoustical control, floor loading, impact and racking were conducted by recognized laboratories, and a continuous flow of technical and promotional literature has carried the results to the architect.

"There have been some outstanding developments," Mr. Parker reported, such as the 55 decible double partition and the resilient clip hollow partition." Currently in progress, he reported, is a project "directed toward the development of an ultra high decible system. The results of this project are not all in yet, but soon we will have the technical advance that we are seeking.

"But technical knowledge, and acceptance by code authorities of the laboratory test findings would do little to increase the use of metal lath unless the information were communicated to persons who determine the selection of building materials," cautions Mr. Parker. "Accordingly, the key to the success of the programs of the Metal Lath Association is the marriage of technical advancement and promotion. This is done through the presentation to architects of authoritatively documented technical knowledge, instead of unsubstantiated claims and puff."

Mr. Parker congratulated the members of the Lathers International Union on their "record of having encouraged industry growth through having accepted and encouraged technical advances. You have been quick to use and to improve upon the new techniques. Without this, any effort of any group to keep ahead of competitive advances would have failed.

"To enjoy fully the fruits of the industry's technical advancements and promotion program, you will be encouraged to participate, even more fully, in the industry's future advancement. . . . The whole philosophy of this program rests upon the strong conviction that the lather is a skilled and versatile craftsman. This craftsmanship is the back bone of the lather's industry."

"You don't have to know anything for this job; you just have to 'No' everything!"

LATH LAUGHS

Wine, Women and Song, used to be my same old pitch, now it's Metre-cal, the same old Gal, and Sing Along with Mitch.

"I'm putting another hour in the meter."

Seeing a car rolling down the street without a driver, a man dashed from the sidewalk, climbed into the driver's seat and slammed on the brakes.

A second man appeared from behind the car, puffing and yelling: "Get out, fathead! I'm pushing my car to a gas station and you're the third quick thinker I've met in the last two blocks!"

Character: to have the same ailment the other person is describing and not mention it.

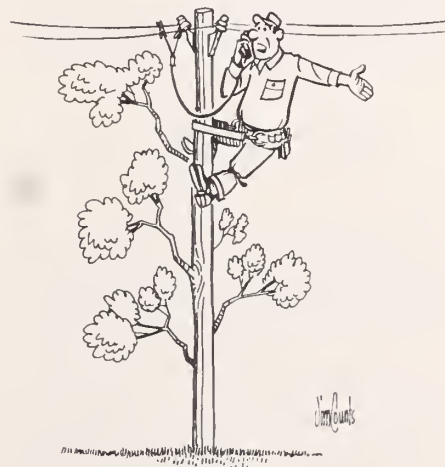

"Couldn't understand a word Mom said. She cried the whale three minutes."

Psychiatrists have wrought some cures that border on the miraculous. For instance, one woman used to live in mortal fear of the telephone. Now, after treatment, she answers it fearlessly, whether it rings or not.

"Don't wait supper for me, dear. I won't be through here far 3 hours and 27 minutes yet."

A psychologist finally figured out why Robin Hood robbed only the rich—the poor had no money!

"... you wouldn't believe it anyway!"

"I want to make a few 'I told you so' calls."

"Did anyone in your family ever make a brilliant marriage?"
"Only my wife."

"Let me know when you'll be coming home, dear. I don't want to open the cons too soon."

The little voice within us used to be our conscience. Now it's a transistor radio.

If you can't think of any other way to flatter a man, tell him he's the kind who can't be flattered.

In an area where air conditioning of cars is considered a necessity, in-shade parking has great value. The office area is shaded, and the entire building given a distinctive character through the creation of a dramatic repetitive canopy design of portland cement troweled on metal lath. The top side of each canopy was then sprayed with a plastic membrane coating. Though it's officially designated as the "Phoenix Insurance Company Building," it has been dubbed the "eyebrow building."

"EYEBROW BUILDING"

An economically feasible office building was erected, and the required tenant parking space was provided, on a limited site in Houston, Texas, as the result of ingenious designing by the Houston architectural firm of Nehaus & Taylor. Underground parking space would have been unduly costly for the projected one-floor Phoenix Insurance Company Building, 3329 Richmond Avenue, Houston; the site was not sufficiently large to include parking space and enough office space on a single floor to be profitable.

The solution, in which metal lath, plaster and portland cement played noteworthy parts, was to elevate the entire single story structure and to utilize the entire ground area for parking. In an area where air conditioning cars is considered a necessity, in-shade parking has great value. It was also less costly to do this than to excavate and to build a basement garage and, what's more, the steps for persons going up into the offices took less space than would have the ramps and steps needed to go down into an under-ground garage.

Savings were effected through specifying open web steel joists covered on the second floor with a lightweight concrete slab and on the roof with steel deck.

Four hour fire resistance was gained for the structural members over the parking area with a suspended, metal lath and gypsum-vermiculite ceiling. The ceiling was finished with Keene's cement and sand, so that it could better withstand occasional exposure to smoke and fumes from the autos.

All columns were given four hour fire resistance protection. The interior columns were protected with 1 3/4 in. of vermiculite plaster on diamond mesh metal lath. The exterior columns were protected with 2 in. of vermiculite plaster and finished with a 1/8 in. skin coat of Keene's cement sand finish plaster.

Each "eyebrow" was created by bending a structural steel angle to form the edge curve and supporting the bent angle from the roof line with 3 smaller structural steel angles. A series of cold-rolled channels, running from the edge to the roof and soffit line, provided the furring for 3.4# diamond mesh metal lath. These eye-pleasing canopies were then hand plastered with portland cement plaster and a water-proofing plaster membrane was sprayed on the top.

Solution of the problem of providing both parking and office space in a limited site, was to elevate the entire single story and to park beneath it. Both the roof and the floor of the office area are constructed of lightweight concrete fill on metal deck on open web steel joists. Pipe columns that support two longitudinal rows of roof beams were later membrane fire-proofed with self-furring diamond mesh metal lath and plaster.

Cites Vital Role of Contractor In Lathing Boom

Contractors, in attendance at the 46th annual convention of the Contracting Plasterers' and Lathers International Association, were challenged by Gordon W. Matthews, president of the Metal Lath Association, to follow the examples of the recipients of the CPLIA Annual Awards, to beware of complacency and to make full use of the technical and promotional developments of the industry.

Mr. Matthews, who is general manager of sales, Inland Steel Products Company, predicted a boom in metal lathing and plastering, providing the industry does not rest on its laurels. He based his optimism with regard to future business on Labor's foresighted acceptance of mechanization, a rising consumer demand for more comfortable and safer living quarters and stepped-up industry programs of research and development. As regards the latter, he cited technical advances in the development of fire resistive partitions, the increased use of metal lath as reinforcement for thin shell structures and research into the development of an ultra high decible sound isolation system.

"The ingenious contractor who seeks constantly to improve techniques of installation plays an important part in the preservation and growth of our industry. The foresighted adoption and promotion of mechanization has done much to lower the cost of metal lath and plaster, to the point that today here is but little dollar encouragement, even on a short range basis, for the acceptance of substitute assemblies.

"The inherent advantages of our product, the research and the field testing and development have created an impressive pattern of growth. However, we cannot sit still and rest on the laurels of this old and time-proven technique. There is constant need for vital leadership and outstanding service to industry to promote future growth. Much has been done," he said, "but with the leadership of men such as those whom we honor today, still more shall be accomplished."

The 1964 Presidential Campaign

Let's Get Out the Vote

We are supporting Lyndon Johnson and Hubert Humphrey for President and Vice President of the United States. Both are eminently qualified to serve. Johnson, in ten months as President, has shown an ability unmatched in this century to solidify congressional factions and secure passage of much needed legislation. His handling of our foreign policy has been masterful both in positive forcefulness and in responsible restraint as each situation has demanded in today's nuclear world. Through the years since he entered the Senate in 1949, Hubert Humphrey has achieved a senatorial stature equaled by few in our history. His knowledge of the needs of our country together with his legislative leadership ability has been responsible for much of our finest legislation which he either introduced or guided to passage. He is an excellent choice for Vice President. Together they will serve this nation with distinction in any eventuality.

We have no quarrel with the Republican party. In many senatorial, congressional, state and local campaigns, we will be supporting candidates on the Republican ticket. We do not hesitate, however, to register our protest at the selection of Senator Goldwater as their presidential candidate. He is completely unsuited for the awesome responsibility of the Presidency. His record as a Senator has been nil.

His voting pattern has been devastating. Each piece of legislation designed to keep America in step with the time has been vigorously opposed by Senator Goldwater.

Shown below is his position taken on key issues since he went to the Senate in 1953. On pages sixteen and seventeen are explanations of these issues. We hope each Lather will study Goldwater's position on these important issues. Let us discuss them among our families and friends. Then let us all work to get out the vote on November 3rd. Goldwater's nomination was a calamity but his election could be a national disaster.

QUOTES TO REMEMBER

In this nuclear world, in this world of a hundred new nations, we must offer the outstretched arm that tries to help instead of an arm-length sword that helps to kill. In every trouble spot in the world this hope for reasoned agreement instead of rash retaliation can bear fruit. Pres. Johnson Bldg. Trades Conference March 24, 1964.

Indifference

"To assume that a retired couple with an annual income of $2,000 is in serious financial straits, or is incapable of purchasing health insurance, simply does not jibe with reality.

"Depending on modes of living, home ownership, geographic location and other individual circumstances, such income could either produce financial difficulties or permit reasonably handsome living."—Sen. Goldwater in minority report on anti-poverty bill, July 21, 1964.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON—"I now call for a goal of higher education for every American with the desire and the capacity to learn. No one should be kept from knowledge because there is no room, or no teacher, or no library, or because he has no money."—Address, University of Texas, May 30, 1964.

The Minimum Wage Law should be extended to millions that are not now covered. Unemployment Insurance should be strengthened. President Johnson Bldg. Trades Conference March 24, 1964.

SENATOR GOLDWATER—"The government has no right to educate children. The parents, you and I, have that responsibility. The child has no right to an education. In most cases, the children will get along very well without it."—Louisville Courier-Journal, July 8, 1962.

"I strongly favor enactment of state right-to-work laws." (From the book, "Conscience of a Conservative," by Sen. Barry Goldwater.)

"We are not going to sit idly by and let older folks fight high medical expenses in their late years all alone. We are going to join them; we are going to help them; we are going to fight with them. They need a program for medical assistance through social security—and they need it now." Johnson Bldg. Trades Conference March 24, 1964.

"We are told . . . that many people lack skills and cannot find jobs because they did not have an education. . . . The fact is that most people who have no skills have no education for the same reason—low intelligence or low ambition"—Goldwater, Jan. 15, 1964.

. . . The nomination of a Goldwater-Miller ticket on a Goldwater platform is more than a disaster for the Republican party. It is a threat to the country. The Goldwater approach to nuclear weapons, the Goldwater formula for mastering communism, the Goldwater view of civil rights, the Goldwater attitude toward trade and aid, social security, education, poverty, taxation—these are only some of the reasons why his Presidency would be calamitous. (From a N.Y. Times Editorial, July 19, 1964)

LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL: "It [Goldwater's strategy] is to fling reckless challenges abroad, to harden the bigotry of nationalists, to jeer at peace-keeping, to egg on the rattlers of bombs." (July 14, 1964)

SENATOR GOLDWATER—"The immense and ever-growing power of labor unions constitutes a grave danger to our economy."—Senate speech, Sept. 24, 1962.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON—"In every area of human concern, the labor movement can take pride in itself as an instrument to bring a better life to more people."—Building Trades Conference, March 24, 1964.

These two goals—full employment and an end to poverty—depend on one another. As long as there are not enough jobs, there will be needless poverty. And as long as children and young people are raised in deprivation, not given a decent start in life, not given an equal chance for education and training they need to get and hold a decent job, then there will be needless poverty. President Johnson Bldg. Trades Conference March 24, 1964.

INDEPENDENT (Anderson, S. C.): "We live on the same planet as Barry Goldwater, but we don't recognize his world."

Compassion

" . . . We share a care and a concern for the elderly, for the sick and for the handicapped. We will not turn our back on those who through no fault of their own can no longer sustain themselves.

"To us the old, the sick, the hungry, the helpless have represented not failures to be forsaken, but human beings to be helped. This nation will never again fall into indifference toward the distressed and the despairing."—President Johnson at Los Angeles, June 20, 1964.

THE ISSUES

1. Taft-Hartley Recommitment—Labor won a defensive victory May 7, 1954, when the Senate voted, 50-42, to send the Taft-Hartley revision bill back to committee. This action ended all further efforts by the 83rd Congress to tighten Taft-Hartley restrictions. Goldwater opposed labor's position.

2. Civil Service—A motion by Senator Homer Ferguson of Michigan would have given Federal agencies permission arbitrarily to discharge Civil Service workers. The bill would have destroyed the job security of U. S. career employees and returned government operations to the spoils system. Defeated, 35-36, June 3, 1953. Goldwater was for this motion.

3. Wetback Farm Labor—At the urging of wealthy farmers, Congress voted to give the Labor Department the right to hire Mexican labor on U. S. side of border, over objections of Mexican government. Passed, 59-22, March 3, 1954, the bill encouraged the importation of cheap labor and reduced living standards of U. S. farm workers. Goldwater supported the bill.

4. Hospital Construction—An amendment by Sen. Lister Hill of Alabama increased funds by fifteen million dollars for the construction of hospitals. Passed, 43-41, July 7, 1953. Goldwater opposed the increase.

5. Price and Wage Controls—Speculators and profiteers got a headstart on possible future operations, the result of a motion by Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia, which forbids any emergency price, wage or rent controls unless war is declared or Congress declares a national emergency. Passed, 45-41, May 19, 1953. Goldwater supported this motion.

6. Natural Gas—Gas bills Americans pay increased by millions of dollars because of bill that exempted distributing gas companies from Federal regulations. Goldwater supported this bill.

7. Unemployment Compensation—A motion by Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts to improve unemployment compensation standards so that most unemployed workers would receive at least half their regular earnings in benefits was defeated July 13, 1954. Goldwater opposed the motion.

8. Oil for Education—Vote to "overrule" the Supreme Court and give to the coastal states oil, gas and mineral rights valued at $50 to $300 billion. An amendment by Sen. Lister Hill of Alabama would have applied revenues from offshore leases to aid education. On July 30, 1953 Goldwater voted against the amendment.

9. $700 Income Tax Exemption—Congress voted tax cuts for corporations and the wealthy, but failed to support a proposal to grant working people an income tax exemption of $700. Johnson supported an amendment by Sen. Walter George of Georgia that would have provided tax relief for low income families. Goldwater voted against the amendment.

10. Atomic Energy—The fight to prevent monopoly control of atomic energy development and products was won with passage, on Aug. 13, 1954, of a motion requiring corporations to share patents for five years. Goldwater opposed this motion.

1. Tax Cut—Efforts to provide tax relief for low and middle income families failed on March 15, 1955, when the Senate rejected, 44-50, an amendment by Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas. The amendment would have provided a $20 tax credit for heads of households and a $10 tax credit for dependents, excluding spouses. Goldwater voted No.

2. Postal Pay Veto—When President Eisenhower vetoed a bill to provide an 8.5 per cent pay raise for postal employees, Johnson, on May 24, 1955, supported a motion to overrule the President. Goldwater voted No.

3. $1 a Year Men—By a 36-34 vote, on Aug. 1, 1955, the Senate turned down a provision requiring persons who serve the government without compensation (WOC's) to file personal financial statements. Goldwater voted to kill this provision.

4. Social Security—Far-reaching improvements in the nation's Social Security program became law only after a bitter Senate floor fight. The key vote came July 17, 1956 on an amendment to provide disability benefits at age 50. Goldwater opposed the amendment.

5. Housing—Proponents of public housing won a temporary victory on May 24, 1956, when the Senate refused, 38-41, to cut back the number of public housing units to 35,000 a year. Goldwater favored the cut.

6. Highway Construction—A major victory for labor was the inclusion in the huge highway construction bill that locally prevailing wages be set by the Secretary of Labor. Passed, 42-37 with Goldwater's support.

7. Air Power—D. D. Eisenhower's budget submitted by the House was inadequate to increase bomber production to $800,000,000 to increase bomber production. The vote was 42-37 with Goldwater against.

8. Farm Program—A motion to grant the nation relief by supporting an amendment of parity and including a vote, on April 11, 1956, was defeated. Goldwater was against.

9. Atomic Power—A motion to practical civilian use, on Dec. 12, 1956, 49-40, to the Commission to build a power plant rather than leaving it to the states, which, thus far had opposed this bill.

10. Hells Canyon—A motion to suffer a major defeat, on Dec. 19, 1956 killed the bill to level, multi-purpose dam on Snake River, between the states. The vote was 51-41, with Goldwater in power.

1. Hells Canyon—A motion to Federally-owned dam on Snake River between the states ahead when the Senate voted, on Dec. 21, 1957 by a vote of 51-41 to provide facilities for new industries—another power-starved Pacific Northwest. Goldwater favored private construction and less power at higher rates.

2. Housing—On March 21, 1957, Knowland of California, in the voting on a housing bill of raising the interest rate from 4.5 per cent to 5 per cent. Goldwater voted for raising the rate.

3. Fair Wages—The Facilities bill was provided cities to build needed facilities providing jobs for the unemployed. On July 19, 1958 Sen. Clifford P. Case

EDITORIAL COMMENT

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE:
"Not only in the fields of domestic legislation, but more disturbingly in his approach to the conduct of foreign relations, Sen. Goldwater has stood as a man of the quick answer, the pat formula and the ready gun." (July 16, 1964)

GOLDWATER—
"Health care for the elderly under social security would destroy freedom, the fight for the bill is one in which the ideals of free enterprise and voluntary action meet head on with the radical liberal dogma of the welfare state." (Chicago Daily News, Dec. 24, 1960.)

LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL, JULY 14: "The strategy of the Goldwater high command . . . must be to influence every minority grievance. . . . This will be a campaign to sicken decent people. . . ."

THE NEWS & OBSERVER (Raleigh, N.C.): "The Republican Party, now shaped by Goldwater, proposes the turned-back clock and the quicker nuclear trigger." (July 16, 1964) an amendment requiring payment of prevailing wages and a 40-hour week. Goldwater voted against the amendment.

4. Depressed Areas—On May 13, 1958 the Senate passed the Area Redevelopment Act 46-36. The act, which President Eisenhower subsequently vetoed, authorized $275,000,000 in loans and grants to aid localities suffering from long-time chronic unemployment. Goldwater voted against it.

5. Unemployment Compensation — An amendment by Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts to the Temporary Unemployment Compensation Act would have provided extra payments in all states for 16 weeks to jobless workers who had exhausted their regular benefits. This was defeated 36-47 May 28, 1958. Goldwater was against the amendment.

6. Social Security—An amendment by Sen. Ralph Yarborough of Texas would have raised Social Security payments to retired employees, wives or survivors by 10 per cent. Goldwater opposed the increase.

7. Public Assistance—An amendment by Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana to provide $5 a month increases in public assistance payments to the blind, aged and disabled was defeated May 28, 1959. Goldwater voted against the raise.

8. Welfare & Pension Funds—Congress passed a bill to protect employees by requiring full public disclosure of the financing of health and welfare plans. On Apr. 24, 1958 Goldwater supported a Senate amendment that would have exempted most employer-operated plans, the plans under which most employees are covered.

9. Labor Relations—An amendment by Sen. Arthur Watkins of Utah to the bill for Federal regulation of unions would have permitted states and territories to take jurisdiction over labor disputes whenever the National Labor Relations Board declines to act. This would have seriously undermined protection which employees have under U. S. law. Goldwater backed the amendment on June 13, 1958.

1. Anti-Filibuster Rule—The attempt to win a more effective Senate rule to curb filibustering (marathon talk to prevent a vote) was blocked 60-63 on Jan. 9, 1959. Goldwater opposed any curb.

2. Public Housing—Congress passed a housing bill authorizing 37,000 additional units of public housing for low-income families. An amendment to scuttle the program was defeated Feb. 4, 1959 with Goldwater supporting the amendment.

3. Temporary Jobless Pay—Congress extended a few provisions of the temporary unemployment compensation law of 1958 from April 1 through June 30. An amendment by Sen. Patrick McNamara of Michigan would have extended all benefits another year. It was defeated 38-49 March 25, 1959, with Goldwater's help.

4. School Aid—The Senate started the unsuccessful drive for a school aid bill by passing a measure which would have provided $20 per school age child for two years, or about $917,000,000 a year, for use for both teachers' salaries and school construction. The bill passed 54-35 on Feb. 4, 1960. Goldwater opposed the bill.

5. Depressed Areas—President Eisenhower vetoed a bill passed by both Senate and House to provide $251,000,000 in Federal loans and grants to aid areas of chronic high unemployment. The measure died when the Senate May 24, 1960, failed to produce the necessary two-thirds vote to override the veto. The vote was 45-39. Goldwater voted against aid to depressed areas.

6. $1.25 Minimum Wage—The Senate Aug. 17, 1960 voted down a $1.15 an hour proposal 54-39 and went on to pass the measure by Sen. John F. Kennedy providing $1.25 an hour minimum wage. Goldwater opposed the $1.25 an hour minimum.

7. Health Care for Aged—Health care for the aged under Social Security failed to pass when a measure by Sen. Clinton Anderson of New Mexico was defeated 44-51 on Aug. 23, 1960 with Goldwater voting against the bill.

8. Labor Reform Act—The so-called bill-of-rights amendment of Sen. John McClellan of Arkansas imposes legal restrictions on unions which have never been placed on any other organizations. The amendment was adopted 47-46 on April 22, 1959. Goldwater was for the amendment.

9. Labor Reform Act—Sen. Barry Goldwater moved that a motion to reconsider the vote on the McClellan amendment (see preceding vote) be tabled. The Senate tied 45-45 April 22, 1959.

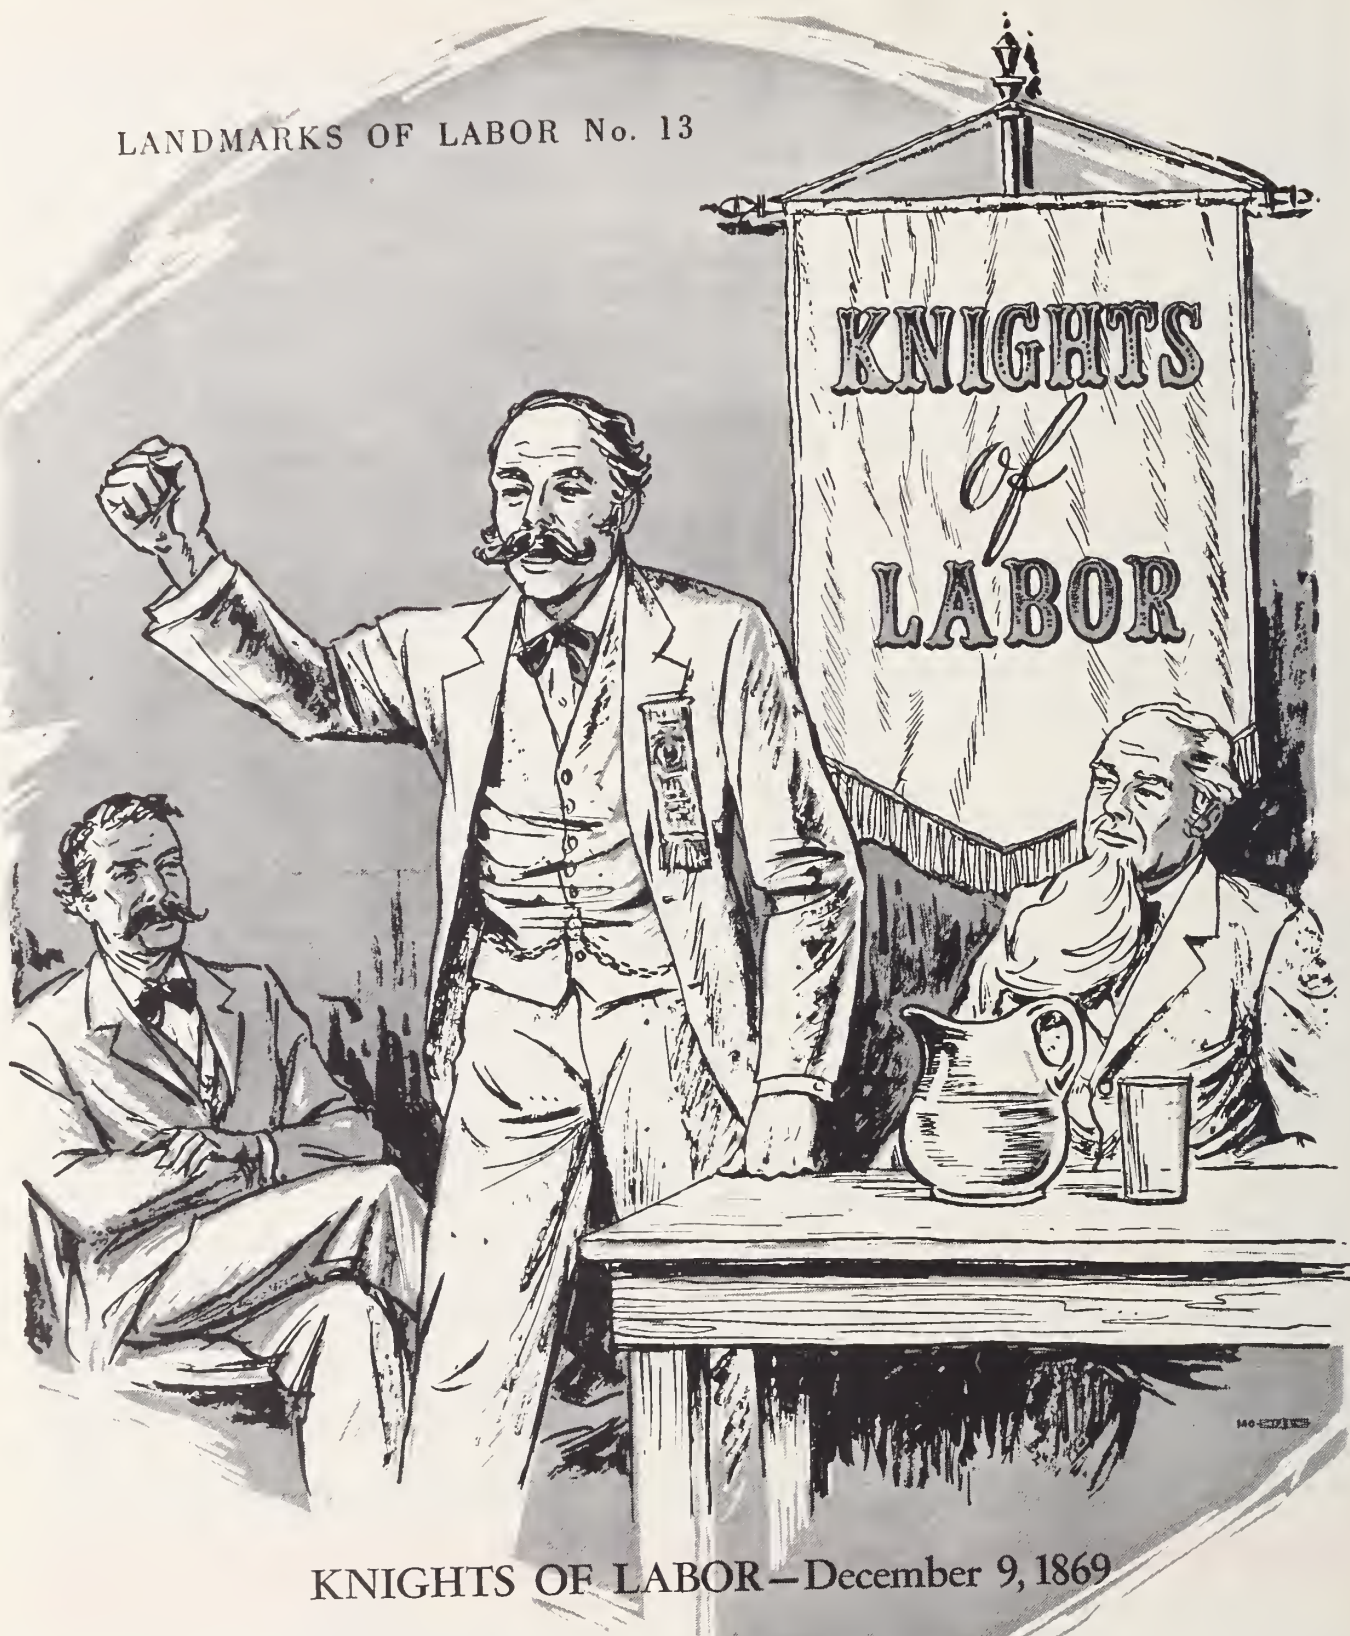

10. Labor Reform Act—A U.S. Senate-House conference committee reported a bill much more stringently regulating unions than the measure originally passed by the Senate. The Senate passed in 95-2 Sept. 3, 1959. Goldwater supported the conference committee bill.

"If he isn't worth a dollar, don't pay him a dollar and a quarter. Pay him what he is worth. The only way you can learn that is to go out and try to meet a payroll." Goldwater St. Petersburg Times 10/4/60.

THE CHRISTIAN CENTURY: "Ordinarily The Christian Century refrains from endorsing or flatly opposing candidates. But now we change. We flatly state our opposition to Senator Goldwater. . . ."

ARKANSAS GAZETTE, JULY 22: ". . . there is [in Sen. Goldwater's statement] the sanction for any act of terrorism or political hooliganism which any supporter of Senator Goldwater is likely to feel has been extended to him."

KNIGHTS OF LABOR—December 9, 1869

The era of the Noble and Holy Order of the Knights of Labor was a colorful one in the long story of the American labor movement. Founded on December 9, 1869 by nine tailors in Philadelphia, the organization was one which was largely reformist and was many years ahead of its time in many respects. The order demanded abolition of contract system for prison labor, abolition of child labor and endorsed a graduated income tax and called for the establishment of bureaus of labor statistics. Terence V. Powderly, (see illustration) for many years the Grand Master Workman, was one of America's most colorful early labor leaders. The Knights rose to 700,000 by 1886 but in the next few years industry's counter-attack and economic adversities caused its rolls to dwindle. The impetus given labor by the Knights was a real contribution to the long range efforts of the working people to better themselves and despite their failures and somewhat sad decline, the Knights of Labor deserve a place in the landmarks of labor.

BUCKLE UP!

Seat belts can save at least 5,000 lives a year—reduce serious injuries by one-third

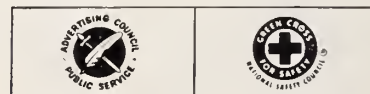

Isn't it time to heed this advice from the National Safety Council? Isn't it time to protect your loved ones and yourself by installing seat belts in your car?

Seat belts are life belts. Without a seat belt, when your car stops suddenly in a collision or emergency, you keep going with tremendous force. Into dash, windshield, window, or back of front seat. But with a seat belt, you "stay put" . . . with a vital Margin of Safety between you and serious injury or even death.

Don't wait. Install and use seat belts now. You'll drive with a new peace of mind.

Buckle up for safety with seat belts every time you drive!

Published to save lives in cooperation with The Advertising Council and The National Safety Council.

In 1948, President Truman won Ohio by 7,107 votes and California by 17,865. If one Truman voter in each precinct in those states had stayed away from the polls, Governor Dewey would have captured 50 more electoral votes, President Truman would have lost 50, and the election would have been thrown into the House of Representatives!

In 1960, John F. Kennedy's national plurality was less than one vote per precinct. He defeated Vice President Nixon by less than 120,000 votes out of almost 69 million votes cast.

In the 1962 elections:

- The Governor of North Dakota was elected by only 2,007 votes
- The Governor of Vermont was elected by only 1,348 votes
- The Governor of Maine was elected by 483 votes
- The Governor of Rhode Island was elected by 398 votes
- The Governor of Minnesota was elected by 91 votes
- Many other elections were decided by even fewer votes —in fact there have been many ties through the years

Less than half of the eligible voters in the United States voted in the 1962 elections!

As the 1964 elections roll around, and we discuss and weigh the issues to be determined at the ballot box, both nationally and locally, it is imperative that each and every one of us and our families vote.

THANKSGIVING

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

Report from the

GENERAL PRESIDENT

In my report in the October, 1964 Journal, I explained the difference between the Employees Pension Fund, which has been published in the financial section of the Lather each month for three years, and the General Pension Fund, which you, the members of the LIU may negotiate into your agreements with your employers.

As a further clarification of these Pension Funds, I am setting forth in this Report a brief statement on the General Pension Fund. When you study this statement, you must bear in mind that this General Pension Fund is actually in its infancy. This fund has been in existence for only 22 months, with only a minimum number of local unions participating in the plan. Can you visualize the potential this Plan has if all of our Local Unions were participants in this Plan? Not only would our members have this benefit to look forward to in their retiring years, but also the larger the participation the better position we are in to negotiate for better benefits for those members covered under the plan.

Secretary Treasurer Ferguson has given you certain figures as to the number of Local Unions and Members, etc. presently in the General Pension Plan, and I join him in urging you to make every effort when negotiating your new agreements to see that this plan is included in your agreement. If you have any questions concerning the plan or the benefits of the plan, please do not hesitate to let me know, and I will see that you receive the information you request. We have printed copies of the Plan, sample forms for submitting the payments into the plan, with instructions to both the Local Union and the employer who are participating in the plan.

It is with deep regret that I must inform you at this time of the death of one of our Deputy International Representatives, Brother Julius Sole, on Friday, October 16, 1964. We shall miss Brother Sole as a Deputy International Representative. Although he served in this capacity for only a few months, he carried out his duties and assignments honorably and in the manner of a good trade unionist. I know the members of his Local Union, 345, and the Florida State Council, where he served as Business Agent in both instances will miss him also.

I have appointed Walton Parker to serve as Deputy International Representative in the southern region. His name, address and telephone number will be listed with the other Deputy International Representatives in the Journal each month.

By the time this Journal reaches you, the National elections will be over. I sincerely hope each and every one of you are able to say that your vote was counted.

Sincerely & fraternally

Sal Maso

Marblecrete Forum Describes Latest Industry Techniques

More than 100 contractors, material suppliers, labor leaders and industry personnel attended the Marblecrete Forum held Saturday, October 3, at the Hotel Westward Ho in Phoenix, Arizona.

A panel of eight specialists took part in the forum which was presented as an effort to bring to the plastering industry the latest techniques in planning, designing and promoting cement plaster and marblecrete.

Taking part in the program were Sam P. Robinson, Field Representative Arizona Lath and Plaster Institute, who served as moderator; George R. White, Portland Cement Association, Arizona District Office, who presented a slide rule lecture on marblecrete applications; Norman L. Erb, Director, Arizona Lath and Plaster Institute, who gave a talk on Organization and financing of state bureaus; Keith Bohlig, Manager, Housing Bureau, Portland Cement Association, Chicago—covered the subject of "Using Outside Organizations for Promotion," and Richard Perrell, President, Phoenix Chapter of Construction Specifications Institute, who spoke about architectural specifications.

Also taking part in the program were John Buckholtz, representative, North Coast Plastering Bureau, San Carlos, California. Buckholtz described to the audience a method of presenting technical help to the architectural offices. Otto E. Sargent, Executive Director, Santa Clara County Lathing and Plastering Institute, San Jose, California showed how display techniques could be used for better marblecrete design. Mary Leonhard, feature writer, Sun Living Section, Arizona Republic, completed the forum program with a talk on how construction jobs using marblecrete could be publicized.

During the series of presentations, work crews were busy making sample panels using portland cement plaster and the marblecrete method of construction. Marblecrete is a procedure in which particles of marble, granite or other aggregate are machine-blown into the surface of the fresh finish coat of portland cement plaster. The bedding coat can be made pure white by using white portland cement and white sand, or it can be colored with mineral pigments to any desired tint. Contrasting aggregates are then machine applied following plain or intricate shapes—much like "painting by numbers."

Marblecrete originated in the mid-west some 35 years ago. About 10 years ago designers in Vancouver, British Columbia started on a limited scale to produce some marblecrete, but it has been only in the past several years that the full potential of marblecrete has been recognized. Today, marblecrete can be used in high-rise buildings and for intricate, delicate artistic creations. Old buildings take on a new fresh look with marblecrete exteriors. Corporate images and scenic designs are often created with marblecrete used by experienced journeymen in the plastering trade.

Participants in the Marblecrete Forum held in Phoenix Saturday, October 3. More than 100 Lathing and plastering contractors, business agents, suppliers and industry people attended the seminar which was presented by the Arizona Lath and Plaster Institute in cooperation with the Portland Cement Association.

Director, Santa Clara County Lathing and Plastering Institute, San Jose, California; Norman L. White, Portland Cement Association, Arizona District.

Revive Use of Ornamental Lath & Plaster

Recently the St. Louis Club was organized with sumptuous club quarters at 7701 Forsyth Boulevard, Clayton, Missouri.

This new St. Louis Club revives the old club that for many years was located at 3641 Lindell Boulevard.

The membership of the club is composed of the leading business and professional men of the City and County.

The new quarters, atop the Pierre Laclède Building in Clayton, revives an old building custom in that for the first time in many years, ornamental lath and plaster was specified.

Schwarz and Van Hoefen, architects, thought that specifying ornamental lath and plaster would add to the sumptuousness of the spacious club quarters and would be more practical for the interior decorating and furnishings.

Harry Niehaus Lathing and Plastering Company had the contract for the lathing and plastering and the president, Harry Niehaus, said that while modern building induced itself to speed in erection, it was at the sacrifice of beauty and design and permanent attraction.

He further stated that one never gets tired of the beauty of ornamental lath and plaster and cited the Gold Room of the Jefferson-Sheraton Hotel, the New Cathedral; the St. Louis Cathedral; Christ Church Cathedral

The fine architectural firm of Schwarz and Van Hoefen is to be complimented on reviving ornamental lathing and plastering which really portrays permanent beauty and design and causes the onlooker to appreciate fine craftsmanship.

Russell Baldwin, International Vice-President of Lathers International Union and Business Representative of Lathers Local No. 73, and Albert

Meinert, Business Representative of Plasterers Union Local No. 3, were happy that some of their younger men requested work on this excellent display of lath and plaster, under the older craftsmen responsible for laying out and completing the work. Ray Vogel was lathing superintendent and Ed Lewis was foreman on the job.

In a joint statement they said we hope every architectural firm will visit the club quarters and return to specifying ornamental lath and plaster.

Report from the

GENERAL SECRETARY-TREASURER

In last month's edition of THE LATHER, General President Maso reported to you that many members have confused the Pension Plan for full-time employees who are members of the L.I.U. with our General Pension Plan. Let me say in substantiation that this misunderstanding is quite prevalent throughout our entire membership, which in my opinion, has been somewhat of a deterrent in the expansion of our General Pension Fund. Naturally, members who would read the Financial Report on the Employees Pension Fund, from month to month, and were under the impression that said report was on our General Pension Fund, surely were not impressed with the progress. However, as General President Maso has told you, financial reports that have appeared in the past will no longer appear.

Brother Maso, as a Trustee of our General Pension Fund, is in full accord that our membership at large is entitled to a Progress and Financial Report on our General Pension Fund.

Under the President's Report in this issue, you will note the Financial Statement on the General Pension Fund. Said amount is a result of approximately 60 to 70 Local Unions participating, with a total membership of between five and six thousand, over a period of only twenty-two months.

Therefore, it should be very evident to the most critical skeptic that, if such progress continues, the potential for increasing benefits to those participating is tremendous.

Therefore, I sincerely urge those Local Unions not now participating in our General Pension Fund, to make every effort to do so through your agreement with your employers. Time marches on, you are not getting any younger. Assure yourself of an income in later years by participating in the General Pension Fund.

President Maso has stated that apprenticeship training is the lifeblood of our organization. How true. If we are to adequately service our work jurisdiction, we must continue to have qualified mechanics available to do so. Qualified lathers don't just happen. They are the result of apprentice training programs throughout the United States and Canada.

While we are discussing the importance of apprentice training, some time ago the officers of our International Union, in cooperation with the C.P.L.I.A., initiated a national apprentice training program geared to the effort to assist Local Unions who are more or less in a position to need assistance. A national committee has developed an apprentice training manual in conjunction with an overall program to stimulate apprentice training.

As you know, this program is financed by employer contributions. Brother Maso has on many occasions urged various Local Unions to provide for this in their working agreements. I am sure that this program cannot be a success without participation by all Local Unions. Therefore, again may I urge that all Local Unions not now participating do so as soon as possible.

J. Earl Ferguson, General Secretary-Treasurer

SAMUEL GOMPERS

There can be no one date as a precise "landmark" denoting the great contributions of Samuel Gompers, for his influence began in the '80's and extends to the present day. As a founder and president of the American Federation of Labor, Gompers was the architect of a great part of the labor movement from the time the AFL was founded until his death in 1924.

The philosophy, energy and determination of this dedicated leader contributed to the building of trade unionism during decades when opposition to unions was the harshest.

Union leaders today can agree with Gompers' own appraisal when he said, "I look back over the years of work for my trade and I rejoice in the conviction that the bona fide trade union movement is the one great agency of the toiling masses to secure for them a better and higher standard of life and work."

A Friend Is Gone

James P. Mitchell

1901 - 1964

James P. Mitchell, who served as Secretary of Labor for seven years, died of a heart attack. He was 63.

President Sal Maso called him "an outstanding Secretary of Labor whose vigorous enforcement of protective labor laws raised them to new levels of effectiveness" and whose activities elevated the Department of Labor "to the status it now enjoys with both labor and management and within the councils of government."

Labor's "friendship and esteem for Jim Mitchell grew with the years," President Maso said, adding: "We respected his counsel and we valued his friendship; his passing is a loss to us and to the nation."

Mitchell became secretary of labor in October 1953, moving over from the Department of Defense where he was assistant secretary of the Army in charge of manpower and reserve forces affairs. During World War II he served as director of the Industrial Personnel Division of the War Department. After the war he was director of personnel and industrial relations for R. H. Macy & Co. and later vice president in charge of labor relations and operations at Bloomingdale Brothers, both in New York.

After his service in the Eisenhower Administration, Mitchell won the Republican primary nomination for the 1961 New Jersey gubernatorial race but lost to Gov. Richard J. Hughes in the general election. He subsequently joined Crown Zellerbach Corporation as a consultant and director for the West Coast pulp and paper company. Last December he was elected senior vice president for corporate relations for the company.

Mitchell was born in Elizabeth, New Jersey and after graduation from high school went to work in a grocery store, the first in a series of jobs. After a few years he went to work for Western Electric Co. in the personnel department and for the rest of his life dealt with personnel and labor-management problems.

Before leaving the secretaryship, Mitchell was tendered a dinner by the trade union movement where he was honored for his "deep understanding of and concern for the welfare of the nation's working men and women."

After leaving the government he served as president of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor.

He is survived by his widow, the former Isabelle Nulton, a daughter, three sisters and three grandchildren.

Mr. Matthews, who is general manager of sales, Inland Steel Products Company, Milwaukee, predicted a boom in metal lathing and plastering, providing the industry does not rest on its laurels. He based his optimism with regard to future business on Labor's foresighted acceptance of mechanization, a rising consumer demand for more comfortable and safer living quarters and stepped-up industry programs of research and development. As regards the latter, he cited technical advances in the development of fire resistive partitions, the increased use of metal lath as reinforcement for thin shell structures and research into the development of an ultra high decible sound isolation system.

"The ingenious contractor who seeks constantly to improve techniques of installation plays an important part in the preservation and growth of our industry. The foresighted adoption and and promotion of mechanization has done much to lower the cost of metal lath and plaster, to the point that today there is but little dollar encouragement, even on a short range basis, for the acceptance of substitute assemblies.

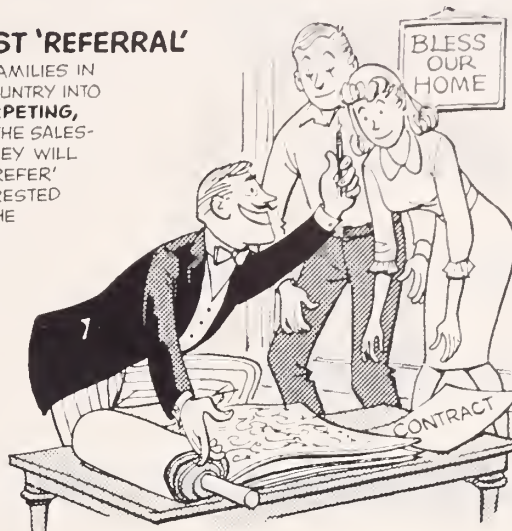

"The inherent advantages of our product, the research and the field testing and development have created an impressive pattern of growth. However, we cannot sit still and rest on the laurels of this old and time-proven technique. There is constant need for vital leadership and outstanding service to industry to promote future growth. Much has been done," he said, "but, with the leadership of men such as those whom we honor today, still more shall be accomplished."

UNITED NATIONS

Working for a World of Peace and Freedom

The world celebrated United Nations Day 1964 with brighter hopes and a greater feeling of confidence than it has felt in years. During the past few years the United Nations has survived the pounding of Khrushchev's shoe and other crises that threatened to destroy it. As a result, the UN has emerged stronger than at any time in its 19-year history. With an increase in its membership from the original 51 to a present 112, it is also nearer its goal of universality.

If the present relaxing of tension continues, the world body will be able to concentrate its energies upon attacking the fundamental cause of unrest—poverty and illiteracy. Then the outlook for achieving world peace and order and a better life for the world's people will be substantially advanced.

When the Cuban crisis held the world in its grip, the prospect of nuclear war was eased with the assistance of the United Nations, and within a month the immediate crisis had passed. By the end of the year the Cuban situation had ceased to give much anxiety.

Particular cause for optimism results from the signing of the partial nuclear test ban treaty. Though this was achieved outside the UN this treaty and the establishment of a "hot line" between Washington and Moscow should result in a slowing down of the arms race, marking a major step toward achieving stable international relations and security.

Trade unionists are intensely concerned about the success of the United Nations and are deeply committed to programs to improve the condition of workers everywhere—the great mass of the world's people.

At the present time the AFL-CIO is spending 25 percent of its entire budget on international affairs. In addition, many affiliates engage in activities overseas.

EAGER TO LEARN—Students are shown carrying their belongings into new quarters at a school in Cambodia. The villagers are attending the National Fundamental Education Center which was set up with the help of UNESCO.

Left:
ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT—An extensive survey of the lower Mekong River basin is being undertaken by the United Nations Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East. The development of the region will benefit Laos, Thailand, Cambodia, and Viet-Nam.

Union members are particularly hopeful that the diplomatic, military, and political successes will permit the United Nations to mount a long-term campaign to stimulate economic growth and foster education in the emerging nations.

The minds of many men sought 19 years ago, following the world's most terrible war, to find a road to peace. They came up with the idea of the United Nations. They wrote for it a charter and the following purposes:

"To maintain international peace and security, to develop friendly relations between nations, to cooperate in solving international economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems and to be a center for harmonizing the action of nations in attaining these common ends."

These were high and lofty ambitions but the men who planned for the United Nations were those of the school "who dreamed no little dreams." For worthwhile results, plans must be lofty and unselfish and far-seeing. What more worthwhile or lofty goal could any nation or its people have, than a world at peace, expending its energies toward a better life for its citizens instead of toward the destruction of other citizens.

Perhaps all the efforts of our country and other freedom-loving nations to effect peace in the world in our time, for all time, will constantly meet with setbacks and failures, but even the simplest peasant, the most uneducated child can grasp the concept "of trying." Even the most ignorant people of the world accept the principle that you can't beat something—in this case war and destruction—with nothing.

The danger to world peace caused by ignorance and illiteracy can be seen by a UNESCO survey entitled, "Mass Media in Developing Countries." The survey stated that in more than 100 countries of Africa, Asia, and Latin America there are available for every 100 persons fewer than 10 copies of daily newspapers, five radios, two television sets, or two movie seats.

When this situation is set within the frame of continuing independence for former colonial nations, it can be seen how explosive it is. Within a two-year period, 19 nations in Africa achieved their political independence. It is impossible for the citizens of these countries to shoulder their responsibilities without the means of communication and the ability to read and understand. This is a primary concern of the United Nations because a large-scale program of educational development in these countries is a major concern of all mankind. Rapid political change in wide areas of retarded development unaccompanied by social and educational progress may well lead to the breakdown of society, the eruption of tyrannical forms of government, and deeply disturbing social conflict, with dangerous repercussions.

The United Nations is far from a failure. It has been able to take many effective actions, even without the participation of the Soviet Union—for example in Korea, Iran, Greece, Lebanon and the Congo. And there is no counting the good which the U.N. has accomplished through its "refugee, technical assistance and specialized agency projects."

President Johnson recently paid tribute to the United Nations when he said, "It has kindled a constantly increasing recognition and practice throughout the world, of those humanitarian principles to which this country has long been dedicated."

This is no mean achievement. The United Nations will continue to achieve worthwhile goals as long as men of good will continue to put faith in it and earnestly help to make it work.

One Word for LBJ Performance: Achievement

If any one word can sum up the performance of President Johnson in office, that word is achievement.

A look at the legislation enacted this year alone gives eloquent testimony to President Johnson's leadership.

The Congress approved the administration's $11 billion tax slash, which meant the equivalent of a 7½ cent an hour take-home pay increase for the average American worker. Major human rights legislation was signed into law to provide constitutional guarantees for all citizens.

The President launched a war on poverty in America, and Congress approved a $1 billion measure to begin the battle to help replace despair with opportunity for millions of poverty-ridden families.

Important changes in the Davis-Bacon Act provided that fringe benefits will be brought under the provisions of the act.

All Americans who have endured the ordeal of frequent traffic jams—and that includes most of us—will ultimately get relief through passage of mass transit legislation, which included protective provisions for workers affected by the bill.

On another field of battle against poverty, the temporary food stamp program initiated by President Kennedy was made permanent. Under its provisions, needy families buy for a small fixed amount stamps worth nearly twice as much when exchanged for food. Four million needy persons will benefit from this measure.

The President, by his words and deeds, has made a firm commitment to peace, while keeping our defenses strong.

The remarkable record of President Johnson in less than one year in office climaxes a four-year Democratic administration that has moved the country ahead on many fronts. Here, in brief, are major accomplishments of the administration:

1961—Minimum wage was increased from $1 to $1.25, and an additional 3.6 million workers came under protection of the law. The most important housing legislation in a decade provided $4.7 billion for urban renewal and planning, special housing for the elderly, better housing loan provisions for low and middle income families, construction of more public housing.

A major effort to control the pollution of our rivers and streams launched an eight-year, $1 billion program to provide more municipal waste treatment plants, and stirred local pollution control action. The Peace Corps was established, and now some 7,500 volunteers are working on projects in 46 under-developed nations to help build roads, schools, water treatment plants and other needed facilities.

Social Security benefits were increased. Area redevelopment legislation was enacted to help communities hard hit by declining industry and long-term unemployment. More than 200,000 jobs have been created by this legislation in areas where they were desperately needed.

The Arms Control and Disarmament Agency was set up, making the U.S. the first nation with an official agency of peace.

1962—Basic public welfare reforms were enacted to help jobless parents, their children, the blind, the disabled and the elderly. Key legislation to expand foreign trade was enacted, reducing tariffs up to 50 percent and giving the President special authority for further tariff reductions. Workers adversely affected received protection through a readjustment allowance and job retraining and relocation allowances.

A $435 million program to retrain jobless workers in new skills was approved. It was an important step in dealing with problems of workers displaced by automation and other technological change.

1963—An accelerated public works program was passed, helping to create jobs by speeding federal, state and local action on hospitals, streets, sewers and other essential community facilities. The legislation meant jobs for some 350,000 workers in public works projects and in industries supplying materials for them.

The nuclear test ban treaty was signed by the U.S., the Soviet Union and more than 100 other nations. Key amendments to the manpower retraining program were enacted.

SEAT BELTS

There's hardly an owner who uses them who hasn't had an experience that leads him to say: "I'm glad I had seat belts!" Seat belts work . . . "If everyone used them," the National Safety Council says, "we could save at least 5,000 lives a year . . . reduce serious injuries by ⅓!" Do you have seat belts in your car? Do you use them all the time?

SAVE LIVES

Published as a public service in cooperation with The Advertising Council and the National Safety Council.

A series of major education legislation was approved to raise the educational level in America and to prepare more young persons for the demands of today's and tomorrow's job market. Together, these bills will add classroom space for an additional 800,000 college students, build 75-90 new public community colleges; improve present, and help build new, community libraries; assist medical and dental school construction and provide loans for medical and dental students who have all the qualifications—except money—for costly graduate training.

An expanded student loan program will enable 70-90,000 additional students from low income families to attend college each year. Under the Vocational Education Act, facilities to train young people in needed skills will be expanded and modernized. The act provides job training for high school students and for thousands of workers—young and old, unemployed and underemployed.

This is the record, then, of the present administration, a record of prosperity, and progress, and peace—a record which deserves the energetic support of all working people and their families.

THANKSGIVING DAY 1863

By the President of the United States of America.

A PROCLAMATION.

The year that is drawing towards its close has been filled with the blessings of fruitful fields and healthful skies. To these bounties, which are so constantly enjoyed that we are prone to forget the source from which they come, others have been added, which are of so extraordinary a nature, that they cannot fail to penetrate and soften even the heart which is habitually insensible to the ever watchful providence of Almighty God.

In the midst of a civil war of unequalled magnitude and severity, which has sometimes seemed to foreign States to invite and to provoke their aggression, peace has been preserved with all nations, order has been maintained, the laws have been respected and obeyed, and harmony has prevailed everywhere except in the theater of military conflict; while that theater has been greatly contracted by the advancing armies and navies of the Union.

Needful diversions of wealth and of strength from the fields of peaceful industry to the national defence have not arrested the plough, the shuttle or the ship; the axe has enlarged the borders of our settlements, and the mines, as well of iron and coal as of the precious metals, have yielded even more abundantly than heretofore. Population has steadily increased, notwithstanding the waste that has been made in the camp, the siege and the battle-field; and the country, rejoicing in the consciousness of augmented strength and vigor, is permitted to expect continuance of years with large increase of freedom.

No human counsel hath devised nor hath any mortal hand worked out these great things. They are the gracious gifts of the Most High God, who, while dealing with us in anger for our sins, hath nevertheless remembered mercy.

It has seemed to me fit and proper that they should be solemnly, reverently and gratefully acknowledged as with one heart and one voice by the whole American People. I do therefore invite my fellow citizens in every part of the United States, and also those who are at sea and those who are sojourning in foreign lands, to set apart and observe the last Thursday of November next, as a day of Thanksgiving and Praise to our beneficent Father who dwelleth in the Heavens. And I recommend to them that while offering up the ascriptions justly due to Him for such singular deliverances and blessings, they do also, with humble penitence for our national perverseness and disobedience, commend to His tender care all those who have become widows, orphans, mourners or sufferers in the lamentable civil strife in which we are unavoidably engaged, and fervently implore the interposition of the Almighty Hand to heal the wounds of the nation and to restore it as soon as may be consistent with the Divine purposes to the full enjoyment of peace, harmony, tranquillity and Union.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington, this Third day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, and of the Independence of the United States the Eighty-eighth.

In Memoriam

A tribute to our beloved late President

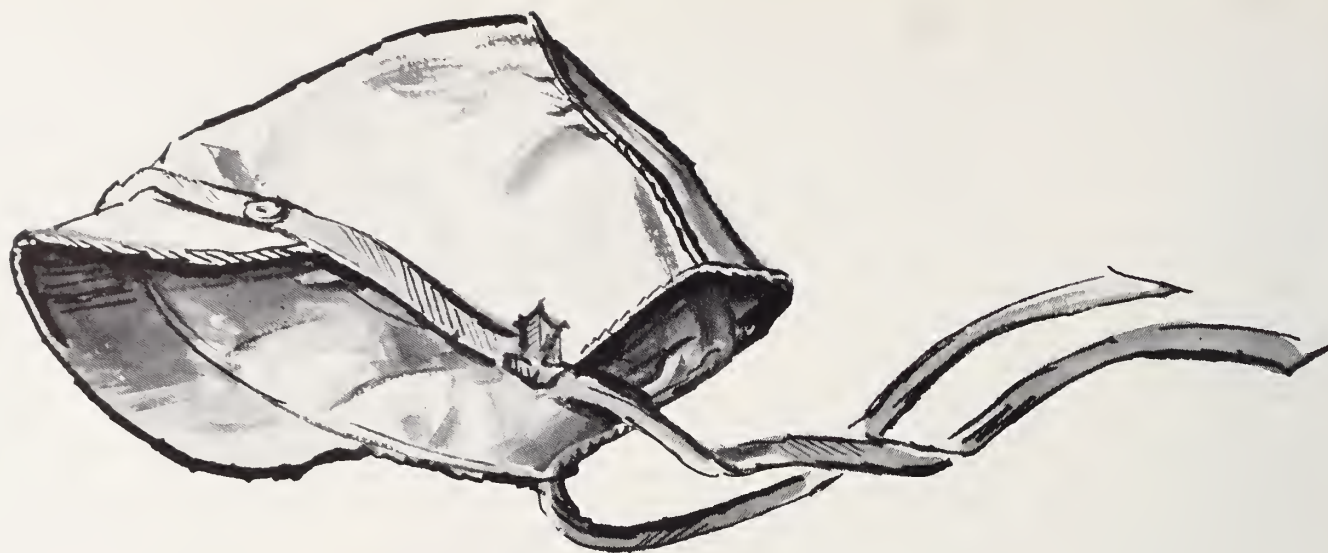

JOHN FITZGERALD KENNEDY

May 29, 1917 — Nov. 22, 1963

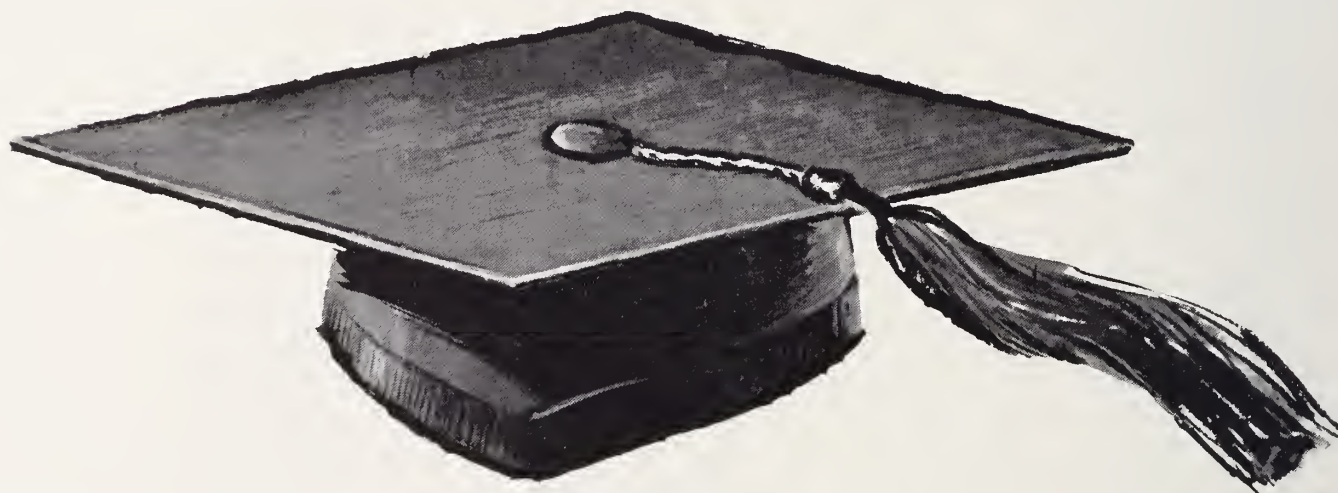

In the long history of the world, only a few generations have been granted the role of defending freedom in its hour of maximum danger. I do not shrink from this responsibility—I welcome it. I do not believe that any of us would exchange places with any other people or any other generation. The energy, the faith, the devotion which we bring to this endeavor will light our country and all who serve it—and the glow from that fire can truly light the world . . .

Inaugural Message, 1961

LEADERS ARE BORN

THEN MADE

In our complex world, the "born leader" isn't enough.

He needs training so he will possess the knowledge, technical skill, and the culture and vision that distinguish the leader from the rank-and-file.

These assets are, for the most part, the product of higher education. In fact America must count on college-trained leaders to hold our position in many areas . . . in science and invention, in business, trade, and jobs, in our living standard and moral influence.

But there are danger signs. Higher education is in trouble—some colleges face shortages. The big test is just ahead when applicants at colleges will double. To maintain our world lead, we must maintain our colleges—with enough classrooms, laboratory facilities and competent teachers.

College is America's best friend. Support the college of your choice.

If you want a clearer picture of how the college situation affects all of us, write for a free booklet to: HIGHER EDUCATION, Box 36, Times Square Station, New York 36, N.Y.

How Lucas Ray built himself a lake with U.S. Savings Bonds

Like umpteen million other Americans, Mr. Ray loves to fish. Unfortunately, in his part of South Carolina, public lakes are scarce.

Not one to be discouraged, he cashed in a few thousand dollars' worth of Savings Bonds and built his own. He has it well-stocked with crappies, catfish, bass and other fish. And an attractive 4-room cottage sitting beside it (also built by Mr. Ray with money he saved in Bonds).

In case you're wondering, Mr. Ray possesses neither great wealth nor superhuman powers as a saver. He accumulated the money for the lake, fish and cottage by joining the Payroll Savings Plan where he works.

Every week the company sets aside $9 from his paycheck and puts it toward the purchase of a $50 Bond every month. His savings build up automatically.

Americans with all kinds of savings goals buy Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan. And while their dollars build up a nest egg for their future, they help Uncle Sam safeguard our freedom right now.

Must be lots of important things you'd like to have in your future. Why not sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work and see if it isn't the easiest way in the world to save for them?

Quick facts about Series E Savings Bonds

New Washington Hilton

BELOW is the lath side of 3" partition. Each side receives 1½" of plaster.

Washington's newest hotel will be ready to open its doors to hold the Inaugural Ball of President Lyndon B. Johnson and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey on January 20.

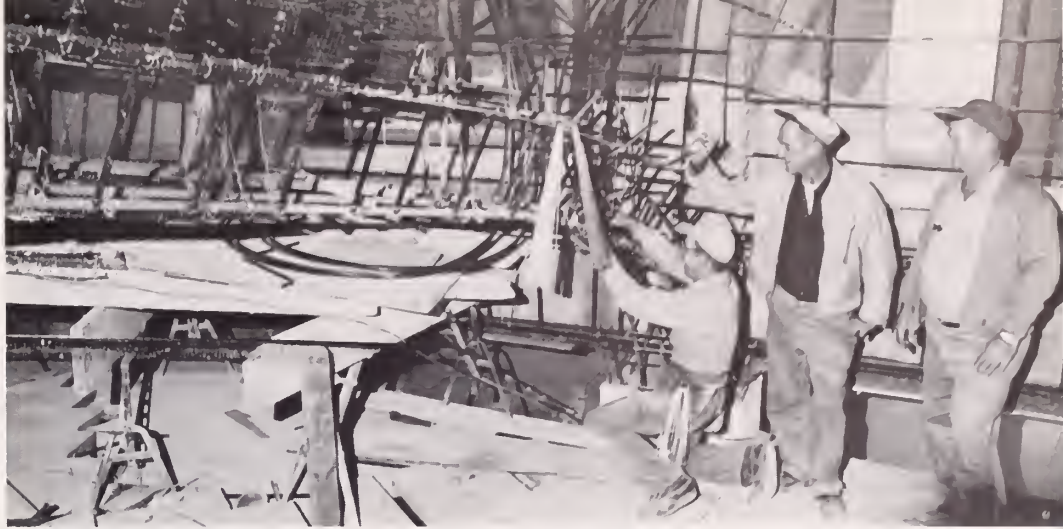

The opening will be 4 months ahead of schedule as a result of efficient metal lath and plaster construction techniques. Work was started by the Lathers in mid-March of this year and completed by Nov. 1.

The rooms are divided by three inch solid metal lath and plaster partitions. Other partitions are two-inch and two and one-half inches thick.

Lathers welded pre-fabricated light-gauge metal frames on the site in standard size 7 x 4 foot and 8 x 4 foot panels. Wire lath was attached to the frames, which were fastened in place with power actuated studs.

The metal lath and plaster construction not only provided for an early completion schedule but also enabled the architect to utilize more area for guest rooms than otherwise possible.

View of the United States Gypsum Building lobby, with sculpture in the background by Edgar Miller, renowned American sculptor, depicting the romance of the gypsum industry and gypsum product applications.

Sculpture Depicts Gypsum Industry

Among the most striking features of Chicago's award-winning United States Gypsum Building are two massive white HYDROCAL gypsum cement sculpture renderings in the reception area. Executed in open relief, these 7x9 foot panels depict the mining and manufacturing of USG products as well as their building and industrial uses.

Standing out from an 18 foot wall, they were sculptured by Edgar Miller, nationally known artist whose talent is sought by architects and interior designers from coast to coast.

The panels' contribution to a building that has won both the Chicago Building Congress Award and the Thomas Jefferson Architectural Award is especially significant because they are dramatic examples of a glamorous use for the company product, HYDROCAL.

"This product's versatility seems to be limited only by man's imagination," said Miller. Although chiefly used for industrial tooling, HYDROCAL has become a good friend of the artist, as well as the dentist, the physician, the builder and many others who contribute so much to modern living.

Joining Edgar Miller in using HYDROCAL for art purposes are Chicago's Silvestri Art Manufacturing Company and Jo Mead Designs, New York City's Metropolitan Museum of Art and Philadelphia's University Museum.

Among the works of Silvestri are elaborate wall panels in the chairman and president's offices of the United States Gypsum Building, which he cast for Sam Gallo, a New York sculptor.

Jo Mead Designs, a company devoted to reproducing famous Art pieces, has been using HYDROCAL for more than 19 years, according to Eldon Whiteside, USG's Manager of Industrial Tooling and Plastics. "By reproducing original sculpture, Jo Mead has made art available to the man on the street," said Whiteside.

"United States Gypsum has also acted as consultant to the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art on HYDROCAL, for reproducing art objects from its extensive collection of sculpture," he added.

"My work with Miller on the United States Gypsum Building was fascinating," commented Whiteside. "He is an artist who considers ideas to be all important. Above and beyond his gift for drawing and his intuitive feeling for spatial design, Miller brings a freshness and vigor to his work, which suggests that he enjoys doing it—and he does. Unless a commission challenges his enthusiasm, his talent is not for hire. For this reason, he doesn't have an agent.

"Moreover," added Whiteside, "There is nothing playful about the way he works. He is a perfectionist, willing to take infinite pains. His output is staggering; his work day may begin at 1 P.M. and continue until 8 or 9 the next morning. He is also equal to the exacting technical demands of the varied media in which he works."

Miller, himself said, "In this day of specialists, a real artist is supposed to spend all his time in one field. A painter may be forgiven for doing sculpture, but if he also makes the mistake of carving wood and the colossal mistake of working in stained glass, he invites ruin. The Renaissance man was expected to be versatile and expert, too, and did not leave it up to some workmen to solve the problems of execution from his scrawls on paper."

Members of the Chicago Art Directors Club, recognizing the importance of Miller's sculpture in the United States Gypsum Building, have nominated his work for the Chicago Art Masterpieces honors program of 1964. The two panels are the largest ever cast in Chicago, of HYDROCAL.

Herbert Gould, USG Industrial Tooling and Cast Materials Merchandise Manager stated that "HYDROCAL takes detail extremely well. This is a big factor in making molds, and because it is also fast setting, HYDROCAL is extremely easy to work with. It gains most of its final strength in two hours. It is also a product that unites the Industrial, Building, Medical and Artistic fields with its high standards and qualities that are demanded in these areas.

"It's a product of virtually unlimited potential," he added, "and USG is determined to develop as much of this potential as possible."

NLRB OK's Union's Right To Fine Scabs

The National Labor Relations Board, in a highly important decision, has ruled that a union has the right to fine a member who crosses a picket line and scabs.

The decision adds to a previous one which held that a union also has the right to fine members who exceed production ceilings. At the same time, the NLRB warned that not all union restrictions for internal discipline purposes are necessarily legal.

The current picket line case involved Locals 248 and 401 of the United Automobile Workers, Local 248 at the Allis-Chalmers plant in West Allis, Wisc., and Local 401 at the Allis-Chalmers plant in LaCrosse, Wisc.

Both unions were on strike in early 1959 in support of new contract demands when a number of their members crossed the picket lines and worked in the struck plants. Both unions, under provisions of their constitutions, imposed fines ranging from $20 to $100—fines which were disputed in court.

The NLRB Trial Examiner and a majority of the Board found that the fines were legal despite a dissent by member Boyd Leedom, who contended that the union went beyond its legal authority.

"We cannot conceive of a subject which would be more within its competence, since it involves the loyalty of its members during a time of crisis for the union," the majority answered. "The Labor Relations Act does not deprive a union of all recourse against those of its own members who undermine a strike in which it is engaged. When the strike is lawful and the picket line is lawful, we cannot hold that a union must take no steps to preserve its own integrity."

The NLRB majority denied that this was inconsistent with a previous decision which punished a union for filing a complaint with the NLRB before exhausting internal union remedies. The Board said that in the latter case the union had no authority to interfere with the right of union members to seek redress with the Board through the filing of charges. Crossing a picket line or exceeding production quotas, however, come within a union's competence.

Voting to dismiss the unfair labor charge against the union were Chairman Frank W. McCulloch and Members John H. Fanning and Gerald A. Brown. Member Howard Jenkins concurred, but in a separate opinion gave a different reason. He said that while a union member might have the legal right to refuse to support a lawful picket line, this did not "insulate him from all consequences flowing from his choice."

Leedom held that depriving a worker of the right to cross a picket line was depriving him of the "guaranteed right to refrain from engaging in union or concerted activities." Thus, he contended, the union has no right to fine its members.

The case aroused unusual interest. Both the AFL-CIO and the National Association of Manufacturers filed "friend of the court" briefs, the AFL-CIO in defense of the union position and the NAM against it.

OFL Convention Wants Action In Altering No-Strike Law—The Ontario Federation of Labour convention has demanded action by the province to curtail the indiscriminate use of injunctions in labour disputes and to permit strikes during the collective agreement on issues previously considered in management's preserve.

Delegates warned that unless legislative changes were made in the two areas the labour movement would be crippled.

In the bitterest debate of the three-day convention, delegates turned their fire on the use of the ex parte injunction—the kind issued for a limited period with representations heard from only one side in a labour dispute. Managements have frequently resorted to this method in an effort to restrict or bar a picket line.

The resolution adopted by the convention advocated that no injunction be granted without trial and urged that all applications for injunctions be processed through the Ontario Labour Relations Board rather than the courts.

The resolution maintained that widespread use of injunctions in labour disputes represented a travesty of justice. Injunctions were being freely granted by judges on flimsy affidavits based on allegations which seldom came to trial and unions were offered no opportunity for rebuttal.

Murray Tate, executive member of the Toronto Newspaper Guild, and L. H. Rosen, business representative of the Jewellery Workers Union, demanded abolition of all injunctions in labour disputes, but Dennis McDermott, secretary of the convention resolutions committee and Toronto regional director for the United Automobile Workers of America, said this was not the solution.

Injunctions were deeply imbedded in British law, he said. It was the ease and expediency with which they were obtained by employers on flimsy evidence that represented the real injunction weapon.

David Archer, OFL president, in his earlier keynote address, described ex parte injunctions as simply a strike-breaking tool of the employer which should be abolished.

Dealing with current Ontario law which prohibits strikes during the life of collective agreements, the convention demanded the Labour Relations Act be changed because it rendered unions almost powerless to resist unilateral management decisions in some areas.

The convention endorsed a resolution calling for the right to strike on issues not spelled out in the agreement including such matters as production speedups and introduction of new machines and new processes.

In his keynote address, President Archer said labour demanded the right to effective consultation on the introduction of new machinery or processes. Failing an understanding that protects displaced workers, unions should be able to use whatever economic action was necessary, Archer declared.

Archer also attacked the "residual rights" theory of management rights under which arbitrators hold that all rights reside with management in relations with their employees except those restricted by statute or modified by agreement. With Ontario's no-strike provisions in this field, unions were virtually helpless to resist discriminatory management tactics without breaking the law and subjecting themselves to heavy fines.

The convention also called on the provincial government to delete from the labour code conciliation boards as a compulsory part of the conciliation process. Instead, the conciliation officer would be the final stage of the process unless both parties jointly requested the service of a board or mediator.

Convention delegates also endorsed a resolution calling for major changes in current arbitration procedure.

The federation called for creation of a system of single arbitrators in grievance cases with separation of arbitrators from the conciliation process. The resolution also urged an increase in the number of arbitrators to be recruited from occupations other than the judiciary, provision of training facilities for new personnel and establishment of an association of arbitrators and provisions of standard arbitration fees.

The convention approved a demand for legislation which would broaden the scope of the arbitrator to permit him to modify penalties or alter redress measures.

OFL Challenges Government To Declare War on Poverty—The 500,000 member Ontario Federation of Labour at its eighth annual convention challenged the federal and Ontario governments to wage war on poverty.

Armed with a 58-page study showing one-third of the nation living below a decent subsistence level, federation delegates demanded a royal commission look into the whole question of poverty in Canada and endorsed an eight-point program for dealing with the situation.

The federation study, prepared by the OFL research department under director John Eleen, stressed that the number of the poor are constantly growing in an age of plenty—at a time when the problem of poverty can be solved.

The report noted that a growing section of the population was getting less and less of its share in the expanding economy. In the ranks of those living on the borderline of poverty were older workers, pensioners, the under-employed and the unemployed, the school dropouts and the undereducated, widows and fatherless families, the disabled and sick, the retarded and mentally ill, the small farmers and the migrant workers, the Indians and the new immigrants.

The federation study estimated that almost 2,500,000 persons or more than 13 per cent of the total Canadian population were living in actual destitution—families with incomes of $2,000 a year or less and single persons with incomes of $1,000 or less.

Another 1,600,000 were living in poverty with total family incomes of $3,000 or less or single-person incomes of $1,500 or less—making a total of more than 22 per cent living in either poverty or destitution.

Apart from the need for research at both federal and provincial levels to analyse the extent of poverty, the federation demanded action on minimum wages, education, economic development to create jobs, housing and welfare legislation.

The Ontario Federation of Labor also adopted a statement on poverty. In a separate resolution, the convention called for a $1.50-an-hour minimum now with periodic subsequent adjustments and inclusion of those in farming, domestic service, tourist operations and hotel and restaurant service currently omitted from coverage.

The federation called for long-range economic planning coupled with introduction of short-term measures such as a tax cut to low-income groups, an overhaul of the unemployment insurance fund to provide for at least a 30 per cent increase in benefits, stepped-up government spending in housing, hospital and road construction and the encouragement of new industry in Ontario.

Existing welfare schemes, the OFL brief made clear, are designed to sustain life only and maintain no relationship between the constantly rising cost of living and the amount of welfare received by those needing it. The purpose of welfare should be to establish and insure a minimum present-day standard of adequate social well-being, the statement declared.

Dealing with unemployment insurance benefits, the federation study said present levels of payments ranging from $27 to $36 a week for a limited period were insufficient to provide even the basic necessities of life.

Labor Standard's 30th Anniversary Commemorated

The 30th anniversary of the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Standards was commemorated on November 17.

On that day Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz joined with two former Secretaries, Frances Perkins (1933-45) and Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg (1961-62), in a special observance held in Washington, D. C. Madame Perkins was Secretary of Labor when the bureau was founded.

"Forging Labor Standards" is an appropriate theme for this anniversary. The bureau has made considerable progress since 1934 in furthering the welfare of wage earners. Only 15 states had minimum wage laws in effect at that time. Today, the Federal government and 32 other jurisdictions administer such laws. Thirty years ago only 4 state child labor laws provided a basic 16-year minimum age for employment, but now 25 jurisdictions, as well as the Federal government, have such a standard. Virtually no farm workers en-

Frances Perkins, who set up the Bureau of Labor Standards when she was secretary of labor, was the guest of honor at the bureau's 30th anniversary observance. Her well-wishers, from left, are Sen. joyed the benefits of labor laws in 1934. Today, however, 30 state laws or regulations as well as some Federal requirements offer some protection to migratory agricultural labor. There were no State or Federal anti-discrimination laws then. Now, the U. S. and 26 jurisdictions prohibit discrimination in employment because of race, creed, color, national origin and ancestry while 18 jurisdictions prohibit discrimination because of age.

THE FIRST UNION LABEL — 1874

The union label, now an accepted symbol in the labor movement, was first introduced 82 years ago by the Cigar Makers' Union in San Francisco, California.

The first label was white and was used to distinguish the product of union cigar makers from the cigars made by Chinese coolie labor employed generally at that time on the Pacific Coast.

Two other color changes have been made in the label. In 1875 the St. Louis Cigar Makers adopted a red union label and in 1880 the International Union adopted the blue label, the present color.

The union label, as pioneered by the Cigar Makers, has become a great symbol of union workmanship and union-won standards. Today these labels are rallying points of union action and all unions owe much to the trailblazing of the Cigar Makers whose work was a landmark of labor.

MERRY

THE gaiety of the Yuletide season begins when the first Christmas card arrives in the letter box, bringing with it the closeness of absent loved ones across the miles, good wishes from old friends and greetings from new acquaintances which often open doors to lasting friendships.

Christmas cards as we know them today have been expressing our warm feelings for one another for more than 100 years, although history tells us that the tradition of exchanging charms and small tokens of good luck, dates back to ancient times. The early designs were simple and attractive, gradually becoming more elaborate through the years. Examples of the first printed pictorial cards have survived from the first centuries of European woodcut and copperplate engraving. These two printing processes are similar. A design or writing is engraved on a piece of wood or a copper plate from which an impression is made. In 1466, one of the great early engravers who specialized in this type of engraving, "Master E. S." (today identified by his initials only) created a beautiful design of the Christ child, stepping forward on the calix of a decorative flower. This engraving was known to have been copied by another important early master, von Meekenem. Most of the early prints picture the Infant Jesus with a brief text on a scroll, blessing the new year, which combines allusions of Christmas and the new year.

The more recent predecessor of the Christmas card was Christmas "pieces," which date back to the reign of Queen Anne, in 1702. Events that happened during the year, earthquakes, coronations, battles, to mention a few, were engraved on colored borders of elaborate sheets of paper. Others were reproduced in outlined sketches which children colored. It was a common practice for school boys and girls to write greetings on these Christmas pieces to give to their parents, although some were sold in shops until 1840. Adults wrote complimentary verses and polite messages on more elaborate sheets which they would send with a gift or letter.

Other factors which contributed directly or indirectly to the development of the Christmas card, were the favored "quodlibets," illustrated visiting card engravings, reward cards, pin-pricked papers, silhouettes, music covers, anniversary engravings, birthday and the occasional name-day greetings.

First Christmas Card

The custom of sending Christmas cards began in England during the second half of the reign of Queen Victoria. Some people believed that the first Christmas card was designed by W. C. Dobson, a favorite painter of the Queen, in 1845. Others thought the card created by William M. Egley, 1848 was the first, but in spite of this controversy, most authorities agree that John Calcott Horsley of the Royal Academy was the originator of the Christmas card.

The Cole-Horsley card as it is sometimes referred to, was designed at the request of Sir Henry Cole, 1843 and about 1,000 cards were sent to his friends paving the way for an even greater volume of business today. Many people denounced this card because of its alleged encouragement of alcoholism and drunkenness. This was a tri-panel card. The center panel was that of a Victorian family, the characteristic three generations around a sumptuous table of the well-to-do class, toasting to the health of absent friends. The two side panels illustrate the traditional Christmas charities, feeding the hungry and clothing the naked. Others failed to see what great harm this card did, for seasonal festivities have always been celebrated with fine wines or a social drink that just seem to go with the bounteous meal. People during this era were extremely virtuous and caring for the poor and the destitute of the community was an important social concept among the Victorians. Any vulgarism was neither the intent of the artist, nor was it condoned by Sir Henry Cole, who took a great interest in improving public taste and art education. He was the first director of what is presently known as the Victoria and Albert Museum, in South Kensington.

Visiting cards on which a brief Christmas sentiment was printed were the first American Yule cards. This, from 1870's, features spray of summertime blossoms!

The early Christmas card at left was one copyrighted by the well-known Prang lithographing firm in 1876. For many years the U.S. had practically no Yule observance.

and in the 1880's his friends gave him the title of "Clothes Horse-ley."

Of course, there were those who refused to accept the Christmas traditions of sending cards and giving gifts, and voted Christmas a bore and an absurd habit.

Messenger of Friendship

In spite of these few, it didn't take long for the Christmas card to become the acknowledged little messenger of friendly thoughts, good wishes and warm greetings throughout the civilized world. The reception that was given by successive generations to the Christmas card, from the 1860's, became one of the welcome features of the Christmas season, in fact a national institution which caused the card industry to become a nationwide trade in the late 1870's.

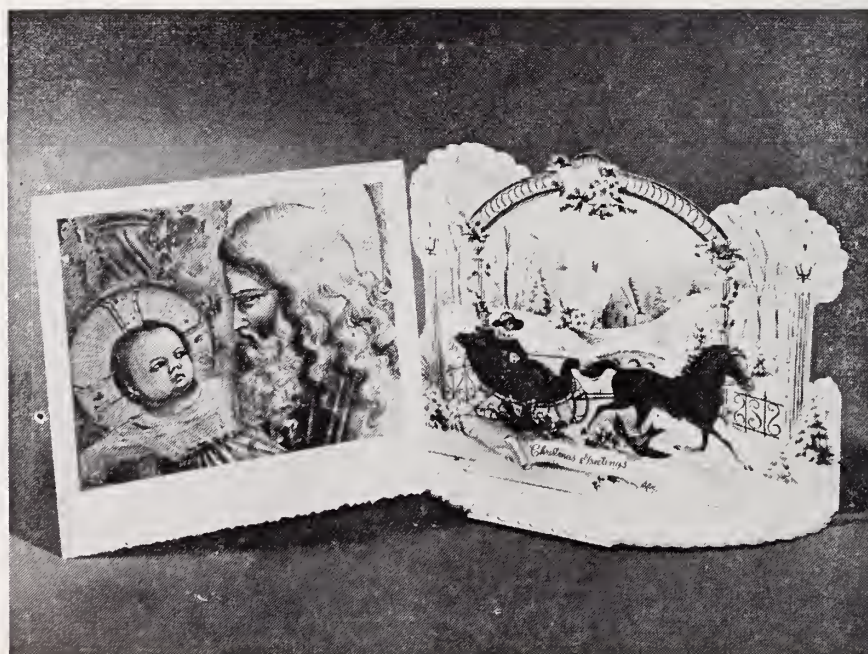

The popularity of the Christmas card spread throughout Europe to America. Louis Prang immigrated from Germany to the new world and is known today as the father of the Christmas card in America. He established himself as a wood engraver in Boston, and he later perfected the lithographic process of engraving. He was known for his reproductions of famous paintings, and he invented the Prang Method of Art Education, which is used in public schools. His cards were superior to all others and they dominated the market from 1875 to 1890 at which time he stopped publishing them. Until that time only the wealthy could afford such fine quality, but inexpensive cards of lesser quality were imported from Germany which caused the industry to expand and grow.

Ornate Victorian Cards

The Victorian Christmas cards were the most varied and unusual cards imaginable. On the average, most cards were the size of our U. S. postal cards or as small as a visiting card. The printing techniques of chromography and lithography enhanced the beauty of these cards. Pictures were printed in color from a series of stones, and writing or a design was put on the stone with a greasy material and impressions were made. Cards differed according to the taste of the artists, manufacturers and lithographers who created them, but most of them were literally cluttered with a mass variety of material. One card is said to have been made of 750 different pieces. It was relatively inexpensive to amass on a single cardboard or folder, layers of lace or lace-paper and ivory, glittering tinsel and crystal glass frosting, exorbitant numbers of individually stuck on bits of scraps, ribbons and tassels, velvet, satin and silk, scented padding or dried weed or flowers. This multiplied effect of creating beauty might seem ridiculous and bad art to our modern times, but it was a way of life, an era of the past. Our contemporary society makes us more interested in Christmas cards and documents of olden times, and we are often inclined to look for the naive chromolithographs and sentiments that carry the traditional symbols and properties of the old Christmas, which are no longer with us. The past, as strange as it may seem to us will always be endearing and fascinating to us. Our cards too will be old tomorrow and in time will seem pathetic to future generations, but again, they are typical of another age.

There were many different trends in the development of the Christmas card that were popular at one time or another, and today are part of this vast industry. The religious aspect of Christmas was more popular in the early days of seasonal woodcut and copperplate engraving. The medieval Baby Christ was forgotten for a time and children became more popular subjects. The fad then changed to grown-up women, such as dreamy-eyed young maidens, aunts and mammas of the mid-Victorian homes, and they in turn were replaced by the sporting woman.

Around the 1860's, designs of tiny animals, which even included insects, were the fashion. One of the best loved rages among the Victorians in the 1890's were the trick and comic cards. Some were clever mechanical cards of birds, which when squeezed would chirp and others when turned side ways or up side down, revealed an entirely different picture. The naughty nighties vogue also took advantage of Christmas cards as media for revealing too much of the hidden curves of the female leg and the secrets of underwear. These were very popular, but hardly ever put in the family scrapbook.

At the turn of the century, the Victorian and Edwardian Christmas cards expressed much of the same atmosphere of the past decades. In the early Edwardian days photography became popular to illustrate the Christmas card, but this technique was used more in reproduction of design. The revival of creative wood engraving became popular once again as high class Christmas cards, during and between the two World Wars. During the postwar period cards were inexpensive and simple in design. It wasn't until after the first World War that seasonal Christmas motifs like landscapes, Christmas trees, holly, mistletoe and Charles Dickens scenes were popular.

Surprising enough during the depression of the 1930's, cards became more elaborate. There was a great demand for careful and detailed hand-colored etchings priced from $1 to $5. In the 1940's publishers experimented with new techniques such as printing on acetate. Modern art became the trend in the 1950's, and there were various shapes from triptych folds to asymmetrical cuts. The true Christmas traditions such as the tree, Santa, caroling, the Yule log and religious symbols are seen this year more than ever before in history.

Printing techniques have progressed in many directions from the early woodcut, copperplate, chromographic and lithographic processes of engraving. Through this development the old is contrasted with the new. Christmas cards are gradually being made of modern transparent cellophanes and plastics, but they never lose that old touch of using silk, other fabrics, frosting and jewellery which first appeared in 1867.

The Christmas card industry as big business had its beginning in developing processes of reproduction and color printing, methods of mass production at a cheaper cost, which created public interest and a growing demand. Cheaper postal rates have played an important part in the growth of the Christmas card industry in the past as well as the present. In 1840 the cost for a half-ounce letter was a penny. In 1870 the rates became even cheaper, a half-penny for postcards. Before this time exchanging greeting cards most likely could not have flourished, because postal charges were not prepaid by the sender. They were collected from the recipient at costly rates which were calculated by distance.

Today this Christmas tradition is enjoyed by millions of people. The custom has grown considerably since the first 1,000 cards were sent in 1843. More than a billion and a half warm greetings will be sent this year. Holiday greetings are expressed in many different ways all over the world, but the good wishes are always the same in any language, Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to You!

One Solitary Life

Here is a young man who was born in an obscure village, the child of a peasant woman. He grew up in another village. He worked in a carpenter shop until He was thirty, and then for three years He was an itinerant preacher. He never wrote a book. He never held an office. He never owned a home. He never had a family. He never went to college. He never put His foot inside a big city. He never traveled 200 miles from the place where He was born. He never did one of the things that usually accompany greatness. He has no credentials but Himself.*

While He was still a young man, the tide of public opinion turned against Him. His friends ran away. He was turned over to His enemies. He went through the mockery of a trial. He was nailed to the cross between two thieves. While He was dying, His executioners gambled for the only piece of property He had on earth, and that was His coat. When He was dead, He was laid in a borrowed grave through the pity of a friend.

Nineteen centuries have come and gone, and today He is the central figure of the human race and the leader of the column of progress. I am far within the mark when I say that all the armies that ever marched, and all the navies that ever sailed, and all the parliaments that ever sat, and all the kings that ever reigned, put together, have not affected the life of man upon this earth as has that One Solitary Life.

Why Mrs. Dobbs was afraid it had cost her $81 to roast a $6 turkey

If you've ever put something in a "safe place" and then forgotten where it was, you can sympathize with Mrs. Jeanette Dobbs.

For some unexplained reason (even to Mrs. Dobbs), she tucked 3 crisp new $25 Savings Bonds behind the heating element of her electric roaster.

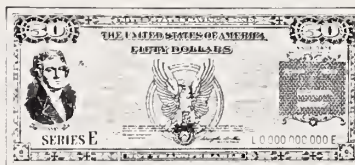

She next saw them as she was lifting the turkey out of the roaster. They were considerably crisper; in fact, roasted to a crisp.

Although her holiday dinner turned out to be less festive than planned, Mrs. Dobbs cheered up next day—when she learned she really hadn't lost a penny.

The Treasury Department keeps a microfilm record of every Savings Bond sold. If any Bond should be lost, destroyed or stolen—it's replaced free.

Security like this is one of the reasons Americans have over 47 billion dollars invested in Series E and H Savings Bonds. Good return is another reason. Money saved in "E" Bonds grows 33 1/3% bigger in 7 years and 9 months, and helps Uncle Sam stand taller in today's world while it's growing.

The $50 variety costs only $37.50. Why not start buying them soon and see if you don't feel pretty good about it?

Quick facts about Series E Savings Bonds

- You get back $4 for every $3 at maturity (7 1/4 years)
- You can get your money when you need it
- Your Bonds are replaced free if lost, destroyed or stolen
- You pay no state or local income tax and can defer payment of federal tax until the Bonds are cashed

Don't ever go away again, daddy!

Her Dad is one of the sensible ones. He went to his doctor as soon as he noticed a cancer danger signal. Thanks to his prompt action, his cancer was discovered when it was still in its early stages, and the prospects for cure are more favorable.

Do you know Cancer's Seven Danger Signals?
1. Unusual bleeding or discharge. 2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere. 3. A sore that does not heal.

4. Change in bowel or bladder habits. 5. Hoarseness or cough. 6. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing. 7. Change in a wart or mole. If you notice one of these signals and it lasts more than two weeks, see your doctor. It may not be cancer, but only a doctor can tell.

Play it safe and see your doctor once a year for a health checkup, too. And help research and education save lives by sending your check to "Cancer," c/o Postmaster.
